Not quite. But you'll be amazed at the hundreds of options that are available to you in these great new games from SPORTS ILLUSTRATED.

SPORTS ILLUSTRATED PRO FOOTBALL GAME. The most realistic football game ever devised. Each of the 26 pro teams' play-by-plays for every game last season has been analysed by experts and converted into an easy-to-play system of color-coded charts that enable you to coach and quarterback your favorites under the most realistic game conditions possible. The new improved molded plastic playing field features sliding ball and first-down markers, plus offensive and defensive play selection wheels. Scoreboard indicates score, time remaining, quarter and down. Since each proteam's strengths and weaknesses have been accurately integrated into the game, you can enjoy all the options, strategy and suspense of the real thing, and find out what would happen if you were calling your team's offensive and defensive plays. Each game includes playing field, scoreboard, 26 Play/Action Charts, scouting reports and Play Book edited by Weeb Ewbank, Coach of the New York Jets.

SPORTS ILLUSTRATED COLLEGE FOOTBALL

GAME. All the excitement, tradition and intense rivalry of college football in a brand new game. Based on a complete analysis of every play run by each team, the College Football game lets you match up the greatest college teams of the past decade using the same color-coded Play/Action system devised for the tremendously successful Pro Football Game. Play/ Action Charts for the following teams are included:

If you had mailed this coupon a year ago, perhaps your salary would be up too!

WHY NOT MAIL IT TODAY?

Look at these pleased reports from LaSalle students. Many success stories of this kind come to us every year—from people who began their career planning by mailing the LaSalle coupon for information.

Yes, many graduates attribute their increases in income largely to their LaSalle spare-time training.

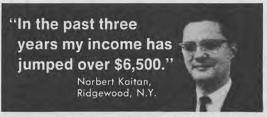

LaSalle students have one ambition in common—to get out of the ranks of the untrained and earn more money and respect in a better job. Isn't that your goal too?

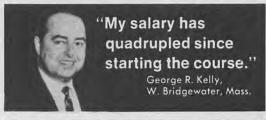

Without interfering with your present work—and by devoting only a little of your spare time—you too can prepare for advancement in the field of your choice through LaSalle home study. The cost is low.

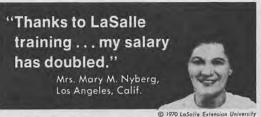

LaSalle has been a leader in home education for more than sixty years, enrolling over 2,000,000 ambitious men and women in its many courses. You study under the supervision of LaSalle's experienced faculty. Upon satisfactory completion of your study, you receive the LaSalle diploma—a recognized and respected credential.

Check the subject you are interested in—then send the coupon above for FREE booklet. No obligation.

VALUABLE

GIVEN AWAY

Be the envy of friends. Win this handsome "Atlas C ha m pions' trophy over 1½ ft. high. All pu-pils eligible.

 $\mathbf{I}^{ ext{T HAPPENS}}$ so fast – and so easily – you won't believe it!

From the minute my MUSCLE-BUILDING secret goes to work on you, you actually see your body change into a rugged, pow-erfully-muscled physique you'll be proud of for the rest of your life!

I know what's going through your mind right now. No more being ashamed to strip for the beach. No more hiding skinny arms, a chicken chest, or narrow shoulders under padded clothes. Goodbye to taking "lip" from huskier men. Yes, now you'll glory in a body that commands respect anywhere you go. The prettiest girls will wonder where you've been all their lives.

Let Me Show You How to Step Out of Your Home in an Atlas-Built Body!

Just give me 15 minutes a day. That's all I need to make my secret "click" for you. Ashamed of thin arms? Tom Manfre of New York put "3 inches of new muscle" on his biceps in very short order. Want a chest like a bulldozer? Jack Miller of California added 8 inches to his chest using the Charles Atlas secret. How about a set of big, broad shoulders - the kind girls just love to nestle their heads on? A wide back, rippling with virile muscle, tapering down to a perfect Greek-god waist? Legs like two columns of sculptured granite?

Mister, I KNOW MY SECRET WORKS! Hundreds of fellows like yourself have told

My Simple Secret of Muscle-Building Success

Long ago I discovered the only NATURAL method for building a magnificent body. It's called "Dynamic-Tension" and I used it to change myself from a scrawny 97-pound weakling into "The World's Most Perfectly Developed Man." There's no equipment to buy - no barbells or other apparatus. All you need is the sleeping powerhouse of energy waiting in your body NOW. Before you know it, you're a new man!

FREE My valuable, illustrated, 32-page book. Not $1.00 - Not 10¢ - But FREE!

Send for my famous book showing how "Dynamic-Tension" can give you a Body by Atlas. 32 pages packed with photographs and valuable advice. See what my method has done for thousands of fellows, young and old.

This book is a real prize. Just glancing through it may mean the turning point in your whole life! Rush coupon to me personally:

10 SECONDS THAT SEPARATE THE MEN FROM THE BOYS

11:00 P.M. — An argument in a parking lot. A big, beefy wiseguy gets insulting and takes a swing at you. He's pretty sure of himself — sizes you up as a weak pushover who couldn't punch his way out of a paper bag. Your girl looks on, terrified that you'll be beaten up, maybe permanently injured. BUT . . .

POLICE FILES REVEAL: 590,020 Burglaries, 61,410 Robberies, 100,110 Assaults, 21,080 Rapes, 6,920 Murders ALL IN A SINGLE YEAR! IF ATTACKED - WHAT WILL YOU DO?

A BURGLAR IN YOUR HOME AFTER DARK!

Your family needs protection. Don't fail them. Here in this free book are the night-fighting tactics you need to hold a burglar helpless until police arrive. Here are the methods of the Commandos who fought by night.

A WOMAN TOO -

Can use the secrets in this free book and handle a man twice her size who tries to get fresh or WORSE. In seconds she can completely ruin any dirty dog who tries to lay a hand on her.

DISARM ROBBERS: -

Why give your money to some hoodlum. Here you will find terror-tactics that in a flash will enable you to make him drop his weapon and writhe in pain. Anyone dumb enough to tangle with a Weider Trained Terror Fighter will regret his mistake from a hospital bed or jail cell.

11:00 P.M. PLUS 10 SECONDS – A Miracle! In a flash you streak forward – almost too fast for the eye to follow. The bully is down quivering in fear and writhing in pain – completely destroyed by the ferocious terror blitz you unleashed. This situation could happen to you. READ ON THIS PAGE HOW IN JUST DAYS YOU CAN ACQUIRE THE HIDDEN SECRETS OF 5000 YEARS OF RUTHLESS TERROR FIGHTING TACTICS – ABSOLUTELY FREE!—TAKE ON ANYBODY—ANYTIME—ANYPLACE AND WIN!

this absolutely free Terror-Fighting Course that I am anxious to send You shows how to swiftly start using my Terror-Fighting Secrets and Flatten out any Thug, Mug, Wiseguy or Bully — even if he's Tough, Trained and twice your size — Make him ABSOLUTELY HELPLESS IN SECONDS

FOR MEN WHO WANT TO BE FEARLESS - A NEW TERROR FIGHTING COURSE 10 TIMES MORE DEVASTATING AND EFFECTIVE THAN BOTH KARATE AND JUDO COMBINED - NOW YOURS - FREE FOR THE ASKING!

WHAT'S THE SECRET? NOT SIZE - NOT POWER - NOT STRENGTHI

NOT SIZE — NOT POWER — NOT STRENGTHI
I don't care if you're 15 or 50, Skinny, Fat or Undersize — If you've always been scared of your shadow—always 'chickened out'—never faced up to a fight in your life — got weak in the knees and ran—I PROMISE YOU THAT IN 24-HOURS I can give you the TERROR FIGHTING SECRETS that will turn you into a Fierce Human Arsenal of Fighting Power—giving you the cool confidence to walk through the toughest streets in late hours with the destructive force of a tiger stalking jungle paths—flattening and pulverizing in a split second with one jab of your finger any 200-lb, brute who is foolish enough to attack you—with one chop disarm any hood or break the strangle hold of any thief. No night-crawling thug will ever be dumb enough to break into your house nor any wise guy ever insult or lay hands on your loved ones or you—if he is still conscious after you've used the secrets that I am willing to send you FREE in this book. NEVER AGAIN FEAR ANY MAN—WIN WITH WEIDER.

After 20 years of research and at a cost of $200,000 into History's Most Terrifying No-Holds Barred Survival Struggle for Power – Going back into 50 centuries of terrifying combat secrets known to man, from the destructive fighting methods of the Hindu and Japanese Killer Cults Temples, from the merciless Nahutian Indians, to the Foot Fighters of the French underworld to the religious fanatic Assassins of the middle east to the Waterfront docks, Lumbercamps to the private files of the Commandos, Police Departments etc., I have learned that the secret of fighting power is not in the weight and muscles but just simple plain "KNOW-HOW". These "KNOW-HOW" secrets taken from all these fighting systems stretching 5000 years are now, for the first time known to man, put into one course that I am anxious to send to you showing how you, and your family in just 15 minutes a day in the privacy of your own home, can learn to master all these closely guarded secrets of the Karate, Savate, Judo exponents and masters to turn you into a Terrifying fighting machine. Kick'em

No, I did not see Jim Thorpe in 1911 when he kicked four field goals—the finale a 50-yarder—and score a touchdown to beat Harvard single-handedly, 18-15. Nor did I see Charley Brickley in 1913, when he, too, single-handedly—pardon, single-footedly—kicked five field goals for Harvard to whip Yale, 15-5.

But over the last 35 years, I have seen most of the great three-point producers - Ken Strong of the Giants, Ben Agajanian of any number of pro teams, Bob Waterfield, Rams; Lee Artoe, Bears; Cliff Patton, Eagles; Lou Groza, Browns; Pat Summerall of the then-in-Chicago Cardinals and more recently, George Blanda, Oakland's indestructible 43-year-old backup quarterback; Jan Stenerud, Kansas City's Norwegian import; Jim Bakken, Cardinals; Pete Gogolak, Giants: Cincinnati's Horst Muhlmann (origin Germany); Garo Ypremian (origin Cyprus), who flunked with Detroit and made it at Miami; the Vikings' steady Fred Cox; the Colts' Super Bowl savior, Jim O'Brien; Bruce Gossett, the ex-Ram turned 49er; and, oh, yes, Tom Dempsey, the club-footed Saint, who snuggled in among the greats with a 63-yard, record-breaking three-pointer that crushed the Lions on the last play of the game last season.

Violence, they say, is the name for football. For the beef in the meat grinder, yes; for the kickers, no. Pressure, yes, for the kickers. At times, intense pressure.

"We loved the way he handled pressure," said Dick Bielski, himself no mean kicker in his day, referring to O'Brien, the Colts' rookie kicker.

"I personally watched him walk on the field sedately and kick a 42-yard field goal in college (Cincinnati) with only five seconds left." Bielski added. "That guy never flinched."

O'Brien, who displaced the veteran left-footer, Lou Michaels, signed for about $20,000 as No. 3 draft choice. From the Super Bowl, he took $25,000. It didn't matter that he flubbed a point-after and was short on a 52-yarder. But it did matter that with five seconds left, he kicked a 32-yarder that frustrated the Dallas Cowboys.

After one year, O'Brien is certainly not the greatest. Time is the test tube of the place-kicker. The greatest, then, of the current crop, could be Blanda, 21 years in the test tube; Baaken, eight years; Pete Gogolak, seven years; and Stenerud, five. And a niche please, for Fred Cox, who has been booting 'em handsomely for the Vikings for nine seasons.

At $40,000 last season, Blanda, the only heavy-duty man among the place-kickers as a backup for Daryle Lamonica, was the most underpaid. Gogol-

GEORGE BLANDA, with DARYLE LAMONICA holding, shows combined form that scored 36 XPs and 16 FGs in 1970.

When They're Down

ak, who hauled in around $32,-000, figures he spends about three minutes on the playing field, which puts him in the $11,-000 a minute class. Baaken's pay is pegged at around $35,000; Stenerud's $5,000 more.

Antique furniture grows more valuable with age; but very seldom do antique humans. If Blanda were, say, a stripling of 33, he could demand $80,000. But he's 43-going-on-44, and he'll probably settle for 50 grand, which is chicken feed based on last season when:

With eight seconds left, and the Chiefs trailing the Raiders, 17-14, Old George kicked a 48yard field goal with the wind in his face to cement a tie and give Oakland first place in the AFC West.

Next week, with Cleveland leading, 20-13, and four minutes to go, Blanda went in as quarter-back and drove the Raiders 69 yards to a score. With seven seconds left, he reverted to placekicker and booted a 52-yarder for a 23-20 victory.

Two weeks later, the score tied, 17-17 in San Diego, the Raiders moved to the Chargers' 11. Lamonica let 28 seconds run down to 7. Whereupon, Blanda kicked a 19-yard field goal and the Raiders won, 20-17.

Blanda, O'Brien and Bakken are orthodox kickers, meaning they meet the ball with their foot straight-on. Gogolak and Stenerud are soccer-style kickers, meaning they come at it from the side with their instep. Four years ago, Bakken said of the soccerstyle kickers, "they're a fad; they're on their way out." What a foul prophet he turned out to be. Just recently, the American pros held a massive test for European soccer kickers in London. NFL training camps could be flooded with broken English and Cockney accents.

Pete Gogolak was first to break the barrier, but he got a whiff of American football at Cornell. Stenerud got his indoctrination at Montana State. All soccer kickers seeking to break the European bondage of small pay and long hours, should build a monument to Jan. For not only is the 6-3, 187-pound Norseman a three-pointer par excellence, he also kicks off into or near the end zone high and twirly.

When the Chiefs are down, the best of the soccer-style place-kickers lifts them up. Especially in 1969, when he kicked the Chiefs over Buffalo twice with five field goals in two different games, and then went on to kick 16 consecutive three-pointers. And in the Super Bowl that followed, Stenerud took the starch out of the Vikings with three straight field goals, one a 48-yarder.

The Colts, creaking with age, credited the 22-year-old O'Brien with providing the winning mar-Please turn to page 120

BLANDA has kicked 190 consecutive extra points; 422 points in four years at Oakland and 1561 points in 21 pro years.

	PREDICTIONS

1. Minnesota	1. San Francisco	1. Dallas
2. Detroit	2. Los Angeles	2. St. Louis
3. Green Bay	3. Atlanta	3. Washington

4. New Orleans

T his year as the National Football League moves into its 52d season, one thing makes it different from the first 51: the prospect of six close pennant races.

4. Chicago

Not long ago this was a twodivision league, with at most two races. For many years, in fact, it was a one-division league.

In 1970, for the first time, there were six NFL divisions; but as hostilities began last September, the pennant races did not seem uniformly competitive. For example, it was widely believed 12 months ago that, in three of the six divisions, Dallas, Minnesota and Cleveland would run away from their pursuers.

In the happening, it didn't work out quite that way. Only one of the three, Minnesota, breezed. Dallas labored, and Cleveland fell. But last year the thing that was different, by comparison with today, was the leaner sense of anticipation. Today, in the six divisions, you expect six fights.

So this is what 1971 in profootball is all about.

Typical NFL mysteries this year are visible in the East, both varieties, NFC and AFC, where the fighting could last all year.

At first glance, the Dallas Cowboys might seem to be the class of the NFC East, but their quarterback problems bring them back to St. Louis, Washington and New York. Though the Cowboys have been equipped with the league's stoutest defense, they have not shown enough offense lately to count on outscoring the Cardinals or Redskins or even the Giants.

4. New York

5. Philadelphia

The offensive impotence of the Cowboys was nationally exhibited in the playoffs last winter when they were all out to overwhelm Detroit, 5-0. Later, they scored only one touchdown in the Super Bowl. They are a known quantity. By contrast, St. Louis and Washington, under new coaches, have unknown potential. A hot year for either will dislodge Dallas.

In the AFC East, the competition is even more severe. The three contenders have suffered the three hardest blows in the league this year—John Unitas' injury in Baltimore, George Sauer's defection from the New York Jets and Joe Theismann's flight from Miami tightening up a close race.

The two Central Divisions have likewise set the stage for trouble. In the NFC Central, the top two, Minnesota and Detroit, can be placed one-two in the NFL's pre-season rankings. The Vikings, like Dallas, must prove that they have championship quarterbacking; but otherwise, this is pro football's solid team. By comparison, Detroit has more brilliance in more positions—and Detroit has a quarterback, too, Greg Landry, the NFL comer at his position.

It is uncertain which of them can beat the other, Detroit or Minnesota, but each ought to be favored in all remaining starts.

In the AFC Central, the team solving its quarterback puzzle (Cleveland or Cincinnati) should have the inside track. A healthy Greg Cook could put Cincinnati in, and Virgil Carter might, unless Bill Nelsen comes back at Cleveland or Mike Phipps takes charge. The best bet of the four is Nelsen.

Both Western Divisions are full of fight again. San Francisco seems smoothest in the NFC West, but Los Angeles has Roman Gabriel. This race, indeed, is like that in the NFC Central. San Francisco has Detroit's brilliance. Los Angeles and Minnesota seem more substantial.

In the AFC West, the fighters again are Oakland, Kansas City and San Diego plus Denver. The team that eventually beats the other three in this division will be the one with the most quarterbacking consistency and the most injury luck.

In the last days before the first games of 1971, the AFC West seems the most competitive of the NFL's six divisions. As a committee of one, I can't pick the winner. There is no way I will be surprised by the eventual champion. Assuming it's Oakland (the defending champion), the AFC could well be represented in the playoffs this winter by the Raiders, Browns, Jets and Colts.

The Jets are the pick here in the AFC East. If the Colts are the second-place team in the playoffs it will be because the Western contenders kill each other off. The Browns are the Central choice for no better reason than a doubt that Paul Brown's Cincinnati expansion team can repeat.

In the NFC, the four playoff representatives could be repeaters from last year—the Vikings, Lions, 49ers and Cowboys. Minnesota is the most certain of the four, as either champion or runnerup in the NFC Central, probably champion. San Francisco and Dallas are less likely champions of West and Central.

The Jets and Vikings are picked to win the championships of the two conferences. Both have been in the Super Bowl before, and experience is an advantage in getting there. (Three of the NFL's 26 teams—Green Bay, Kansas City and Baltimore—have made the Super Bowl twice. Sixteen of the 26 have never made it.)

Otherwise, 1971 will be remembered as the year of the new coach. Of pro football's 26 head coaches, who 12 months ago were running NFL camps, nine have departed—most of them by request.

The job, in other words, is so hazardous in this era of increasing Super Bowl pressures that the casualty rate was 35 per cent in one year.

A recent survey showed that in terms of field leadership, the NFL has become a restless league all around. In addition to nine new coaches, there are 50 new assistant coaches.

These 59 changes represent a turnover rate of 38 per cent in less than a year—probably the highest in America for any profession except those affected by such economic pressures as the depression and automation.

Of the nine new NFL coaches, four are in the AFC, five in the NFC. They were recruited as follows:

- Two were hired away from other NFL staffs. Bob Hollway, a Minnesota assistant, went to St. Louis. Ed Hughes, a 49er assistant, was named by Houston.
- Two assistants were promoted by their own teams, John Mazur of Boston and Nick Skorich of Cleveland.
 - Two college coaches were brought in, Tommy Prothro of UCLA (by Los Angeles) and Dan Devine of Missouri (by Green Bay).

• George Allen went from Los Angeles to Washington. Sid Gillman of San Diego went back into coaching. J.D. Roberts went from a New Orleans farm to the Saints.

CRAIG MORTON passed for Dallas' TD in Super Bowl. Completed 102 in '70.

MINNESOTA VIKINGS

H. P. "BUD" GRANT, Coach. Assistants: Bus Mertes, John Michels, Jerry Burns, Jack Patera, Neil Armstrong, Jocko Nelson.

PREDICTION-1st

In the fifth year of Bud Grant, the Minnesota Vikings have already become what the old Minnesota Gophers used to be under Bernie Bierman—perennially the team to beat. This is an interesting echo to ancient history. Gopher opponents of the 1930s used to fear the Minneapolis machine in exactly the same sense that Viking opponents fear it.

The Vikings, like the Gophers under Bierman, are "percentage fighters," in the phrase of Bill McGrane, whose father once covered the Gophers. Grant's offense "attacks carefully, with a hard-nosed attention to detail." The defense is "not satisfied just to attack people. It overwhelms them." So did the Gophers.

There was very little color, comedy, drama or excitement to the Minnesota attack against, say, Michigan in the old days. On the contrary, the Gophers deliberately took the drama out—they deliberately cut down and buried a Tom Harmon. The reputation of Harmon as a football player, if it depended on his games against Minnesota, would not have hurdled the boundaries of Washtenaw County.

The Vikings, too, make sure that nobody makes All-Proagainst them.

On offense the Gophers plodded and the Vikings plod. Here's Grant, today, using words that Bierman might have used:

"Some teams are willing to bet it all every time they get the ball. They feel they have to get something on the board. We might take the ball and punch it out to the 35 or 38-yard line and then punt it down into the other end and tell the defense to get it back."

There could not be a larger difference in philosophy between Grant and, for example, Tommy (Big Play) Prothro of Los Angeles than Grant indicates in the following evaluation of his 1970 team:

"I guess a lot of teams had bigger yardage and bigger average by gambling—by taking chances. In a given situation, we might be looking for a first down and possession. They might be looking for 40 yards on one play and a chance to get back in the game. One thing about the big averages: they don't show all of the fumbles and interceptions and other mistakes that go along with them."

When this is a coach's philosophy, his team is not likely to entertain. Football clubs that get 40 yards on one play are more interesting to watch than those just "looking for a first down and possession." But it is unfortunately true that Grant's way is more likely to win than the bigplay way. Grant's approach is similar to that of the late Vince Lombardi and to that of George Allen. Big-play coaches have more trouble winning.

The chief asset of the Vikings, of course, is not their ball-control offense but their smothering defense, particularly their frontfour rush and their zone-defense philosophy. This is one of the league's two best defensive teams and it has some figures to prove the point:

In each of the last two years, the Vikings have finished 12-2 in the standings, the finest won-lost record in the pros. They outpointed those opposing them, 714 to 276, in 1969-70. In Grant's four seasons with the Vikings, they have won three Central Division titles, one Western Conference title and one NFL title.

As a football coach, Grant has finally reached that exalted point where he must not only win again in 1971, but win the Super Bowl in the end, or fall victim to the charge that he "can't win the big one."

This is the melancholy refrain that accompanies all winners (Tom Landry, Don Shula, Al Davis, George Allen) who are outgunned in the final championship game. It is meaningless—but it is heard. Grant will hear it this year if he doesn't win.

Accordingly, this is the year of a big push in Minnesota, and the Vikings have never seemed more ready for a decisive charge than they are now. They have added a fine quarterback, Norman Snead from Philadelphia, who might be the Y.A. Tittle of the 1970s. And defensively, their key players still have obvious youth at the same time they have achieved extreme unity.

The heart of Minnesota is the front four: ends Carl Eller and Jim Marshall, tackles Alan Page and Gary Larsen. Individually, few are excelled at their positions in the conference; together they are extraordinary. They are the most compelling reason why Minnesota usually wins.

The linebackers, Roy Winston, Lonnie Warwick and Wally Hilgenberg, "have discipline, intelligence and experience," as Grant says, "and they've got one more thing going for them—unity. You never see one but what you see all three of them. They hunt and fish together, they socialize together, they talk football together."

Seeking speed in the secondary, Grant has moved Charlie West to a corner, teaming with Bobby Bryant — and leaving Steady Eddie Sharockman in reserve. Karl Kassulke has been coming strong at strong safety. Paul Krause is among the most reliable of football's free safeties.

The only defensive weakness is depth at linebacker. Neither the line nor secondary has this problem. Grant feels he is first in the league in reserve linemen with Paul Dickson and last year's No. 1 draft choice, John Ward, and first in secondary depth with Sharockman and Dale Hackbart.

Offensively there is less brilliance, perhaps, but no lack of the similar "hard-nosed types" that Grant prefers and that Bierman preferred, using another cliche. Grant's runners would be typical of any good Bierman team: Dave Osborn, Oscar Reed, Bill Brown, even Clinton Jones. The only one with style is Jones, who nonetheless lists as a power runner. Rookie Lee Hayden, from Ohio State, is another Jones.

The quarterback last year was Gary Cuozzo, a fine passer. Grant's intimates say he is privately hoping Snead takes over.

NORM SNEAD, a fine field general, was obtained from Philadelphia Eagles.

GARY CUOZZO one of a tested trio, gives Minnesota quarterback depth. Gary clicked with 128 aerials for 1720 yards and bag of 7 TDs. Ranked 11th in NFC.

If this position is somewhat in doubt, the candidates are mature and skilled.

Of Minnesota's wide receivers, Grant is completely happy only with Gene Washington, who combines good speed and fair moves with a knack for timely high jumping. On the other side, the Vikes now have Al Denson, from Denver. John Henderson may be underrated by the Minnesota coaches because he is not a born sprinter. Chances are that if Washington were a step faster, Henderson would seem fast enough. Bob Grim is in reserve.

Grant has this to say of his blockers, (tackles Ron Yary, Grady Alderman, Doug Davis; guards Milt Sunde, Jim Vellone, Ed White, and center Mick Tingelhoff):

"Much of the intelligence on our football team is centered in the offensive line."

Of Yary, Grant says: "If he isn't already the best offensive tackle in the game, he's mighty close."

These statements jibe with those of Minnesota's opponents. Yary is apparently the coming superstar blocker of football, a man who, like Gene Hickerson of Cleveland or Forrest Gregg of Green Bay, will make the All-Star lists routinely each winter. And the key to Minnesota's offense as a whole is sophisticated blocking. Intelligence is not only expected but required of a Grant lineman, ironically compensating for the lack of brilliance in the attack.

In conformance with the adage that good teams have good kicking, Minnesota's Fred Cox ranks with the more consistent field goal men active today. The No. 3 quarterback, Bob Lee, has been the punter, although Grant will try to get more distance out of rookie Ken Duncan.

Minnesota starts its 11th NFL year with a record of 64-69-7. Most of the 69 are mementoes of the Norm Van Brocklin era. In any case, this is the last year that Minnesota will ever be an under .500 team (lifetime)—at least in the Grant era. He could make Minnesotans forget Bernie Bierman, and there was a day not long ago when that thought was unthinkable.

THE BEST FOOTBALL GAME CANNOT BE PURCHASED IN A RETAIL STORE

IG★KICKING★DEFENSE★COACHII

Season after season, STRAT-O-MATIC PRO FOOT-BALL has been sold to thousands of football fans exclusively through the mail. But why you ask? Each year our football game is totally revised to reflect precisely the most up-to-date pro football statistics.

STRAT-O-MATIC offers such a current authentic reproduction of pro-football and such a wide selection of games and individual team combinations, that it is impossible for a retail store to supply our fans.

In business since 1961, the quality and reliability of STRAT-O-MATIC PRO FOOTBALL speaks for itself in the fact that we have continued to sell out all our previous editions.

In our 1971-1972 edition, STRAT-O-MATIC presents you once again with the finest in pro football realism. The passing, running, kicking and defensive play of 1,000 pro football players is astonishingly reproduced from the stadium into your home.

Only individual player cards truely reflect each offensive player's real-life characteristics . . . and STRAT-O-MATIC HAS IT! Other games use a team rating system in lieu of individual player cards, but this method fails to capture the excitement and talents of the players. In Strat-O-Matic, both the stars and the second stringers will perform according to their true abilities.

Each player's strengths and weaknesses are measured in STRAT-O-MATIC. For example, a quarterback who has a high pass completion record but does not throw a good long pass will function exactly the same way in STRAT-O-MATIC. A halfback who has a good yard per carry average but fails to pick up the "tough yardage" will perform similarly in STRAT-O-MATIC.

STRAT-O-MATIC is actually two games in one . . . an elementary game for 11 to 16 year olds and an advanced game for adults. The elementary version is EASY and EXCITING to play. The advanced version includes a never-before visual dimension found in no other statistically oriented football game. You set up and manuever your defenses on a colorful playing board, enabling both coaches to see the strengths and weaknesses of their defenses. This dimension allows you to not only call a blitz but to see it in action! More strategy moves are possible with Strat-O-Matic than any other football game. Without hesitation, we recommend STRAT-O-MATIC PRO FOOTBALL'S 1971-1972 edition to be without equal.

PREDICTION-2nd

O f the 26 teams in the NFL, it is possible that the Detroit Lions are the most brilliant. It is probable that they are the team of the 1970s. They are a team with more quality at most positions than probably any other.

At draft time in all the recent winters, a combination of savvy and luck has made Detroit into a potential powerhouse.

As of the 1971 season, this young powerhouse may not quite get to the top. In terms of 1971, it has three problems, which are in the following order of importance:

1—The Lions are in the same division with Bud Grant and Minnesota. There are few coaches in Grant's class today, and he has a great team under him.

2—Detroit's only personnel weakness (by comparison with Minnesota) is in the defensive line—and this is not the best place to rank behind Minnesota or any other power.

3—The Lions are not yet a mature team. Rather, they are definitely not as mature as they are going to seem in another couple of years. This is evident at several key positions and it is conspicuous at quarterback.

Greg Landry, Detroit's young quarterback find, is starting his fourth year in the NFL; but he is only 24, and moreover he has yet to put in a full season as a pro. He started 1970 as the No. 2 man behind Bill Munson.

Landry, however, is a quarterback of unsurpassed potential. He is a man who, as they say, can do it all. At 6-4, he has the height that has been seen to be essential for a quarterback since the advent of Roman Gabriel, and in addition he has many of the skills and much of the speed of an NFL running back. Only one quarterback in the NFC today (Roger Staubach of Dallas) is a better runner than Landry.

GREG LANDRY hands off to ALTIE TAYLOR who rushed for 666 yards in '70. Landry, who is considered one of the most promising in pros, completed 83 passes.

Landry, finally, throws the ball well, calls the plays well and leads the troops well. Perhaps all of this should be qualified—the young man hasn't been around long enough to make any evaluation of him stand up 100 per cent in a court of law—but he does seem to have what it takes to play quarterback on a championship team.

If he is not quite a pin-point marksman on the 40-yard home run, he has company today in that weakness. Even Sonny Jurgensen and Joe Namath complete few bombs any more.

Landry symbolizes the Detroit team: young, strong, clever. He is surrounded by perhaps more brilliance than any other quarterback can boast of.

The Detroit talent department starts with Mel Farr, Altie Taylor, Steve Owens and Nick Eddy in the backfield. It includes a tight end, Charley Sanders, and a wide end, Earl McCullouch. And defensively, it includes a great cornerman, Lem Barney: three rough linebackers, Paul Naumoff, Mike Lucci Wayne Walker, and tackle Alex Karras. And generally speaking, the other Lions, except in the front tour, are in that class.

Dick LeBeau, for instance, is a wise cornerback. Mike Weger has been a Detroit find at safety. And with Barney and safetyman Tommy Vaughn, they constitute one of the NFL's prize secondaries.

The linebackers are a blend of everything you want in that department: Naumoff, the young (26) bull; Walker, the creative 33-year-old veteran, and Lucci, one of the NFL's great middle linebackers.

The problems, which really aren't serious, are in the defensive line, where the four players are merely competent. From left, they are Joe Robb, 34, or Jim Mitchell, 23; Karras, 36; Jerry Rush, 28, and Larry Hand, 31.

The offensive line, by comparison, is one of the finest in the league, pivoting on center Ed Flanagan, who is flanked by guards Chuck Walton and Frank Gallagher and tackles Roger Shoals and Rockne Freitas.

At the five touchdown positions, Detroit can combine runners Farr and Taylor with catchers Sanders, McCullouch and Larry Walton, with Landry at quarterback, backed up by the 30-year-old veteran, Munson.

Coach Joe Schmidt, as of the start of training camp, is listing Farr and Owens at fullback. One of the possibilities is that, if both men avoid injuries, Farr will run some at halfback in the same backfield with Owens. In any case, they and Taylor will all play, and it is inconceivable that Eddy will be anything but a participant. The four of them add up to a greatly gifted backfield department if all escape injuries.

In the recent past, this has been an injury-plagued backfield, which is a fact that doesn't necessarily foretell the future.

As a leader, Schmidt is one of NFL's least-experienced coaches, but he has pretty well proved in the last couple of years that he has the understanding of a seasoned coach. Despite an unsettled quarterback situation, Schmidt has posted records of 9-4-1 and 10-4 in these two seasons. Moreover, he reached the Super Bowl tournament last December and only lost (in Dallas) because of the inexperience of his players, including his young quarterback, under championship pressure. It takes a year or two to accommodate to that kind of pressure. Even Vince Lombardi lost his first grab for the brass ring.

It's time to acknowledge that Schmidt is a football coach. For one thing, he has no illusions about his problem area—the defensive line.

Last year, Schmidt admits, "we tackled the other team's quarterback only 23 times in 14 games. We must improve our penetration and at the same time eliminate anything that gives the other guy more time to spot his receivers."

Continuing, Schmidt says: "We were the No. 1 team in the NFC at stopping the rush. Same thing in the passing department. We intercepted 28 passes to tie for the top. But we gave the passer too much time to throw the ball."

It will be a long-range project to change this trend, Schmidt says, pointing out: "We completely reversed ourselves in the draft (this year). Four of our first five selections were defensive players. Fact is, when we picked defensive tackle Bob Bell from Cincinnati, it was the first time in 14 years, dating all the way back to 1958, that we pulled out a defensive player as a first round choice."

Thus the draft has been adopted by Detroit as the remedy. And the draft remedy takes a lot of time.

"Not that we expect rookies to move right in," says Schmidt, "and replace great veterans like Karras, Robb, Walker, LeBeau and others who have been around for a spell. But by accenting the defense in the draft, we feel we have come up with young players who can be groomed this season to move in for some action in 1971 and be ready for bigger things a year or so from now."

MEL FARR, 7th among NFC running backs, hit for 717 yards on 166 tries.

The rookie candidates for the defensive line include, besides Cincinnati's Bell, Tony Terry of USC and Larry Woods of Tennessee State. A new linebacker, Charlie Weaver of USC, is being counted on to move in for Walker some time in the next five yeas.

Detroit's kicking game satisfies Coach Schmidt.

"We are in fine shape in the kicking department," he says, "with (place-kicker) Errol Mann scoring 101 points (in 1970) for the second straight year and hitting from all distances with great accuracy. Herman Weaver (the Detroit punter) came to us as a rookie last year. He really came along and wound up with a 40yard average with very good hang-time on his punts. He hung 'em up so good that of his 62 punts, only 20 were returnedand even then for an average distance of less than four yards."

Schmidt is confident. Detroit is ready. As the NFL heads into the 1970s, there are more than 20 franchises that would trade with Detroit today—squad for squad.

GREEN BAY PACKERS

PREDICTION-3rd

of the 13 NFC clubs last year, the Green Bay Packers ranked 13th in passing. For a team with Bart Starr at quarterback, this seems highly unlikely, but it happened, and one reason was Starr's injury. As for 1971, Starr's physical condition at the age of 37 provides one of the two big unknowns about Green Bay. The other is Dan Devine's coaching.

Devine, from Missouri, is one of a pair of college coaches jumping to pro ball this season. (He joins Tommy Prothro, the Rams' ex-UCLA leader, as the only college coaches to enter the NFL since Sid Gillman in 1955.) By every reckoning possible, Devine is an exceptional coach; but pro ball is different. And until Devine proves he can handle pro ball, he remains a question mark.

During 23 years with the amateurs, Dan made an enviable won-lost record (120-40-8)third best in the nation. By reputation he is a devoted fundamentalist and strict disciplinarian, meaning that he at least understands the philosophy of winning in the pro league. But by comparison with his collegiate competition, the pro variety is hip deep in fundamentals and discipline-particularly in Devine's division, where Dan will have his troubles stealing a march on Bud Grant.

For example, the Vikings will be hard to wear down, and this is a fact Devine will shortly bump into. The other day, speaking of his plans to lash the Packers into peak physical condition, Devine said:

"I've never coached a team that didn't pride itself on owning the fourth quarter and I expect this team to feel the same way."

Minnesota also feels that way.
The schedule and quarterback
Starr will have more to do with Devine's immediate future, no doubt, than Packer conditioning.

The new coach has drawn a difficult October schedule. Although he can start 3-0 against the Giants, Broncos and Bengals, his next four games include Detroit twice, Minnesota and Los Angeles. And subsequently, the Packers draw Minnesota again and St. Louis. This is not a championship schedule for a rookie coach.

As for Starr, there isn't a cannier or more courageous quarterback in the game today, there isn't a better field general and there are few better passers. But as Starr will admit, he hasn't lately proved that he can go 14 games.

Behind Starr, the Packers have Zeke Bratkowski, who has been reactivated again this year—at the age of 39.

There is a sophomore quarterback, Frank Patrick of Nebraska, who stands 6-7, and there is a rookie, Scott Hunter of Alabama, the sixth draft choice.

After a four-year investment in Don Horn, the Packers have traded him away. Horn was recruited by the late Vince Lombardi, who had high hopes for him, but the youngster last year completed only 37 per cent of 76 passes.

The Green Bay backfield this year, Devine expects, will combine Donny Anderson with the first draft choice, John Brockington of Ohio State, 6-1, 225. History suggests that Ohio State fullbacks are less than sensational as pros, but Brockington may be an exception.

BART STARR gets set to pass as Chargers' Bob Bruggers (56) takes off on dive bombing missions. The Packer veteran completed 140 for 1645 yards, 8 TDs.

Perry Williams, a very good one who has been in this business two years, may not let Brockington beat him out.

The greatest Packers alive today and playing on their offensive team are Carroll Dale, the flanker, and guard Gale Gillingham. Dale, 33, is an example of a pro who gets better with age. He kept the Packers in business last year. Other candidates for receiving positions are John Spilis and Jack Clancy. At tight end, John Hilton is still ahead of last year's top draft choice, Rich McGeorge.

Gillingham is the big man in a rebuilt line which includes center Ken Bowman, tackles Francis Peay and Dick Himes and the other guard, Bill Lueck.

Lionel Aldridge was on the defensive line last year with Bob Brown, Mike McCoy and Clarence Williams. But in the offseason, the Packers traded a quarterback (Horn) to get a well-regarded defensive lineman from Denver, Alden Roche. Kevin Hardy, injury-plagued throughout his career, was dealt to San Diego.

From both lines, the famous Packer stars of yesteryear have largely disappeared. Forrest Gregg finally threw it in this winter after 13 years and Devine is not even bringing him back as a coach. Previously, the Packers had lost the Willie Davises, the Henry Jordans, the Kramers, the Skoronskis and the Kostelniks that Lombardi had welded together to bring Green Bay three NFL titles in a row.

Some of the new men may be players of more ability than the departed heroes. McCoy, for example, certainly has a large future to match his 285 pounds. But the winning ingredient of the old Packer lines was unity. Even where they were not players of unsurpassed skills, they worked together like a machine. They were a machine. And this is what Green Bay has mainly lost and what Devine must mainly rebuild.

He starts, unfortunately, with two question marks in the three linebacking positions. It may be giving Ray Nitschke the worst of it to call him a question mark in the middle, but he is 34 years old. Before Devine departs the Packer environment, later in the '70s or '80s, he will almost certainly be obliged to develop a new middle linebacker. And replacing Nitschke will not be simple. In his prime he was one of the greatest, and he is not too far past his prime today.

The other question mark is Dave Robinson. At 30, Dave is still an All-Pro in ability, but he is coming back from achilles tendon surgery. Although the achilles tear was disastrous to Robinson's career, it need not be fatal. The point is that until he plays a few games, nobody will know about Robinson, and that's a shame. The NFL in his time has not fielded a more magnificent outside linebacker.

Fred Carr, however, is now coming up as one of the young geniuses in this position. At 6-5, Carr has the new height the coaches want at outside linebacker, and after three years in the league he now has some of the experience. Carr started slowly as a pro. There's a lot to learn for a youngster; and besides, Lombardi always wanted him at tight end. The great coach never had a great tight end—but that was not Carr's position. He is now in position. And with him on the field, Packer linebacking can hardly be judged weak.

DONNY ANDERSON averaged 3.8 on ground, punted 81 times, 40.8 Avg.

CARROLL DALE, 12-year vet, snared 49 aerials for 814 yards, pair of TDs.

WILLIE WOOD, 5-10 and 190 All-Pro, is veteran of 12 years at defensive back.

The secondary, as a unit, is the best thing about the 1971 defense in Green Bay. And in fact, it's the best of Devine's departments.

The Packers last year pulled in a fine new rookie cornerman, Ken Ellis. It is possible indeed that they fished in two ace cornermen, including Al Matthews, and they also have Bob Jeter there.

At safety there is the usual strength with Doug Hart and Willie Wood. In Packer publicity this spring Coach Devine (who doubles as general manager and runs a taut ship) authorized the use of the phrase "the incomparable Willie Wood." That just about sums up Willie—if you don't mind understatements.

So the Packers have some genius left on defense—Wood, Ellis, Robinson, Carr, Aldridge, McCoy and others. And with a healthy Starr they yield to none at quarterback. But this isn't the Green Bay team that made Lombardi famous.

Devine, when he took the job, may not have realized how much the club has changed. If the Packers are to bump Minnesota and Detroit this year, or any

CHICAGO BEARS

PREDICTION-4th

T hose who studied the Chicago Bears closely last year were persuaded that this is one of the NFL's most improved teams. It's possible that the Bears need only two things to contend this season in the NFC's Central Division. The first is the joint collapse of Minnesota and Detroit; the second is the establishment of a straight-throwing take-charge quarterback.

In other words, the main thing wrong with the Bears is that the Vikings and Lions are too impressive. But even if the Vikes and Lions fall back a little, the Bears still need a leader. Bobby Douglass, their southpaw, is a top quarterback in most respects. He has the size and mind for the job; but he doesn't quite have the arm. Jack Concannon knows how to win, but as a passer Jack probably ranks a bit behind Douglass.

George Halas, the owner, and Jim Dooley, his coach, probably should have seen some time ago that it was mandatory to seek out another quarterback. But Douglass is so close to the real article (like Marty Domres in San Diego) that it's only human to procrastinate and hope for the best.

In 1971, the Bears are coming up to the third year they've invested in Douglass. He'll show a little more this season, most likely, and so they'll invest a fourth and maybe a fifth year by and by. Meantime, Concannon is there, and dying to play, and playing pretty well when they do call him in. And so the Bears go along, from week to week and year to year, as a not-quite team still hoping for the best.

Defense is the Bears' bag, but defensively last year they wound up only 11th in a 13-team conference. They were 12th against the pass. But so awesome is middle linebacker Dick Butkus, even with injuries, that the Bears were fourth in defense against the rush. On offense, they were the eighth best NFC passing team, but they were dead last running ball, and dead last in total offense.

So where have they improved? To begin with, Gale Sayers is back. It was Sayers' injury that spun the Bears to the bottom of the board offensively last year. Second, Butkus is also back from off-season surgery. His knee wasn't quite what it should have been last year; the ligaments had been loosening up on him for 13 or 14 years. Third, statistics never tell an in-depth story; the Bears were better than their record in 1970 (6-8, for a share of the Central cellar). And fourth, they have been quietly gathering some good personnel in the last few years, some potential stars who can be expected to make a unified contribution finally this fall.

BOBBY JOE GREEN, 12-year vet, was 4th among NFC punters on 40.9 norm.

DICK GORDON topped NFL receivers with 71 for 1026 yards; 13 touchdowns.

GALE SAYERS as a wide receiver, is key man in Bears' bid for honors.

Dick Gordon, for example, was a sixth draft choice out of Michigan State in 1965, the year Chicago drafted Butkus and Sayers 1-2. Had Gordon been selected by a team with a John Unitas or Roman Gabriel throwing, he might today be as famous as Sayers and Butkus. In any case, as a wide receiver, he has much of their ability, as he proved last fall when he caught 71 to lead both conferences. Gordon's yardage and touchdown totals in 1970 were 1026 and 13, and he is not a one-year flash. A man who can catch 71 passes on that team is genuine.

The Bears also have three other competent veteran catchers (Jim Seymour of Notre Dame, underrated George Farmer of UCLA and shifty Linzy Cole of TCU) but to build a solid winner in Chicago, they should probably team Gordon and Sayers as wide receivers this fall. Sayers' second crippling injury in three years knocked him out of football last season, in September. As a halfback, he will always attract a crowd. As a wide receiver, he would at least start most plays in the open. He would last longer out there. Although the Bears have not indicated a position change for Sayers, they have to be thinking about it.

They drafted backs this winter 1-2, Joe Moore and James Harrison, the Missouri backfield last fall. With Moore, Ron Bull and others, they can be adequate in the backfield with Sayers at end. They're also adequate in the offensive line with Howard Mudd, Bob Hyland, Jim Cadile, Rich Coady, Glen Holloway and other familiar blockers.

Add up their offensive personnel and key it to Sayers and Gordon at ends, with a Joe Moore of presumed skills in the backfield, and the Bears could be a threat offensively if they could design a new kind of attack for Douglass. He doesn't have the look of a man who could ever take a team to the championship with dropback passes. This is a classic situation for a rollout offense, which might be the Bears' best chance this year; it's hard to think of anything else that could surprise Minnesota or Detroit.

Douglass, who has the obvious tools to run a rollout offense, would be able to keep the weakside defense honest with either Savers or Gordon over thereand he has the personal strength to deliver the throwback pass that way. If it seems that he would be risking injury unnecessarily as a running quarterback, here are two comments: (a) Douglass was a dropback paser last year when he broke his hand: (b) if Douglass goes down, Concannon is another good candidate for the quarterback's job in an unconventional pro offense.

Defensively, the Bears are a team playing the game the way it should be played. They're hungry, mean and unified. They play defense as a team, as if they're having fun. This, no doubt, is the Butkus influence. The probability is that Butkus today is the single most dominating force in the league.

Any two outside linebackers would look good on the same team with Butkus-but the fact is that on this club, Doug Buffone and Lee Roy Caffey help make Butkus look good. As a group, these three rank with the better linebacking combinations in NFL ball today.

The Bears still get a good rush out of their defensive line, Ed O'Bradovich, George Seals, Bill Staley, Willie Holman, Harry Gunner, Jimmy Gunn and the others. But it is unity of play that makes the Bears successful on defense. They've played George Halas defense now for the better part of a half century.

Coach Dooley remains hopeful for more progress this season built on his 1970 foundation.

"We finished on the upbeat last season," Dooley reminds. "In our last six games, we won three decisively, and the three we lost were by a total of only five points. And all of that happened at a stage of the schedule when we were out of it, with no special incentive beyond pride and morale. I think it was a great satisfaction that the team didn't just play out the spring but actually stayed 'up' for six straight week-ends."

JOE MOORE, 6-1, 205 rookie from Missouri, helps build backfield strength.

JACK CONCANNON, 8-year vet, hit on 194 in 385 tries for 2130 yards; 16 TDs.

Six Bears in all were on the injured reserve list for the last game of 1970—Staley, Sayers, Randy Jackson, Bob Wallace and Jim Hester, all knees, and Douglass, hand. Sayers played in portions of only two games, and has undergone two knee operations in three years. Minus Sayers, however, the Bears managed some brilliance again carrying the ball—on kicks.

Cecil Turner scored four touchdowns on kickoffs, tying the NFL record. He and Ron Smith made an effective kickrunning team throughout the year. Bobby Joe Green remains one of the NFC's great punters. The FG specialist is Mac Percival.

Almost certainly, the Bears can't catch Minnesota this year, or Detroit either. But they can keep building the foundation for a surge sometime soon.

SAN FRANCISCO 49ers

PREDICTION-1st

F or several years, the San Francisco 49ers have been considered one of the NFL's top four or five teams. The only difference last year was that they proved it.

As for this year, they should only improve. They have the essentials needed to repeat as the NFC's Western Division champion, namely a winning quarterback, John Brodie, and a smooth defensive team.

There isn't a weak spot in San Francisco's defensive 11, and few other pro clubs today can make that statement.

Therefore, it should be another interesting year for the 49ers, who have moved into the big leagues finally, putting behind the last of the 30,000 crowds that have long plagued them at Kezar Stadium. (With a championshipbound team, the 49ers averaged only 44,000 at home last year and drew only 41,000 for Atlanta last December—a minor league total.)

The Prospectors are now at home in Candlestick Park, the playground of the Giants; and whereas Candlestick ranks as the worst of America's new stadiums, it is at least new. What's more, it has been decked out with an Astroturf carpet, the first artificial field in California, which supposedly doesn't need one. (It never rains in California, does it?)

Finally, the 49ers have been pleased to announce that they have kicked all the politicians and wives out of their press box, as of 1971. At Kezar, there were times when there were more women than reporters in the press section. The new football press box at Candlestick, seating 150, can be reached only by elevator and will be restricted to workers.

These changes on top of the championship last season—the 49ers' first division title in a quarter century—have created a warm feeling in San Francisco, whose citizens are certain that Brodie can do it again. So is Brodie, and so are the other players. Optimism is suddenly rife up there. By April 15, 40,000 season tickets had been sold. Candlestick today will only seat 45,000, pending the completion of the top deck in 1972 when capacity will be about 60,000. Kezar holds 59,000.

It was their new coach, Dick Nolan, who in his third year led the 49ers to the title last fall. Their record (10-3-1) was the best in San Francisco's history in the NFL, and Nolan has discovered four reasons for this: Brodie, blocking, clutch defense and the improvement in the special teams.

"We expect another fine year from Brodie," says Nolan. "There's no doubt he is one of the best two or three quarterbacks in the game."

Brodie in 1970 completed 59 per cent of his passes, threw only 10 interceptions in 14 games and delivered 24 touchdown passes.

The blocking of his offensive line (coupled with Brodie's savvy as a ball-ditching passer when rushed) enabled the 49ers to set

JOHN BRODIE provides winning touch at quarterback for San Francisco's bid to remain on top. John hit on 223 passes for 2941 yards and 24 TD's in '70.

KEN WILLARD, an excellent blocker, also accounted for 789 yards on 236 attempts. He had seven touchdowns. Here he operates against Denver.

a new NFL record when Brodie was sacked only eight times.

The statistical feature of San Francisco's clutch defense is visible in the fact that the front four sacked opposing quarterbacks 30 times, usually when it hurt worst.

As for the improvement of the special teams, there were these changes in 1970 (compared with 1969): from last to first in punt returns and from six field goals to 21. The new punt runner was Bruce Taylor, the new FG man Bruce Gossett.

Backup quarterback Steve Spurrier is also the punter. He is a man who doesn't get much distance, but the height of his punts counterbalances that.

The biggest thing that has happened to the 49ers in the last 10 years is the improvement of their defense. Formerly, they exaggerated offense; but by 1970, they had finished the building of one of the league's outstanding defenses.

For instance, there isn't a better secondary in the league today than San Francisco's with cornerbacks Jimmy Johnson and Bruce Taylor and safetymen Roosevelt Taylor and Mel Phillips. The draft of Bruce-T. and the acquisition of Rosey-T. in a Chicago trade have been the making of the San Francisco team.

Johnson, 33, the 11-year veteran, ranks with any left cornerman in football. Bruce settled into the right corner last fall as if he had designed the position. Rosey is a leader who is up there with the game's better free safeties, and Phillips is a steady strong safety.

The linebacker corps, also rebuilt in two positions, is the youngest of the 49er departments, but has become one of the strengths of the team. There is an All-Pro, Dave Wilcox, on the left side and a mean strongman, Frank Nunley, in the middle, plus an improving right-side backer, Skip Vanderbundt.

Nolan's defensive line is unique. The front four is really a front eight, including the starters, ends Bill Belk and Tommy Hart and tackles Charlie Krueger and Roland Lakes.

But the backup unit logged as much playing time as the starters last year. The ends in this group are Stan Hindman and Cedrick Hardman, the tackles Earl Edwards and Sam Silas.

The improvement of Hardman may mean that the 49ers will have to leave him on the field most of the time this year, but it is likely that Nolan will continue to rotate players in the other positions. The advantage is a fresh performer at all times who can rush over tired blockers to get the passer.

The offensive line is similarly powerful. It pivots on the center with the NFL's most useful size for a center, Forrest Blue, 6-5, 260. The guards are Woody Peoples and Randy Beisler, with Cas Banaszek and Len Rohde at tackle.

Most of the 49ers believe their strongest department is manned by the receivers, including Gene Washington (wide) and Ted Kwalick (tight). Kwalick finally got the hang of pro football late last season and is now on his way to the head of the class. The veteran tight end, another good one, is Bob Windsor.

Washington is excelled today as an NFL receiver by few if any rivals. He has the speed to go deep, the pluck to go inside and the finesse to beat any defensive back in the league, repeatedly. Gene led the NFL last fall in yards gained, 1100, on 53 catches. The other starter is Dick Witcher, a steady veteran.

In the backfield, Ken Willard has never quite fulfilled his promise as a runner but exceeds expectations as a blocker. The 49ers have some talent to pair with Willard, including Doug Cunningham, Bill Tucker and Jimmy Thomas.

For the first time in many seasons, the 49ers did not draft for starters but for depth. For example, Tim Anderson of Ohio State, their first draft choice, plays in the department where they need help the least, the defensive backfield. Tim must wait, barring injury, for Ro Taylor or Jim Johnson to step down. They are 34 and 33.

San Francisco's faith in Bruce Taylor to start last year paid off. Bruce became Rookie of the Year. Twelve months earlier, Gene Washington had been the league's Rookie of the Year. The 49er personnel department keeps guessing right.

Indeed, with all 22 starting positions now filled with gifted people, the 49ers are beginning to set the kind of records you expect of such a team. For example, they tied Detroit last year for first in the NFC in turnovers.

On a table including 49er fumbles and interceptions—compared against the number of times the 49ers recovered fumbles or intercepted passes—they were plus 17 last season. Detroit also finished with a plus 17. Third best in the conference was Minnesota, 13; fourth best was Detroit, 11.

And these were the four NFC teams that made the playoffs.

GENE WASHINGTON snared 53 aerials for dozen TDs and 3rd rank in NFC.

PREDICTION-2nd

In Los Angeles, a new coach, Tommy Prothro, inherits a fine team. The situation is similar in some respects to 1955, when Sid Gillman went to the Rams from a college team (University of Cincinnati). Prothro, a college coach all of his life until he moved out of UCLA this season. was beginning his career as a head coach (at Oregon State) in 1955 when Gillman built a divisional champion in Los Angeles as an NFL rookie. Gillman inherited fine players and improved on them. Prothor likewise has an opportunity to strengthen a winning squad.

It is a squad whose quarterback, Roman Gabriel, is possibly the most valuable athlete in the country, in any sport, considering his age and experience. At 31, Gabriel has done it all—yet he is young enough and strong enough to keep doing it for many more years.

The other obvious asset of the Rams last year, the defense, is now more of a question mark. Prothro, following ancient Ram tradition, in his first act as a pro coach this winter traded away four defensive starters for a bunch of draft choices. He traded them all to Washington—all three linebackers and the right tackle, Diron Talbert.

In addition, safetyman Eddie Meador is talking retirement again; and Prothro, unlike Coach George Allen last year, seems content for Meador to remain retired.

Thus Prothro begins his professional career with five personnel changes on the 11-man defensive team. That's a 45 per cent change—a massive one as those things go in pro football.

Conceivably, the Rams will be more talented defensively with the new men. Conceivably, they will be faster, they may even be more aggressive. But they have lost an extraordinary amount of experience. And in pro ball today, experience is the key to the unit play that is so often of decisive importance. As the coaches say and believe, teamwork has become essential defensively (more so than offensively)—it's better to have harmony and knowhow than great defensive quality—and teamwork comes only with the years.

Prothro has confidence in the defensive alterations he has made, and he has confidence in himself and his young assistants. There won't be a better show this year than the Ram show as Prothro, building on Allen's foundation, puts together what might or might not be a winner, based on a new philosophy. Prothro favors scoring in one play. Allen prefers ball control.

The coaching plan in Los Angeles is unique in the NFL today. Prothro, with pro football's largest staff, assigns four coaches to defense—one more than most teams and twice as many as some. There is, of course, a coach for each department (line, linebackers and secondary) but in addition, Prothro employs a special assignments defensive assistant who might concentrate his attention on just one linebacker today, and with both cornermen tomorrow, or with the right side of the front four.

Offensively, the new Ram staff is even more unconventional. To begin with there are two offensive backfield coaches. One advises the blockers. One coaches the ball-handlers.

In this year of changeover to a young team from one of the most experienced teams in the league, Prothro may be on the right track in loading up on teachers.

At linebacker alone, the Rams have lost about a quarter century of experience. The new middle linebacker, Jack Reynolds, was the No. 1 draft choice a year ago, and Prothro says he is "very high on him," but Jack did not TOMMY PROTHRO, Coach. Assistants: Tom Catlin, Larrye Weaver, Bob McKittrick, Leon McLaughlin, Earnel Durden, Sid Hall, Dick Vermeil, Rich Brooks.

play as a rookie, when Myron Pottios sprinted through his best season as a professional football player.

Of the new outside linebackers, one, Jim Purnell, has had eight years in the league, mostly as a reserve. Last year he played about as often as Maxie Baughan. The other linebacker will be either a rookie or one of last year's reserves (behind Jack Pardee, who played 95 per cent of the time). Prothro would like to see the No. 1 draft choice, Isiah Robertson of Southern, in this position.

Talbert's position in the defensive line is scheduled to go to one of last year's reserves, Rich Cash or Dick Evey, or to Bill Nelson, a 1970 rookie from Oregon State. A candidate named Jack Youngblood, drafted out of Florida this year as one of the Rams' two choices on the first round, "looks like a defensive end," says Prothro.

Three of the four veterans are returning (unless Merlin Olsen retires at 31. He says this will be his last year if he plays.) The defensive ends are Deacon Jones, 32, and Coy Bacon, 28. If the Rams can satisfactorily fill Talbert's shoes, their defensive line will remain one of the strongest in football.

The secondary is somewhat unsettled, although it can be assumed that Clancy Williams will be at left corner again. On the right side, Prothro wants Earsell Mackbee, the former Minnesota starter who went to Los Angeles this winter as a free agent. If Mackbee can fit it (making the position change from left to right) Prothro will move Kermit Alexander to Meador's spot at free safety.

Richie Petitbon, who has been one of football's greatest strong safeties ever since the position was created in the 1950s, returns to the Ram lineup. But there was another candle on Richie's birthday cake this year. In the Ram secondary, what's more, things are not just the way Prothro wants them at any position. (For example, the new coach would like more speed at right corner than either Alexander or Mackbee can provide.) This is the first year in many when there are uncertainties in the Ram defense.

one of 67 kicks that had 39.01 norm.

MERLIN OLSEN, perennial Pro Bowl selection, brings vet savvy to defense.

DEACON JONES, 6-5 and 250, adds formidable power to defense front four.

COY BACON, 6-4 and 270 tackle, is another member of mighty defense.

The offense should always be a factor on any field so long as Gabriel hangs on at quarterback. The veteran runners, however, Lester Josephson and Larry Smith, are too slow to suit Prothro. He has brought in Travis Williams from Green Bay and also plans to use more of Willie Ellison. The runner Prothro drafted first this year, Steve Worster of Texas, is the fullback who made the Longhorn Wishbone famous with straight-ahead dives -but Worster defected to Canada and signed with the Hamilton Tiger Cats.

Jack Snow heads the receiver corps along with promising tight end Bob Klein. The new coaches have made flanker their No. 1 offensive priority, landing Lance Rentzel from Dallas in a trade for Billy Truax and Wendell Tucker. Last year's No. 2 draft choice, Charlie Williams, will get a large chance there.

The offensive line returns with the NFL's most talented blockers. All but the center, Ken Iman, have been voted into the Pro Bowl repeatedly, and Iman has missed only by virture of his size. (He lists at 6-1 and 240 but is not that large.) At tackle, Prothro has Charlie Cowan, Mitch Johnson, and Harry Schuh who was part of a trade with Oakland for Bob Brown, Cowan has allaround excellence. Schuh, 28, a 6-year vet with the Raiders, was a starter as a rookie.

Tom Mack, in his prime at 27. remains the best pulling guard in the league. The other guard, Joe Scibelli, was considered by last year's coach, George Allen, to be the best all-around lineman in the Western Division.

Pat Studstill returns as the punter and, if unhindered by muscle pulls, could be the flanker Prothro is searching for. He has had hamstring problems for years and is now 33. David Ray, the place-kicker, is also a wide receiver. They were both brought to Los Angeles by Allen, who opposes the use of specialists solely as kickers.

Allen's ideas, in fact, brought Los Angeles 49 wins in his five seasons on the coast-an average of 10 a year. That's the act Prothro is following.

DAVID RAY, placekicker and wide receiver, had 121 points, second in NFC.

ATLANTA FALCONS

PREDICTION-3rd

This could be the make or break year for Norm Van Brocklin, coach of the Atlanta Falcons. It's his fourth season in Atlanta, and after raising the Falcons to 6-8 in 1968, Van Brocklin coached them to 4-8-2 last fall. Such a fall-off ominously parallels Van Brocklin's history in Minnesota, where he first developed an apparently solid club in his fourth semester, only to fall off to 4-9-1, and out of a job, in 1966.

As he starts his 10th season as an NFL coach, Van Brocklin owns a lifetime record of 41-76-6 (.350). He is 12-25-2 in Atlanta. Something more is widely expected there shortly.

For the most part, he has rebuilt the team since 1968, installing Van Brocklin-types in as many positions as possible. Aggressive-types, that is. The squad has been deliberately tailored to include just this one kind of player—the kind that aims to prove its manliness on each play. As a result, the Falcons are regarded as one of the most aggressive of NFL teams; but to gain the title with that stlye, the Falcons must win more than the four games they won in 14 starts last season (including two over hapless New Orleans).

Specifically, Van Brocklin has installed a tough little man at quarterback, Bob Berry, favoring him over Randy Johnson, an Atlanta veteran. Randy has seemed to some critics to be the better all-around quarterback. But his atiitude does not recommend Johnson to Van Brocklin, who had the feisty little Berry in Minnesota and still favors his style. Berry is 5-11, somewhat under the average of the better NFL quarterbacks. Johnson is 6-3.

After several years in which Berry and Johnson were technically rivals for the job, Johnson is not listed on the Atlanta roster this season. The Falcons say he has "made the decision either to retire or seek a trade to another team." He is 27 years old.

Berry, 29, will have the position unchallenged, the Falcons say, and that much will benefit both him and the team. An unclouded quarterback picture is the first requisite for winning in NFL ball. Moreover, in their sixth year as an Atlanta enterprise, the Falcons hope they're faster, both in the receiving positions and running the ball. Lack of breakway speed may have been a chief reason Atlanta finished 11th in total offense last year, 12th in pass offense-and even a deep eighth running the ball, which Van Brocklin stressed so heavily. The new speed inNORM VAN BROCKLIN, Coach. Assistants: Marion Campbell, Duane Putnam, Harry Gilmer, Bob Griffin, Fred Bruney, Billy Ray Barnes.

cludes the No. 1 draft choice, halfback Joe Profit of Northeast Louisiana, whose times for the 100 and 40 are 9.5 and 4.5.

Also fast if not a blazing sprinter is the No. 2 choice, wide receiver Ken Burrow of San Diego State. Finally, Van Brooklin could increase speed by making more use of halfback-fullback Paul Gipson, who like quarterback Johnson has more talent than Atlanta playing time.

The strength of the offense in Atlanta is provided at tight end by Jim Mitchell, voted MVP by his teammates last fall when he led the Falcons in catches (44). As Van Brocklin says: "It's a tribute to Mitchell that he was able to do as well as he did when the opponents knew we lacked speed at the outside positions."

JIM MITCHELL, 6-1 and 235 tight end, snared 44 passes for 650 yards, 6 TDs.

The outside men are tough Van Brocklin-types, Paul Flatley and Todd Snyder, who can block and catch the ball but who seldom run it far. Burrow and rookie Ray Jarvis of Norfolk State carry Van Brocklin's hopes, although it isn't easy for rookies to participate in the NFL.

The carefully-cultured Brocklin blackfield in Atlanta includes hard-nosed Harmon Wages and Jim (Cannonball) Butler. Last fall, Butler was the No. 12 NFC rusher, and Wages would have been up there if he hadn't been hurt. There are some indications that Van Brocklin will emphasize speed in the backfield this fall because the Falcon truck horses dropped from third in the conference in 1969 ground-gaining to eighth in 1970. One sign of the times from Van Brocklin on Gipson: "He has the tools to be a great player."

Injuries retarded Atlanta line play last fall and also the harmony needed from a set unit. So many linemen were on the field that Van Brocklin lists 15 candidates today for the five positions, most of them at guard and tackle. Jeff Van Note returns after his first full year at center. Dick Enderle has the edge at one guard and George Kunz at one tackle. Other prospects are Malcom Snider, Randy and Francis Winkler, Bill Sandeman, Bob Breitenstein, Andy Maurer, Gary Roberts and Dave Hettema.

Defensively in 1970, the Falcons finished sixth in the conference, seventh against the run and fifth against the pass. On the average, they yielded 123 yards a game, a better showing than those of St. Louis, San Francisco and Green Bay, all considered NFL powers, present or recent past. Says Van Brocklin: "We have what I feel is soon to be a leading NFL defense."

Each defensive department is led by an athlete of All-Pro class: linebacker Tommy Nobis, defensive end Claude Humphrey and defensive back Ken Reaves. These are players who in addition all have the Van Brocklin verve.

The coach is proudest of his front four, particularly his defensive ends, Humphrey and John Zook, who flank tackles Glen Condren and sophomore Greg Lens. Van Brocklin on the first requirement of a top defensive line: "In Humphrey we have the great one."

There is as much strength at linebacker (Nobis, Don Hansen and Greg Brezina) with more depth. Grady Allen, John Small and others are available. Small, the top draft choice a year ago, was tried in the defensive line at first in an experiment that has been abandoned.

Hansen is one of the NFL's most obviously underrated line-backers, although he and Brezina, both 6-3 and 220, are not conspicuously large for new line-backers these days.

The secondary is the weakest of Atlanta's defensive departments, except for Reaves at left corner. Reaves, a typical Van Brocklin tough guy, is also a finesse cornerman against the pass. He improves each year. Rudy Redmond, a cornerman last year, is expected to be in the lineup somewhere this season, along with Tom McCauley, the 1970 free safety, a converted receiver. The fourth position is open, with Grady Cavness, Tom Hayes and Bob Brown among others in the running.

Nor is the kicking game an Atlanta strong suit, although Billy Lothridge can make the punting a satisfactory area. Billy has led the league in punting twice, but his 1970 average was 38.7. Worse, the place-kicker, Kenny Vinyard, made only nine of 25 field goal attempts. As a player, Van Brocklin was a punter, one of the best of his time. Presumably he will solve whatever special-team problems lurk.

The cheering in Atlanta last fall was largely reserved for the days when the Falcons played intra-division games. They split with champion San Francisco. tied Los Angeles, and swept New Orleans. Says Van Brocklin: "It was encouraging to me that we did so well within our division."

But in a sense, these were all traditional games, and it is axiomatic that the more emotional team does its best work in traditionals. It is also evident that Van Brocklin has structured one of the most emotional of all pro teams. That no longer is the problem in Atlanta, where Van Brocklin has his athletes playing at the top of their game. The problem is how to win day in and day out. Van Brocklin's response to that is not conclusive. Last year, he says, "We were the kind of team which did not have the personnel to dominate anyone. Therefore, we had to make up for lack of offensive punch and over-all speed by being highly aggressive. With that kind of team you usually win close or lose close."

It is the possibility that they might again lose close too often that makes this a nervous year for the Falcons.

NEW ORLEANS SAINTS

PREDICTION-4th

F ootball is an 11-man game, and in the NFL it is played by 40-man squads—except in New Orleans last year, when the Saints, first to last, had 136 different athletes under contract. Fifty-seven of them played in at least one Saints game.

That more or less explains the 1970 Saints.

As for 1971, the outlook is hardly less confused at the site of the NFC's worst franchise. Most of the decisions by the new coach, J.D. Roberts, have been made with an eye to getting New Orleans into contention in the mid-1970s. When the franchise was born (in the mid-1960s) the Saints inaugurated their first five-year plan. Teams building for the future today in pro ball have their problems.

At quarterback, for example, the Saints have come up with one of the brightest prospects in the history of quarterbacking, Archie Manning of Ole Miss. But the gestation period for NFL quarterbacks now is a good 30 to 40 regular-season games. The Saints during the next few years will be unable to protect him physically or mentally-they do not have the resources to protect him. He will be browbeaten physically, intimidated intellectually and booed in New Orleans by ever larger numbers of disappointed fans.

(One definition of a football fan is a man who blames everything on the quarterback.)

So this is Manning's destiny in Louisiana. He is a great athlete (a fine runner and good passer) who, on balance, quite possibly has as much potential as Greg J. D. ROBERTS, Head Coach. Assistants: Charlie Tate, Jim Royer, Marv Matuszak, Ken Shipp, Bud Whitehead, Jim Champion.

Landry or even Joe Namath had or Jim Plunkett has. But in Louisiana he has picked up a stacked deck.

The Saints could have eased his transition somewhat by retaining Bill Kilmer as the veteran quarterback. An even-tempered competitor, Kilmer is the ideal kind of athlete to be playing ahead of a youngster. But the new broom that swept through New Orleans this year swept Kilmer out (along with a variety of other talent, including top-drafted receiver Ken Burrough, runners Andy Livingston and Jim Otis, blocker Errol Linden and defensive tackle Dave Rowe). Manning figures as an instant starter, unless he is beaten out by Edd Hargett, who weighs 185, stands 5-11, was born 23 years ago and advanced to the NFL three years ago.

TOM.DEMPSEY, with JOE SCARPATI holding, sends one of many kicks through uprights as he led Saints in scoring with 70 points on 18 field goals and 16 extra points. The kick was one of four against Detroit, the last a record 63-yarder.

ARCHIE MANNING, quarterback from Ole Miss, is touted as coming star qb.

New Orleans' strongest two departments-backs and receivers-can give Manning a hand. Except medically, there are no problems in the Saints' backfield, where Coach Roberts has Tony Baker, Hoyle Granger and Don McCall. The latter, now 26, starting his second New Orleans tour, is a polished NFL back. The others are even better if they're well. Both are coming off knee operations and whereas some athletes come running from operations, some are more hesitant.

The talent, however, is there. Granger for five years was one of those who made the AFL a fullbacks league. During his Houston days there weren't many fullbacks in the country you'd take ahead of him. Baker, also 225, fits smoothly in New Orleans' bull-elephant backfield. He is a beautiful running machine and, like Granger, only 26 years old. Health permitting the Saints can run.

They can also catch. Danny Abramowicz is the most valuable flanker in the NFC today if you remember to team him with speed on the other side, and Al Dodd, the split end, has at least some of that speed. The two wide receivers, like the veteran backs, are 26. In terms of the new fiveyear plan, the Saints have their ends and backs, if they can keep them going; even at tight end, Dave Parks is now only 29 after all the football he has played. Parks is the smallest of the NFL's tight ends (6-2, 203) but gets the most out of what he has both as a blocker and running the ball.

With Parks, Saints, in effect, have the best of two worlds—both a serviceable tight end and the equivalent of three wide receivers in the same lineup.

The problems start in the offensive line at New Orleans. But Roberts doesn't sound worried.

"Actually," he says, "our offensive line played better the second half of last season. We advanced from 13th in the conference in total offense after seven games to 10th at season's end."

In New Orleans, that, unquestionably, is progress. So maybe Roberts knows something. Pending the start of his first full season, however, the judgment has to be that the jury is out on New Orleans blockers.

In the tentative starting lineup, from left to right, their names are Don Talbert, Jake Kupp, Del Williams, John Shinners and Terry Stoepel. But altogether, 15 candidates are listed for center, guard or tackle, and it might be that they all have an equal chance.

Defensively, the Saints' problem is summed up admirably if quaintly by Coach Roberts as follows: "Last year we couldn't even put pressure on the passer when we called a blitz."

As in the offensive line, there are 15 aspirants for positions in the defensive front four. Those listed as starters, from left, are Richard Neal, Dave Long and DANNY ABRAMOWICZ rated 2nd in NFC receiving, 55 for 906 yards, 5 TDs.

AL DODD led New Orleans club in punt returns (129 yards) and kickoff returns.

Leo Carroll. None is a household name. Mike Tilleman, voted MVP by his teammates last year, was traded to Houston for tackle Glen Ray Hines and linebacker Jess Lewis.

The 6-7 Rowe, who weighs 280, was considered one of New Orleans' better defensive performers last year by more than one opponent. Roberts jolted the league the day he traded Rowe away. It remains to be seen now which, if any, of the Saints' remaining talent is deemed first class.

As of the start of a new season, most critics would rank the Saints' linebacking department behind even the defensive line. None of the three linebacking positions looks set, although Coach Roberts plans to use Dick Absher somewhere, middle or outside. Mike Morgan, if well, has the inside track on another spot. Other candidates are named Wayne Colman, Tom Roussel, Jim Flanigan, Hap Farber and John Didion and Lewis.

defensive cornerbacks aren't that bad. Delles Howell played steadily last year on the left side and Gene Howard is all right at right. Candidates at safety are named Doug Wyatt, Hugo Hollas and Dickie Lyons.

The NFC's leading punter, Julian Fagan, is back this year as a star of the Saints' special teams. The good but sometimes erratic place-kicker, Tom Dempsey, also returns. Tom last year missed four out of five between the 30 and 40-but in an early November game, he kicked one a record 63 yards to beat Detroit. The real measure of the Saints, however, is that they haven't won since that afternoon. They closed out the season with a six-week losing streak.

At the moment, the Saints add up to the saddest story in pro football. When enfranchised four seasons ago, they did not build solidly, throwing away draft choices unwisely and fighting among themselves over personnel policies. Tom Fears, the coach of the Saints during their first 31/2 years, finally got charge of recruiting last season-but by then it was too late to save either him or the ball club. Tom was fired, and the club disintegrated. In the NFC today, Dallas and Minnesota are examples of expansion teams that built on good foundations-and in the AFC. Miami and Cincinnati are showing that it is still possible to construct representative teams from scratch.

New Orleans has not yet begun to begin. After four full years in business, the Saints today may have only one embryo All-Pro, Manning. And in his present environment, Manning is a bad bet to ever get there.

DALLAS COWBOYS

TOM LANDRY, Head Coach. Assistants: Ermal Allen, Ernie Stautner, Jim Myers, Jerry Tubbs, Bobby Franklin, Ray Renfro, Dan Reeves.

PREDICTION-1st

During the Battle of Fredericksburg an easy Confederate victory in 1862) Robert E. Lee (the Confederate general) said:

"It is well that war is terrible, else we might grow too fond of it."

Paraphrasing this viewpoint, an NFL coach today might say:

"It is well that the Dallas Cowboys have quarterback problems, else they might chew us to pieces."

Dallas has become football's greatest defensive team. It is also the best running team in the game. But it can't pass worth a damn. Rather, last year it couldn't; and as it heads into 1971, that is the whole point about the Dallas team. If either quarterback, Craig Morton or Roger Staubach, takes over as a forward passer, the Cowboys should breeze back into the Super Bowl. And if either becomes a great quarterback, the Cowboys can win the next Battle of New Orleans in Super Game VI. But on their record, the odds are against both quarterbacks.

It is a strange thing that Dallas should be a perennial runnerup to somebody for lack of a successful quarterback. It is a strange thing indeed because Don Meredith, to begin with, seemed to have all the tools of greatness (yet, with Meredith, the Cowboys could never win the big one); secondly, Morton is seemingly a faultless passer and experienced leader (yet, with Morton, the Cowboys are still losing on their last day of the season); and third, Staubach seemingly is the most gifted combination passer-runner in the recent history of football. Yet after promoting Staubach to the starting team last fall, and winning with him, the Cowboys ingloriously benched him anyhow.

DUANE THOMAS (33) follows as HERB ADDERLY leads way on one of many runs that piled up 803 yards for Cowboys on 151 carries as one of the NFC's finest.

Any one of those three developments would be considered strange enough. Together they are incredible.

Now, the chances are that the Cowboys can never think seriously of deploying Staubach regularly as their quarterback. Morton has been on the Dallas squad for seven years. He is popular with many of the other veterans. He is a nice guy. He has virtually a vested interest in the quarterback position there-with Meredith gone. The surest way for the Cowboys to make themselves a morale problem would be to promote Staubach, or anybody, over Morton. Almost certainly, the reason Staubach was benched last September—despite a regular-season undefeated recordwas pressure from Morton's friends.

The Cowboys this year could trade Morton — they have thought about that, too. Dallas' veterans would accept a trade. They are realists. But Dallas' management cannot bring itself to attempt such a drastic cure. What if Staubach can't, after all, do it? What if he should be injured? Nagged by these and other doubts, the Cowboys grin and bear their burden.

They are pretty sure Staubach is the best quarterback who ever put on a Dallas uniform; but what's the point in betting your life on such a hunch when you can get into the playoffs without being so drastic? With Meredith and Morton at quarterback, the Cowboys, after all, have advanced to the playoffs five winters in a row. Why tempt the fates that have been generous?

Accordingly, the Cowboys will do nothing extreme this year; and therefore, the others in their division, and their conference, have a chance. ("It is well that the Cowboys have quarterback problems.")

Defensively, under coach Tom Landry, the Cowboys have flowered into one of the great teams in football history. They are heavily favored to make the playoffs once more solely because of this defense, which could, without hesitation, be labeled the greatest of all time if the linebackers were as able as the front four and deep four.

The linebacking department is, of course, one of the strengths of the Dallas defense. But in general, this is because the three of them have learned to play harmoniously in Landry's difficult system. Individually, it is to be doubted if any of Dallas' backers -Chuck Howley, Lee Roy Jordan or Dave Edwards-could, as a rookie today, make an NFL defense. All weigh in the low 220s. None is a full 6-2. In an era when the model NFL linebacker rises 6-3 to 6-5 and goes 240, they might not even get a chance.

In Dallas years ago they got their chance on a desperation expansion team, and experience has made them outstanding.

They stand as the classic example of the teamwork that can be generated by three friends in eight or nine years of charging shoulder-to-shoulder as linebackers.

The great talent in Dallas is most visible in the defensive line. To be sure, in the Landry system, teamwork is vital there, too; but in this front four, talent is dominant. Tackle Bob Lilly is to be ranked with Merlin Olsen of the Rams and Alan Page of Minnesota among the best who ever played his position in a defensive line. Tackle Jethro Pugh and the ends, Larry Cole and George Andrie, are similarly mobile, monstrous and menacing.

The deep four was not finally stitched into its present condition of excellence until last year, when Herb Adderley came over from Green Bay and when, simultaneously, not one but two exceptional free safeties emerged. They are Cliff Harris and Charlie Waters, who together give Dallas such depth at free safety as few coaches ever dream of and perhaps none but Landry ever had. In fact, Landry now employs four great safeties, including Cornell Green and Mike Gaechter on the strong side. Green has a cornerback's speed—he was converted from that position—and therefore, when he's in there, the Cowboy defense is attacking with four cornerbacks, including the two who line up there, Adderley and Mel Renfro.

Of all the defensive Cowboys

CRAIG MORTON (above), fourth in NFC passing, and ROGER STAUBACH, who showed best as rusher, give Dallas outstanding quarterbacks. Craig hit 102 of 207 aerials for 1819 yards and 15 touchdowns. Roger rushed 221 yards on 27 tries while directing the attack.

-of all the Cowboys-Renfro may be the most gifted.

The secondary depth includes Mark Washington, Richmond Flowers and the No. 2 draft choice, Isaac Thomas, who will be tried first as a wide receiver. The linebacking depth includes Steve Kiner, Tom Stincic and D.D. Lewis-the three of whom Landry says: "I don't think we would see much of a drop in performance if any of these fellows had the opportunity to step in."

The front four depth starts with the No. 1 draft choice, Tody Smith of USC, who might be singled out someday as the most valuable non-quarterback acquisition by anybody in the 1971 draft.

Friends, Dallas can defend.

It can also be candidly confessed that Dallas leads the league in running backs, including Walt Garrison, the NFL's most underrated fullback. At halfback, Landry has decided to have a contest between the 1969 and 1970 NFL Rookies of the Year, Calvin Hill and Duane Thomas. Last year, when Hill was injured, Thomas became the most dangerous and successful halfback in the NFC (a role he might not have played if Gale Savers had been healthy). Thomas in any case is the most talented running back to enter pro football in years, perhaps since Sayers.

MEL RENFRO, an eight-year vet, is one of game's outstanding cornerbacks.

The offensive line last year was almost totally rebuilt; but strangely, the five blockers performed as if they had been a unit for a half-dozen years. The only explanation for such a development is native ability. Like the defensive line, which has Lilly, the offensive line is led by an extraordinary athlete, Ralph Neely. The other tackle is Rayfield Wright, with Dave Manders at center and John Niland and Blaine Nye at guards. The positions they filled last year were filled by others only a year earlier, with one exception (Niland). The shakeup should have shaken the Cowboys out of the title, but it didn't. Their talent is too much.

The Dallas problem area, quarterbacking, would be worse if it weren't for the generous quality of their receivers: Bob Hayes, Lance Alworth, Margene Adkins, Reggie Rucker, Gloster Richardson and the tight ends, Billy Truax and Mike Ditka.

The Cowboys can kick with Mike Clark and Rod Widby, but it might not matter.

PLAY THE APBA PRO LEAGUE FOOTBALL GAME COACH ALL THE NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE PLAYERS! THE APBA PRO LEAGUE FOOTBALL GAME ACTUALLY BRINGS THE NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE PLAYERS INTO YOUR VERY HOME. YOU COACH THEM!

Each player, not just the stars, responds in every detail, according to his National Football League records—in passing, punting, pass receiving, place kicking and ball carrying. You can count on the League's outstanding runners to lead your league's ground game. They and every other ball carrier will average their NFL ground gaining percentage, including their long runs, too!

You call the plays on offense and set the line on defense for the play you think is coming. You can even "gang-up" on the player you think will carry the ball or receive the pass, and if you analyze the oppnent's plays correctly, you stop or lessen his advance!

APBA Pro League Football reproduces every detail of the living game — injuries, penalty call-backs after the play is run, the clock-stopping out-of-bounds plays and incomplete passes, realistic fumble frequency and all the minute details that give a realism never before known in a table football game.

Even the interior offensive and defensive linemen will reflect their real-life running ability on recovered fumbles, blocked kicks or intercepted passes.

Defensively, too, every player is just as realistic. You'll miss a star Cleveland linebacker when he's injured, just as much as the real-life Browns do!

You'll thrill to find your leading quarterbacks throwing more touchdown passes than the other quarterbacks and the leading punters will average the highest yardage per kick for you, too. The place kickers will give you results typical of their season's performance, on long tries as well as the short ones!

ST. LOUIS CARDINALS

PREDICTION-2nd

To become world champions this year, the St. Louis football Cardinals need only two things, a stiffer defense and more consistent quarterbacking. They have everything else, including a talented quarterback, Jim Hart. Jim gets the yards, and often he gets the points. He has been remiss only in the area of consistency—and significantly enough, the new Cardinal coach blames the pass offense in general as much as quarterbacking for this failure.

Says Bob Hollway: "The passing game must improve so we can play consistent football throughout the season. We must work on the short and intermediate passing game as well as the playaction phase, and receivers must improve in running their inside patterns."

In other words, Hollway is saying that breakdowns on inside patterns and on medium-distance patterns (as distinct from bomb BOB HOLLWAY, Head Coach. Assistants: Chuck Drulis, Dick Voris, Leeman Bennett, Lew Carpenter, Bob Leach, Tony Versaci, Joe Spencer.

plays) led to St. Louis' troubles last year. He does not absolve Hart. He simply refrains from criticizing the quarterback as strenuously as other NFL coaches do.

The other Cardinal problem is shown in the 1970 statistics which identify St. Louis as second in NFC offense but fifth in defense. Thus the Cardinals, even with their passing deficiencies, have enough offense to win the world title if they only had enough defense.

MacARTHUR LANE keeps driving on road to 977 yards on 206 tries, 11 TDs.

Here again Hollway has the answer, though he doesn't have to verbalize it this time. The answer is a Minnesota-type zone defense. This is what Hollway will coach in St. Louis this year after coaching it in Minnesota for the last four years.

With only slight improvements on defense and at quarterback, the Cardinals will have a Super Bowl team. They are the best longshot bet in either conference to win the world championship, for two reasons. The first is Hollway's coaching. An Ann Arbor product well-rehearsed by Bud Grant at Minnesota, Hollway is the most impressive of the newcomers to the head coaches' union.

The second reason to fear the Cardinals is reflected in their record last year when they may have been the NFL's best team for a couple of months, sailing into December with a 8-2-1 record. Because they lost their last three, there has been a tendency to downgrade the Cards. Actually, they were a better offensive club than champion Dallas and almost the Cowboys' equal on defense. The St. Louis average of 319.4 yards a game in total offense was exceeded only by the Bay Area teams, Oakland and

San Francisco, among all the 26 in proball.

It was acknowledged last year that, first, Charley Winner coached the Cardinals successfully and that, second, when he was fired, he left a better reservoir of material than most of the other fired coaches in pro ball, particularly Houston's, Washington's, New Orleans', Green Bay's and Cleveland's. Hollway has the material; he also seems to be a coach. The combination should make St. Louis a contender.

On offense, St. Louis is clearly a power, with leadership by two young and experienced quarterbacks, Hart and Pete Beathard. In terms of total effectiveness, they are nearly equal in ability, and this is a fact which may strain the seams of the Cardinal ship. Hollway will have to keep both of them content, and also their teammates, some of whom prefer one and some the other.

At the receiving positions the Cardinals offer speed with Dave Williams, who had an off-year in 1970, and John Gilliam. The tight end is Jackie Smith, a veteran of five consecutive appearances in the Pro Bowl.

The NFC is a running conference with the top three groundgainers in the NFL, Washington's Larry Brown, New York's Ron Johnson and the 220-pound Cardinal, MacArthur Lane. Now a four-year veteran, Lane rose last fall to the prominence the Cards expected of him when they drafted him No. 1 out of Utah State. John Roland is still important to the Cards' ground offense. So is Cid Edwards. And their No. 1 choice a year ago was Larry Stegent, a back from Texas A&M, still listed as a rookie after sitting out the season with a knee.

In the line, three veterans of Pro Bowl class (Ernie McMillan, Bob Reynolds and Irv Goode) were joined a year ago by a new center (Wayne Mulligan) and guard (Clyde Williams) who came through with style. Card passers were sacked only 26 times in 14 games.

The defensive strength of St. Louis is in the secondary, led by the veteran All-Pro, Larry Wilson, one of football's great free safeties of all time. Strong safety Jerry Stovall makes St. Louis as impenetrable in the center as any defense in the league. But at the corners, St. Louis may be even stronger. Roger Wehrli came on as an All-Pro last fall in his sophomore season. Veteran Miller Farr remains one of the better left cornermen in the game. Last year's coach, Winner, an expert on defensive backfields, left the Cards with the best they've ever had.

JIM HART completed 171 passes for 2575 yards, 14 TDs as Cardinal qb.

CHUCK LATOURETTE returned 13 kickoffs for 254 yards; 30 punts for 171.

At linebacker, Larry Stallings last year fulfilled his promise as an All-League player. The veteran from Georgia Tech, now 29, heads into the prime of his career with his peak seasons ahead of him. The middle linebacker. Jamie Rivers, has the speed and agility to cover well on passes. From Bowling Green, he is even younger than Stallings, 25, and is moving steadily toward a ranking among the better middle linebackers in the country. A rookie, Don Parish, came through as the right linebacker in 1970. A Stanford man, Parish was named St. Louis Rookie of the Year.

There are some indications that between the youth and speed of the linebackers and the experience of the secondary, Hollway can create a zone defense structure in St. Louis reminiscent of Minnesota's.

The members of St. Louis' front four are not yet household names in America. It's a young line with two 26-year-old defensive tackles, Fred Heron of San Jose State and Bob Rowe of Western Michigan. The ends are Rolf Krueger, 24, and the old man of the front four, Chuck Walker, 30.

With a chance to upgrade this unit in the draft, the Cardinals instead chose a defensive back, Norm Thompson of Utah. Indeed, of the Cardinals' 23 top rookies, only two are listed as defensive linemen. This would indicate either a satisfaction with present company or an inability to recruit front-four prospects at this time. In any case, the rush of a line that (except for Walker) is not widely respected in the league holds the key to St. Louis' improvement this year as a zone defense club. At Minnesota, the rush of a famous front four makes that defense operative.

Winner left the Cardinals in the hands (and feet) of good specialists. The place-kicker, Jim Bakken, is the No. 10 scorer of all time in football. Chuck Latourette, a dental student, is one of the most valuable of the Cardinals. Chuck is the punter, kick runner and reserve safety.

Here's Coach Hollway speaking at the start of his first season as a head coach: "The big improvement must come from the veterans as a team and from each individual in his job. Rookies may add depth in the secondary, wide receivers and offensive line, but you cannot count on rookies to play immediately."

That sounds as if Hollway knows his job. So does this: "We are optimistic, but we know we have to make the big step up from the middle (of the standings) to the top. As head coach of the Cardinals, I hope to produce a strong, disciplined, winning football team. I also hope we have a lot of fun doing it."

WASHINGTON REDSKINS

GEORGE ALLEN, Head Coach. Assistants: Mike McCormack, Ted Marchibroda, Marv Levy, Boyd Dowler, Charley Winner, Lavern Torgeson, Joe Sullivan.

PREDICTION-3rd

M any pro football men this year share the opinion that the Washington Redskins are on the way up. Some critics expect the Redskins to be challenging Dallas and St. Louis for the Eastern title in 1971—and there have even been predictions, by otherwise knowledgeable people, that Washington will make the playoffs.

Such observations are based, of course, on the fact that Washington's management has hired a new coach, George Allen, the hard-driving winner from out west. Comparisons are being drawn with another time when Washington brought in a western star to win the championship of 1865, U.S. Grant, who defeated R.E. Lee.

Nonetheless, it seems selfevident that the Redskins are overmatched in the East this time. In terms of personnel, they fall far short of Dallas and St. Louis, the franchises that figure 1-2 in the Eastern Division.

As a passing team, of course, the Redskins rank first in the division and possibly in the conference—provided Sonny Jurgensen has a healthy season at the age of 37. But the NFC is a defensive conference, and the 'Skins don't have it there. Defensively, indeed, you can't name a Redskin who would make the Dallas lineup.

Despite the great talent of tackle Diron Talbert and linebacker Chris Hanburger, the defensive co-captains of Washington, Dallas is now employing men who are at least their equal in their positions.

So this will be a building year for Coach Allen, much as he hates to think of football in that respect. His function this year is to get a foundation down on which the Redskins can construct a champion some other day. If the Redskins can get on the high side of .500, they will have had a big season. Only one of their predecessors in Washington in the last 16 years won more games than it lost, and this was Vince Lombardi's 1969 team, which finished 7-5-2.

Lombardi wound up second to Dallas that season—but in the old Capitol Division, he had only New Orleans and Philadelphia to beat. Allen is in the much more competitive new Eastern Division with Dallas, St. Louis, the New York Giants and the Eagles.

Allen's record starting his sixth season as a coach identifies him as the biggest winner in the NFC. As the head coach at Los Angeles for five years, he averaged 10 wins annually en route to a record of 49-17-4 (.742). This was the best won-loss mark in the conference during that period of time.

Among all NFL coaches, Allen ranks second only to Don Shula of Miami. Shula has averaged 10 wins annually for eight years (81-27-4—.750).

Despite his successes on the field, year after year, Allen failed to please his owner, the late Dan Reeves—just as Shula failed to please owner Carroll Rosenbloom of Baltimore. But whereas Rosenbloom reacted by bringing in a general manager over Shula's head (Don Klosterman), the more direct Reeves fired Allen outright.

This gave the Redskins a chance to pick up their second winning coach in two years—but they were obliged to outbid several other teams to get him. Thus Allen's salary in Washington, on a seven-year contract, has reached $100,000, plus up to $25,000 in bonuses. In Los Angeles, the Rams had paid him $42,000 plus bonuses that averaged $12,000.

Philosophically, Allen is a man who stresses winning over building. "The future is now," as he says. Accordingly, the Redskins, like the Rams of the last five years, are getting more mileage out of trades than from the draft of college players. As his first major move in Washington, Allen traded seven draft choices (including a No. 1) for six Rams (including Talbert).

He acquired the entire threeman Ram linebacking department, Jack Pardee, 35; Myron Pottios, 32, and Maxie Baughan, 32. This bolsters the Redskins in one of the places they need it most. As a new season starts they have both class and depth at linebacker with Hanburger and the three ex-Rams plus last year's starters, Harold McLinton and Rusty Tillman.

There is also talent and depth in the secondary with cornerbacks Pat Fischer, Mike Bass and Ted Vactor and safetymen Brig Owens, Jon Jaqua and Rickie Harris.

Fischer is 31, Hanburger 30, and the ex-Ram backers are also in their 30s. Allen holds that "age is always an asset" in proball—so long as the player can be restrained from retiring. Each year's new accumulation of experience, he believes, more than cancels out any loss of speed.

"A pro shouldn't even think of retiring until his late 30s," Allen

Therefore, Allen's problem area in Washington is the defensive line. Whereas he would prefer fast-thinking if slow-moving 35-year-old linemen, he finds that the old man of his front four is Diron Talbert, 27. Last year, Talbert was the kid in the Ram front four.

A five-year veteran who is just getting started on his pro career, Talbert, in Washington, joins a defensive line including sophomores Bill Brundige, 22, and Manuel Sistrunk, 24, along with Verlon Biggs, 28, obtained from the Jets, at defensive end. Other candidates include a third-year man, John Hoffman, 28, and ex-Ram Bruce Anderson, 27.

CHARLEY TAYLOR, vet receiver hauls in one of 42 catches in '70 in Lion upset.

Brundige, Lombardi's last topdrafted college man, has been moved from tackle to end. Ron McDole, 31, from Buffalo, will strengthen the front four.

Fischer, several times an All-Pro, and the new linebackers will help steady the defense—but these front four are the players who meet the enemy first. The Redskins can hardly be a great deal better than their front four. And if they aren't strong enough to prevent the opposition from double-teaming Talbert and Mc-Dole, they're in trouble.

Fortunately, Washington has enough offense to bail out the defense occasionally. Jurgensen is the acknowledged king of passers, one of the two or three most skilled of all time. And behind Jurgensen there is Billy Kilmer, a quarterback Allen always wanted for the Rams.

The backfield, Larry Brown and fullback Charley Harraway, has been intact since Lombardi's first game in 1969. Brown averaged a majestic 4.75 last year as the league's leading ground-gainer when he became the first Redskin ever to exceed 1000 yards. He is a man of extraordinary talent, and his blocker, Harraway, is likewise a fine runner.

Halfback Tommy Mason, one of nine former Rams from the teams that won 74 per cent of the time in Los Angeles, is now one among many Redskin assets.

So is Boyd Dowler, the end coach, a former Packer who has returned to active duty at the age of 33. Dowler, who was always physically ready to play for the Rams last year, when the Packers refused to release him, joins All-Pros Charley Taylor and Jerry Smith in the Washington receiver corps. Taylor at 29 is in the prime of a career that took him to the top last year among all the active receivers in football. He is now second—behind Dowler. Most of the good NFL cornerbacks rank Taylor as the most dangerous catcher in the league.

Jerry Smith is 12th all-time, and in 1971 rates near the top of the game's many exceptional tight ends. The Redskins, in addition, top-drafted a receiver, Cotton Speyrer of Texas.

Guard John Wilbur has come over from the Rams to beef up a reliable group pivoting on All-Pro center Len Hauss. The guards are Ray Schoenke, Paul Laaveg, Vince Promuto and Roy Schmidt. At tackle are Jim Snowden, Walt Rock and Steve Wright. Allen has also brought in tackle Mike Taylor of USC, a former Pittsburgh No. 1 draft choice. If the Redskins can get out of Taylor the talent that is there, they'll have something.

The special teams immediately improved with the acquisition of Jeff Jordan from Los Angeles. Place-kicker Curt Wright hit 20 of 27 last year for the best field goal percentage in the league. Wright doubles as a kickoff man with end zone range. Punter Mike Bragg last year averaged 40.9. The Redskins can kick as well as run and pass; but they do need a front four.

NEW YORK GIANTS

PREDICTION-4th

I t's not easy to predict the future for the New York Giants. The question about this team is, briefly, this: When were the real Giants on the field last year, against St. Louis, or against Los Angeles?

At mid-season 1970 and again in the next-to-last game, the Giants smashed the Cardinals, 35-17 and 34-17; and then in the last game of the year, they were in turn smashed by the Rams, 31-3.

These performances must be analyzed in the light of a fact about St. Louis that isn't generally appreciated, namely the fact that the St. Louis team is one of the NFL's few powerhouses.

The Cards are not only the most underrated club in the league, they're among the most underrated of the last 10 years. The Cardinal defense blanked three straight opponents last fall.

And in two appearances against Dallas' divisional champions, the Cardinals won by a composite 58-7.

Yet they were putty in the hands of the Giants, who in turn played ineffectively eventually against Los Angeles.

Now, this is not by itself an unfamiliar phenomenon in pro football. All teams win some and lose some. But New York does seem a special case. It was immeasurably better than two of the NFL's finest, Dallas and St. Louis; yet it was inexplicably unsuccessful in its big test of the season, when, going for a divisional title, it could score only a field goal and lost everything.

"We were never flatter," the coach, Alex Webster, said afterward of the Ram-Giant game, and that's the truth. "But perhaps the adversity of that finalgame loss will make us a sounder ball club in the long run." And that's likely.

ALEX WEBSTER, Head Coach. Assistants: Emlen Tunnell, Norb Hecker, Joe Walton, Jim Katcavage. Frank "Pop" Ivy, Jim Garrett.

In two seasons as the leader of a team for which he formerly played with distinction, Webster has improved from 6-8 to 9-5. This is a prize showing for so inexperienced a coach. At least two of the pro teams that made the playoffs last winter won fewer games than Webster did. The Washington Touchdown Club voted him coach of the year.

Webster is a Giant asset, and in truth this is a team of personalities. Few of New York's competitors have a greater variety of first-rate players.

The roll call of Giant stars starts, of course, with quarter-back Fran Tarkenton, who has managed not to let Joe Namath steal too long a lead in the Gotham celebrity league. Half-back Ron Johnson developed smoothly last year into the NFL's best runner-receiver at his position. His 1514 aggregate yards led both conferences as Johnson RON JOHNSON, who piled up 1027 yards, is first Giant with 1000 season.

WILLIE WILLIAMS (41), SCOTT EATON (20), CARL LOCKHART (43) and TOM LONGO (41) join in pursuit of last year's leading ground-gainer, Larry Brown.

FRED DRYER, 6-6 and 240, defensive end (89), is top on N.Y. front line.

became the first Giant ever to top 1000 yards carrying footballs.

Clifton McNeil, also now a Giant, is one of the league's many great wide receivers and Bob Tucker one of the many great tight ends. Tucker Frederickson, free of injuries at last, fulfilled his promise as a ballcarrier last year and exceeded the club's high expectations for him as a blocker. There are two jewels on defense, Jim Files and Fred Dryer; and there are others.

The Giants, in short, have a nucleus comparable with the NFL's other good teams, and the statistics for 1970 make the same point. Offensively, the Giants finished fourth in the NFC behind San Francisco, St. Louis and Dallas. (Another way to look at this is to note that the NFC East houses three of the top four offenses in the conference, the Cardinals, Cowboys and Giants.) In detail, New York was second in pass offense and fifth in rushing offense.

The area for improvement was fingered as follows in 1970: the Giants were only 10th in defense. At the same time, they were 3-0 against former AFL teams, indicating some kind of pattern for the future. Finally, the Giant injury list included at least three players with the ability to make a visible improvement in team performance this fall. They are Junior Coffey, a tough running back; Willie Townes, an experienced defensive lineman from Dallas, and Wes Grant, a promising defensive lineman from, UCLA.

Here's how Webster analyzes his problem platoon as of last year:

"The defense came a long way, but it's got to be a lot better if we hope to make a serious run at the title. Specifically, we must strengthen the rush line and solidify our linebacking. We feel the secondary is adequate—that is, if the situation improves up front."

On offense, the Giants will make their I Formation attack even more sophisticated this year with the double threat of Tarkenton (pass and run) and the double threat of Johnson (run and catch).

"We have the backfield personnel to do some interesting things with the I Formation," says Webster. "We hope to open it up this year."

Tarkenton, Johnson and Frederickson played almost the whole season in the Giants' 1970 backfield. The bench includes Joe Morrison. At the receiving positions this season, the Giants hope to pair Johnson and the No. 1 draft choice, Rocky Thompson, a 9.2 sprinter from West Texas State. The tight end, Tucker, caught 40 passes last fall during his spectacular rookie campaign. The Giants also have Don Herrmann and Aaron Thomas back.

The blockers are mature and resourceful: center Greg Larson, guards Pete Case and Doug Van Horn and tackles Willie Young and Dick Buzin. Although the Giants sound a bit worried about creeping age in their offensive line, the oldest blocker, Larson, is only 32—a kid by the new NFL standards applied by George Allen. If there is a problem in this Giant area, it is not too much age but too little unity; the five haven't been together long enough.

Fred Dryer is the most consistent defensive lineman. With Bob Lurtsema available again, the Giants are going to try rookie Wes Grant at the other defensive end. Last year's tackles were Jim Kanicki and Jerry Shay, a steady pair, but Shay broke a leg in the last game. During the summer season, the Giants will experiment with Willie Townes here and Lurtsema. Stanford rookie Dave Tipton is a possibility.

At linebacker, Webster's problem is lack of speed, especially outside with Ralph Heck and Mat Hazeltine. The latter is one of the NFL's smartest at his position but he's 38 or 39 years old. and a pro that age is always expected to prove it. The middle linebacker, Jim Files, 23, 6-4, 240, is a find. This winter the Giants drafted three linebackers.

The secondary, the heart of the Giant defense, is manned by cornerbacks Scott Eaton and Willie Williams and safetymen Spider Lockhart, Tom Longo and ex-Cowboy Otto Brown.

The star of the special teams is Pete Gogolak, the placekicker who shattered two Giant records last season (most points, 107, and longest field goal, 54 yards). New York's punter, the left-footed Bill Johnson, is also back; but Webster is looking for a punter with more consistency.

To contend this season, the Giants will have to have more injury luck than some teams. There is some substance on their bench, but not much brilliance.

For example, the Giants urgently need Jerry Shay back at defensive tackle, and may not get him unless Jerry's bad leg makes a fast recovery. In terms of experienced depth, the Giants can hardly replace him. They also need a man like Wes Grant in their front four, and Grant is recovering from a broken back.

It would be good for the conference to have the Giants winning again this year. For one thing, it helps any league to have the New York team winning and drawing the attention of the media people. Second, Joe Namath is a New Yorker who quarterbacks the probable favorite in the other conference. The pressure is on the Giants.

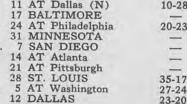

PETE GOGOLAK, ace kicker, was 3rd among NFC scorers with 107 points.

PHILADELPHIA EAGLES

IERRY WILLIAMS, Coach. Assistants: Ed Khayat, Fears, Joe Moss, Jimmy Carr, Jack Zilly, Brad Ecklund.

PREDICTION-5th

erry Williams, coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, is a man with more troubles than most people have. To begin with, he has been aligned in the only NFC division that has four pennant contenders (Dallas, St. Louis, Washington, New York). Although Dallas is the favorite, the others all have some kind of chance-and Williams has to play each of them twice.

Second, he has been handed toughest inter-division schedule in the league. This can best be demonstrated mathematically. The teams Philadelphia plays this year won more games last year, in the composite reckoning, than any other pro team's opponents. (In the same NFL division, Dallas draws the league's softest schedule and Philadelphia the rockiest.)

And third, Williams lost his quarterback this year when Greg Barton defected to Canada. Although Barton has never played in an Eagle game, Williams handpicked him in Detroit, where the young man had been employed for three years by the quarterback-rich Lions.

Sadly, he has jumped the ship, leaving quarterback in the hands of Rick Arrington, Pete Liske and rookie Wayne Liddick.

also from 24, Arrington, Tulsa, played successfully for the Eagles last season on occasion, but is years short of his prime. Liske in recent years has played for Denver, which needs quarterbacks, but not badly enough to keep Liske. The Denver story on him is that he is a nice guy and a good leader with not quite the arm. Liddick, from Susquehanna, spent his first pro year in the minor leagues last season.

Norman Snead, the Eagle quarterback through much of the 1960s, was traded to Minnesota this season. Like all losing teams, Philadelphia blamed many of its problems on the quarterback; and the more the Eagles lost, the more they blamed Snead. At first, this was only true among Philadelphia fans. But gradually, the Philadelphia coaches came to believe that Snead was the root of their problems-and in the end, they couldn't wait to trade him.

The truth about Snead, however, is that he has never had much talent around him or in charge of him. Nobody knows how good Snead might have been in Green Bay in the 1960s, for instance, under Vince Lombardi, with Jerry Kramer in front of him and Jim Taylor behind.

The Eagles still have many of their other problems, too. But if somebody can play quarterback, they should be respectable offensively this year with the return of Tom Woodeshick in a backfield that now includes Cyril Pinder-and with a fine set of ends, Ben Hawkins, Harold Jackson and Gary Ballman.

CYRIL PINDER, Philadelphia back, gained 657 yards on 166 carries in '70.

PETE LISKE, traded by Denver Broncs now bids for Eagles' quarterback spot.

Rookie Lee Bouggess, who replaced the injured Woodeshick last fall, wound up leading the Eagles in passes caught with 50. So as a sophomore he gives them some depth. Leroy Keyes, who carried the ball only twice in 1970, also returns-but to an uncertain future. The injury gods have not been kind to Keyes. Fullback Andy Livingston, acquired from New Orleans, has the ability to be a starter if well.

Ballman, now at tight end, paced the receivers in balls caught last season, but Hawkins and Jackson are capable of better than their 30 and 41, respectively. All things considered, the Eagles are not in bad shape for runners and receivers.

draft choice, Henry Allison of San Diego State. Coach Williams has been dissatisfied with Philadelphia's pass protection and downfield blocking.

Defensively, the Philadelphia pass rush, which didn't please Willams in 1970, will be in the hands of ends Ernie (Cab) Calloway and Mel Tom and tackles Don Hultz and Gary Pettigrew.

USC has furnished the Eagles with two-thirds of their linebackers, Tim Rossovich, middle, and Adrian Young, right. The left backer is Ron Porter, from Idaho via the Baltimore Colts. This is a representative NFL linebacking corps. In terms of talent and experience, this may be Philadelphia's best department, offense or defense.

There is also speed and ability in the secondary with cornerbacks Al Nelson and Ray Jones and safetymen Nate Ramsey and Bill Bradley.

The Eagle kicking game was not an NFL leader a year ago. Here's what Williams has to say about it this year:

"I look for a large improvement in this department. Bradley's injured knee has responded well to an operation, and it is hoped that his punting will be as effective as it was in his rookie year. The drafting of Happy Feller (from Texas) should provide excellent competition in the field goal department (with Mark Mosely, who kicked 14 of 25 last season) and I anticipate added distance on kickoffs."

Overall this season, Williams "anticipates improvement," adding:

"One of the main reasons on which I base my hopes that some of the losses of last year will be turned into wins in 1971 is that we have more experience in about every department. This is extremely important when considering the fact that the Eagles are a very young team, and inexperience has been a frustrating factor over the past two years."

Williams has made three changes in the Eagle staff, adding Tom Fears, Ed Khayat and Brad Ecklund, all from the New Orleans Saints, where Fears was head coach. In the NFL today, Fears is regarded as one of the leaders in the preparation of pass offense, particularly short passes.

The offense last year finished seventh in the 13-team NFC and has a chance to move up.

Pondering Philadelphia's future, the outside critic today worries first about a defense which, on the average, yielded 4.5 yards against running plays in 1970. (The Eagles gained 1500 yards running and yielded 2000.)

What's more, the Eagle line sacked quarterbacks only 23 times last season. Strangely, it is very often true that linemen who excel at rushing the passer simultaneously defend well against the run. The Eagles, in any case must improve in both places—and find a quarterback—to contend in their division.

You're having a lot of fun with your pencils and paints. But chances are you're afraid to think that your drawings could be worth something.

Don't be afraid.

No one can promise success. But if you like drawing people, for example, you might be quite good at fashion artwork.

Or if you draw landscapes, there may be a future for you as a magazine or book illustrator.

Or maybe you have a sense of design and color that can be directed towards package design. There probably are dozens of ways to channel your talent that you haven't thought of or were afraid to try.

You should try. Famous Artists School can help by giving you the training you need. In a way no other school can.

Because, behind Famous Artists School, there really are famous artists. The School's courses were created by celebrated illustrators like Bob Peak, Bernard Fuchs, Austin Briggs and

When you study with us you work at home. But you never really work alone

Naturally, the famous artists don't personally work on your drawings. But each assignment you send to the School gets the undivided attention of a skilled artist-instructor. He writes detailed instructions on how to improve your work. Draws and paints separate sketches to show exactly what he means. And helps you develop your personal touch, so you'll have something special to show or sell later on.

Will our training actually help you earn money?

No reputable school can guarantee a job, but our training has worked for a great many people. For example, Gary Brown of Council Bluffs, Iowa used to sell cars. Now he's an artist for the telephone company and works on everything from layouts to high fashion art

And Helen Tryk lives in the small town of Cottage Grove, Ore., yet achieves success as an artist doing fashion illustration, portraits and running art workshops-all in her own studio. Maybe like Gary and Helen you have talent worth exploring.

Take our free talent test and see. A member of the School staff will grade it free and return it t Lyou with his comments. Just fill out and mail the coupon at right, or write to Famous Artists School, Westport, Conn. 06880

There is no obligation. If you decide not to go ahead with professional training, you can still keep drawing, just for fun.

F or the third consecutive year, the world champion of professional football has been housed in the American Conference of the National League (nee the American Football League).

Oakla ond, ver for the National League (nee the American Football League).

Is there happiness? Is there general rejoicing? Is there profound pride?

Not among the lodge brothers of the Baltimore Colts. Instead there is kind of a muffled embarrassment. Baltimore was the new kid on the block and he won all the pretty girls and all the marbles, too.

In their first year of life in the newly-aligned NFL, the old AFL teams couldn't hold on to their own championship. They lost two thirds of the inter-league games with the National Conference (the old NFL minus the Colts, Cleveland and Pittsburgh) the first time that format was tried, too.

The only kind of solace was that the two old NFL teams which switched leagues along with Baltimore, the Browns and Steelers, were also rans in the new Central Division.

The Cincinnati Bengals, the newest pro team and an AFL entry only after the merger wheels had begun to turn, amazed everyone by winning the Central.

The only division which kept strictly to form was the AFC-West, finishing exactly as it had the previous three seasonsOakland first, Kansas City second, San Diego third and Denver fourth.

It says here that new champions will be crowned in all three divisions.

The New York Jets, with Joe Namath, will unseat the Colts, who will be without Johnny Unitas, in the East. The Browns will rediscover their equilibrium in the Central. And Kansas City will uphold the law of averages in the West.

In the playoffs Baltimore will join the Jets, Browns and Chiefs, since they will possess the best second-place record.

The Jets, in the view of this prophet, will win the AFL championship and go on to defeat the Detroit Lions in the Super Bowl at New Orleans, Jan. 17.

Some of the individual honors might be distributed this way:

MVP—Joe Namath.

Rookie of year on offense— Leon Burns, San Diego fullback. Rookie of year on defense— Jack Tatum, Oakland safety.

Passing champion—Namath. Ground-gaining champion— Larry Csonka, Miami.

Scoring champion—Jan Stenerud, Kansas City.

Pass - receiving champion—

Gary Garrison, San Diego.

Coach of year—Weeb Ewbank, New York.

The toughest fight should be in the Eastern Division, where the Jets, who gained new respect when they re-formed offensively after losing Namath and fullback Matt Snell and played brilliant defense, will have to beat off the Colts and Miami Dolphins.

The Colts were not totally disarmed by Unitas' achilles tendon injury. Earl Morrall is a respected quarterback and has outstanding receivers like Roy Jefferson and Eddie Hinton. Baltimore's game in 1970 was defense and there is no reason it won't be in '71.

Miami astounded its competition by making the playoffs after a moribund season in 1969. Its new coach, Don Shula, kept them winning despite a rookie-packed defense which will be improved merely by experience.

Cleveland has by far the best Central team on paper, but the Browns' old coach, Paul Brown, has his Bengals convinced they can win against their Northern neighbors. They did it in '70.

"We'll be on the attack in "71," says Hank Stram, coach of the unseated world champions of the previous season, Kansas City. That's bad news for the oposition, which benefitted from the Chiefs' lay-back tactics.

Oakland has been the winningest of Pro teams over the last four seasons, but there seems to be rough times ahead for the Raiders. Their two games with KC likely will decide the division title, however.

There are four new head coaches in the AFC this season.

Nick Skorich, once head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, is the new head man at Cleveland. He succeeds the retired Blanton Collier and may start a new era with young Mike Phipps at quarterback.

Ed Hughes, a highly-regarded

American Conference

JIM O'BRIEN is about to make contact for winning field goal in Super Bowl, a 32-yarder. Holding ball for Jim who was only 19 for 34 in season, is Earl Morrall.

assistant coach for the San Francisco 49ers, got the Houston job after Wally Lemm retired. He has to rebuild an offense and construct a pass rush.

Johnny Mazur, who took over from Clive Rush on an interim basis at mid-season last year, gets a full shot with the Patriots, who are now the New England Pats instead of the Boston Pats. He'll have to decide whether the No. 1 draft pick in the NFL, Jim Plunkett of Stanford, or veteran Joe Kapp will be his quarterback.

In a controversial and highlycriticized move, Sid Gillman reassumed coaching command at San Diego with Charlie Waller demoted to the assistant staff. Gillman's main tasks will be to design capable protection for beleaguered quarterback John Hadl and make an aggressive defense out of a passive one.

The big stadium news is that the Pats will be playing in 60,000-seat Schaefer Stadium, the new complex in suburban Foxboro. The Pats sold 45,000 season tickets, an amazing 300 percent increase for a team with the worst won-lost record in the NFL.

There were only a few trades of great impact, particularly interconference variety.

The biggest was San Diego's deal with Dallas which sent Lance Alworth, one of the alltime great pass catchers, to the Cowboys for three players—offensive tackle Tony Liscio, tight end Pettis Norman and defensive lineman Ron East.

Another saw Al Denson, a top receiver, sent to Minnesota by Denver with John Charles going briefly on the Bronco roster and then on to Houston for another defensive back, Leroy Mitchell.

Denver was involved in another, trading defensive end Alden Roche and a draft choice to Green Bay for young Don Horn. Unless Steve Tensi jettisons his retirement plans, Horn may be Denver's starter.

Houston traded fullback Hoyle Granger, once a top fullback, to New Orleans for a promising receiver, Ken Burrough, plus a journeyman defensive tackle, Dave Rowe.

The AFC continued cornering the bright young quarterbacks.

Three of the first four taken in the draft went to AFC clubs. Exhibit A is Plunkett, the Heisman Trophy winner and Rose Bowl hero.

After New Orleans of the NFC took Mississippi's Archie Manning, Houston selected the next two—Santa Clara's Dan Pastorini and Kansas State's Lynn Dickey.

Further down Cincinnati selected a bright prospect, Ken Anderson of Augustana, and Baltimore tried to solve its "quarterback of the future" problem by picking Karl Douglas of Texas A&I.

Other bright new faces in the AFC include J. D. Hill of Arizona State and Jan White of Ohio State, both expected to win starting jobs as Buffalo receivers; Jack Tatum, Ohio State safety who should start at Oakland; Leon Burns of Long Beach State, who may be the big back San Diego needs; John Riggins, Kansas fullback picked by the Jets as insurance for Snell; receiver Elmo Wight of Houston, who may help put zing in KC's attack; and Clarence Scott, Kansas State corner counted on to help cure Cleveland's defensive woes.

NEW YORK JETS

PREDICTION-1st

I f you saw Weeb Ewbank, relaxed and loose, at the NFL owners' meetings in Palm Beach last March you could never have guessed his football team finished with a 4-10 won-lost record in 1970.

The reason Weeb could afford to be relaxed and loose is that there should be a pile of asterisks after that 4-10.

*—Joe Namath suffered a broken throwing wrist and didn't play the final 12 games.

—Matt Snell suffered a torn achilles tendon and didn't play the final 11 games.

—Gerry Philbin, the excellent defensive end, suffered a shoulder injury which kept him out of uniform for the first two months.

*—Six All-Star players missed at least four games.

—The Jets, clothed in bandages, and playing with inexperienced quarterbacks, shocked two of football's aristocrats, the Rams and Vikings, within a three-week period. They beat the Rams, 31-10, and the Vikes, 20-10.

—The defense, burdened by all the injuries on offense, still won the AFC's overall defensive championship and led the conference in defense against rushing.

Because of all this, and assuming the lame and halt are no longer lame and halt, a lot of football people are picking the Jets to make it to another Super Bowl.

Namath, for instance, was pronounced fit when the cast was removed from his hand in midwinter.

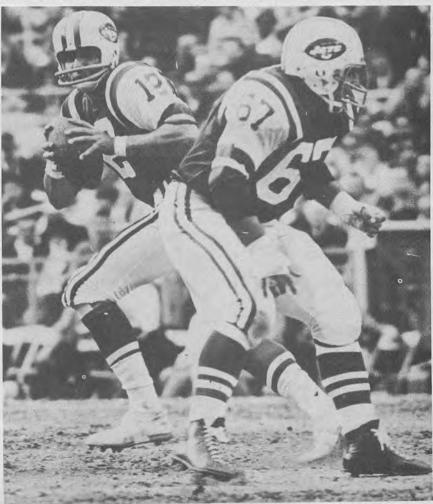

"The injury could have been a blessing in disguise," says Ewbank. "Joe says his knees haven't felt so good in years. The rest probably did it."

There was no off-season talk about retirement from Namath

AL WOODALL completed 96 passes for 1265 yards, 9 TDs on 188 Jet attempts.

JOE NAMATH, the No. 1 Jet, is protected by DAVE HERMAN as he gets set to use his famous throwing arm before he was sidelined due to a broken wrist.

he is dying to prove something to himself, his teammates and the public in 1971. At age 28 he should be approaching his peak as a pro quarterback.

His replacement, young Woodall, served a painful apprenticeship at first, but his four touchdown passes against the vaunted Ram defense seemed to change his fortunes. He passed for 1265 yards along the way.

"I know this," says Ewbank.
"If Joe got shaken up in a game now I wouldn't hesitate to tell

Woodall to get ready."

Snell's rehabilitation is not quite so assured as Namath's. An achilles tendon injury for a 30-year-old running back is no joke. Snell was leading pro football in ground-gaining at the time. The injury might have reduced his ball-carrying effectiveness some, but he's also known as one of the two or three best blocking backs in football and is among Namath's most vital bodyguards. His progress report indicated he would be back.

In case he isn't, the Jets made a fullback, Kansas' John Riggins, their No. 1 draft choice. Riggins is a rugged 237-pounder who never missed a game or a day of practice. He fumbled only once and recovered it himself.

Snell's often-injured running mate, Emerson Boozer, was hurt again and missed four games. But when he returned he had two consecutive big days—115 and 114 yards. But the big surprise was sophomore George Nock, who scored five touchdowns in the absence of his more illustrious teammates.

The Jets' running game, despite all the injuries, speared LA for 153 yards and was used 51 times for 187 yards against one of the best defenses against rushing, that of Minnesota.

The bench includes two players still considered promising, Lee White and Cliff McClain, and journeyman Chuck Mercein.

Ewbank was shaken by George Sauer's emotional decision to chuck his football career as a "childish" enterprise. He should be shaken. Sauer is one of the finest pass catchers. The expectation was that George would re-consider by the time they put real shells in the cannons.

Don Maynard still is listed as a starter and he shared the club lead in pass catching with Sauer. But Don is 34 and most of his catches came in two games. He missed seven due to a foot injury. Maynard might be replaced by sophomore Richard Caster, who averaged 20.7 yards on his 19 catches. If that doesn't happen, the 6-5 Caster might be moved to tight end.

The Caster-to-tight-end move would be a result of the Jets' desire for more speed at the position. Pete Lammons, who has feuded with Ewbank in the past, isn't a burner. He's solid and a good blocker, however.

The offensive line was hexed by injuries, too. Right tackle Roger Finnie left with Snell in the third game after dislocating his ankle. Guard Randy Rasmussen sprained an ankle which bothered him most of the season.

But this isn't really a serious matter. Rasmussen should come back strongly. Center John Schmitt is among the AFC's most underrated players. Left tackle Winston Hill is a quality player and so is guard Dave Herman. If Finnie doesn't bounce back, Dave Foley should be improved over his rookie season when he was obviously favoring a knee injured in '69. To make sure, the Jets drafted Tampa's big John Mooring on the second round.

Ewbank isn't known as a big trader, but he popped a few eyebrows by swapping place-kicker Jim Turner to Denver for Bobby Howfield. Turner was among the sport's most prolific field goal kickers in the last few seasons, although he slipped to 19-for-35 last year. Howfield has a stronger leg but is much less consistent.

JOHN ELLIOTT, 245-pound tackle, rates as strong man on Jets' defensive band.

Weeb's aim was to improve his kickoffs. Turner was so short so often, that the Jet coach finally ordered him to squib kick for most of the last half of the season. Howfield is among the best kickoff men in football. He's a soccer-style kicker. Turner is a straight-on stylist.

John Elliott is the strong man in the Jet defensive line and, at age 26, seems destined to be ranked among the all-time tackles. He and end Verlon Biggs carried most of the load for the Jets last year after end Philbin and tackle Steve Thompson were injured. Biggs, who had one of his finest seasons, signed with Washington after his option expired.

Bigg's defection causes an alarming problem. Philbin is back strong and rookie Mark Lomas had an excellent year. But Thompson, nagged by injuries since turning pro, was talking about retirement. Even if he doesn't retire, there is some question whether he can take up the slack caused by Bigg's departure. Ewbank may be forced to move Finnie over to defense.

The linebacking corps operates with the harmony of a chorus line. Middle backer Al Atkinson reconsidered his retirement and had another fine year. Larry Grantham hustles around with speed that camouflages his MATT SNELL rushed for 281 yards on 64 carries, and scored one TD.

11 pro seasons. Ralph Baker is another underrated Jet. The reserves, Dennis Onkotz, Paul Crane and John Ebersole, are well regarded.

The Jets went with an entirely new secondary and, at the season's end, it appeared to be a winning gamble. Steve Tannen and Earlie Thomas, who improved rapidly as rookie corners, should be much larger assets in '71. Free safety W. K. Hicks, obtained from Houston in a trade, led the club with eight interceptions. Gus Hollomon, the ex-Bronco, stepped in at strong safety after Jim Hudson's creaky knees betrayed him. They're reinforced by vets John Dockery, Cecil Leonard and Mike Battle, but the big addition could be speedy Chris Farasopoulos, No. 3 draftee from Brigham Young.

The draft also brought two intriguing Texans, defensive tackle Scott Palmer and Bill Zapalac, who has possibilities at tight end, defensive end and linebacker.

Better work is needed from punter Steve O'Neal, whose fine rookie work slipped to 40.1 last vear.

BALTIMORE COLTS

DON McCAFFERTY, Coach. Assistants: John Sandusky, Dick Bielski, Bob Boyd, John Idzik, Hank Bullough, Bob Miller.

PREDICTION-2nd

The Colts had few illusions about themselves in 1970, even though they returned to regal status for the first time in a dozen years.

When they clinched their division title with a sloppy, 20-14 victory over hapless Buffalo on a snowy day in December they didn't even bother to award a game ball.

Most of the season went like that, with the Colts winning often and apologizing for the manner of victory almost as often.

"We did what we had to do," snapped linebacker Mike Curtis after the Super Bowl, annoyed with the constant references to Baltimore's less-than-overwhelming style.

Chances are, Curtis will be annoyed by the carping again in '71.

The Colts are champions, but their big problem of last season likely will be an even bigger problem this season. It's quarterbacking.

John Unitas' chances of playing this season, or possibly ever again, are rated somewhat slim. At age 38 it's not easy to overcome a torn achilles tendon like the one he suffered in a midwinter paddleball game at the YMCA.

So the Colts' fortunes are in the hands of Earl Morrall, as they were in 1968. That was the year when Baltimore steamrolled the National League and Morrall, as "super sub," won the NFL's Most Valuable Player award.

When Unitas returned to health Morrall once again became a sub. He took his demotion with the special class which is his personal trademark. That bearing won't hurt him this season when he assumes command in another emergency. His teammates appreciate his strong character.

At age 37 his play is spotty, but he still has days such as the one last year when he destroyed the good Jet defense with four touchdown passes. When he came into the Super Bowl his play was an improvement over that of Unitas'.

Developing a quarterback for the future is another matter. The Colts thought they might have a big opportunity when they received Miami's No. 1 draft pick as balm for the Dolphins' luring away Don Shula as coach. But then Shula transformed the Fish into Men of War, finishing in the playoffs and making the Colts' bonus draft pick a late one when no premium college quarterback was available.

So coach Don McCafferty will have to develop ex-running back Sam Havrilak or a well-regarded rookie, Karl Douglas of Texas A&I. Douglas might develop into the first black starter in the NFL, but speculation is he needs plenty of seasoning.

One thing which won't hex McCafferty is lack of skilled receivers. Roy Jefferson started making the key catches almost as soon as he came from Pittsburgh in a trade. There should be even more key ones with a year's familiarity.

When the defenses started concentrating on Jefferson, young Eddie Hinton started making receptions by the cluster. His future is unlimited.

Hinton caught 47 passes for a 15.3-yard average and five touchdowns. Jefferson caught 44 for 16.8 and seven scores. When you consider that Hinton is still developing and that Jefferson will be spending just his second full season with the Colts, it's enough to gladden Morrall's heart.

The pass-reception balance was deadly. Besides the almost-even figures compiled by Hinton and Jefferson, the tight-end combination of John Mackey and Tom Mitchell accounted for 48 catches. John nailed 28 for three touchdowns and a 15.2 average. Mitchell went 20 for 13.1 and four scores. Both seem to have kayoed the injury jinx, too.

JOHNNY UNITAS hands off to NORM BULAICH while directing Colts' drive.

Jimmy Orr, a marvelous reserve, is calling it a career, but Ray Perkins, the man who caught the killer pass against Oakland in the AFC final, is still around. You might see a lot more of Jim O'Brien, the Super Bowl hero, who does more than placekick. He was Greg Cook's top receiver at the University of Cincinnati.

Ron Gardin, a tremendous punt returner as a rookie, is being switched from corner to wide receiver. He should provide some more insurance.

The Colts aren't known as a running team and they did nothing last season which would mar that image. With Tom Matte, the great plugger, stricken by injuries, rookie Norm Bulaich shed his reputation as a career infirmary case, to rush for 426 yards.

Matte, among the most dedicated of athletes, should lick his old injuries plus an off-season appendectomy, to return to the lineup. But he's 32 and, with that in view, the Colts selected Don McCauley, North Carolina's great All-America, in the first round. McCauley resembles Matte in that he doesn't have outstanding speed, but the yardage just seems to mount up when he's carrying the ball.

The Colts also have Tom Nowatzke, Jerry Hill, speedy sophomore Jack Maitland and Billy Burnett, the Arkansas star who was drafted on round No. 9.

The offensive line, embarrassed in a 44-24 loss to Kansas City on Monday night television, regrouped when Dan Sullivan moved from guard to tackle and John Williams came into the starting lineup. Center Bill Curry, guard Glenn Ressler and tackle Bob Vogel are solid people. There are capable subs in Corny Johnson, Tom Goode, Sam Ball and a rookie possibility in All-America guard Bobby Wuensch of Texas.

Defensively the Colts are a sterling group.

The line suffered the loss of tackle Billy Ray Smith, possibly the best Colt in the Super Bowl victory. He quit at age 36. Jim Bailey, who impressed some people as a rookie until he got hurt, moves into his position. There could be another sophomore up front if Bill Newsome continues improving. He kept end Roy Hilton on the bench for a while last year and could do it permanently in '71.

EARL MORRALL gets set to get pass off as Boston's linebacker Cat Bellou and defensive end Ron Berger close in. Earl clicked on 51 passes for 792 yards.

The competition did prod Hilton into a good year, however.

Newsome may have to spend some time at tackle until Fred Miller is healed of his off-season knee surgery. The other end is the Colts' All-Pro, Bubba Smith. It finally came to pass that Bubba produced as the experts said he would when the pros made him the No. 1 pick of the draft five years ago. The team's passrush problems were cured last year when Bubba delivered.

Just to make sure things would continue on a stabilized course, the Colts used a No. 2 draft pick to take Bill Atessis, the University of Texas strongman. He could play tackle or end.

The best-fortified defensive position is linebacker.

Curtis, after a year and a half in the middle linebacker's position, is ready to challenge Dick Butkus, Mike Lucci and Willie Lanier for the top status at the glamor spot. Curtis made the big interception in the Super Bowl, enabling O'Brien to kick the game-winning field goal. He made a lot of big plays before that, too.

Outside backer Ted Hendricks had a sensational year. The 6-7 "Mad Stork" could force his way on to the All-Pro team in his third pro season. The other outside guy, Ray May, was a fine middle backer for Pittsburgh. He made the change of positions seem casual.

Bob Grant, eased out of the starting lineup by May, is an excellent reserve. A trade brought Tom Beutler from Cleveland and sophomore Robbie Nichols has impressive potential.

There's a school of thought that says the Baltimore corners are vulnerable. But kick-return ace Jim Duncan, who beat out Tommy Maxwell at mid-season, could develop into something special. The other corner, Charlie Stukes, will be pushed by a first-round draft choice, Len Dunlap of North Texas State. Maxwell remains in contention and Gardin can be used as a corner again.

The safeties, Rick Volk and Jerry Logan, are superior. Logan spent more time at Volk's old strong-side last year and vice versa. In either combination, they're fine. Tom Curtis is a sound backup and now there's a noble experiment: Ohio State quarterback Rex Kern will be auditioned at one of the deep spots.

O'Brien's 19-for-34 field-goal percentage is not all that spectacular, but he must be judged on that pressure kick in the Orange Bowl. David Lee's punting average, 44.7, is good and he's superb under pressure.

EDDIE HINTON rated 2nd in AFC with 47 receptions for 733 yards, five TDs.

MIKE CURTIS, 6-2 and 232 pounds is seven-year vet at middle linebacker.

MIAMI DOLPHINS

PREDICTION-3rd

There must have been an occasional doubt—with more than an occasional curse—which penetrated the weary brains of the Miami Dolphins as Don Shula sent them through unheard-of three-a-day workouts in training camp last July and August. The doubts and curses involved Shula, who transferred his coaching skills from Baltimore to Miami in a spectacular off-season caper.

But the Dolphins became firm believers as Shula pulled a Pygmalion and led one of pro football's joke franchises into the playoffs.

The Dolphins, of course, are jokes no more. Their colleagues in the NFL expected them to fade from contention at midseason when Baltimore and Cleveland shut them out on consecutive weekends. But Miami came back strongly, drubbing the Colts in a rematch in the Orange Bowl.

People were amazed when they made the playoffs and gave them almost no chance against strong Oakland. But the Dolphins presented a 21-14 argument against the Raiders and walked off the field with greater respect than ever before.

There is reason to believe Miami can be stronger in 1971.

For one thing the Shula system is now familiar to the squad. The coach won't have to spend so much time on introductory things, as he did last year.

For another, the five rookies he started on the defensive unit benefitted from a year's experience. The mistakes they made last year presumably won't be made this year.

The Dolphins' game under Shula is ball control. They took it to the enemy with time-consuming power plays and it paid off Fullback Larry Csonka, the ex-Syracuse star, finished second in AFC rushing with 874 yards and a 4.5-yard average. His running mate, Jim Kiick, had 658 yards and a 3.4 average. Mercury Morris, inserted into the lineup often to provide a change-of-pace outside threat, chipped in with 409 yards and a 6.8 average.

That ate up a lot of clock and kept the opposition from getting an extended crack at an inexperienced defense. Most clubs would be happy with Csonka, a stallion of a runner who seems able to control the ball all by himself. Kiick is a courageous, determined runner with a wide wheel base and a reluctance to go down under man-to-man tackling.

Given that kind of ground game, quarterback Bob Griese was able to use his passing quite choosily. Keeping the defense honest helped give him the highest completion percentage (58%) and the best average-gain per completion (8.24 yards) in the conference.

Bob wasn't afraid to use his runners in that toughest of areas—vs. goal-line defenses. Kiick and Csonka split a dozen running touchdowns.

Not that Miami depended entirely upon a thump-thump attack. Shula made liberal use of Mercury Morris, an excellent outside runner. Morris averaged almost five yards a carry in keeping the middle of the line from getting too congested.

But the essential change of pace came from Paul Warfield, the first outstanding deep receiver on whom Griese has been able to depend. The deal which sent Miami's first draft choice of 1970 to Cleveland for Warfield must rank as one of the all-time bargains.

Warfield caught just 28 passes, but almost all were in the vital category. His six touchdowns all seemed to come at the moment of truth.

Warfield also attracted enough attention to allow Howard Twilley to blossom as a pro. Twilley doesn't have the desired speed, but he is able to get open with precise patterns and a warehouseful of moves. If he's not functioning well, Shula is able to insert ex-Colt Willie Richardson or Karl Noonan, who had an 11-touchdown season for the Dolphins three years ago.

There should be even more dimension this year with the arrival of Iowa State's Otto Stowe, the top draft choice. Stowe went in the second round, as Miami's own first-round choice was sent to Baltimore as balm for Shula's defection. But the 1971 draft was an outstanding one, so Stowe normally would have been a first-round pick.

At any rate, Otto was considered one of the fine collegiate receivers available.

Miami is well cared for at tight end, too. Marv Fleming joined the club after playing out his option and his blocking was a principal reason the running attack functioned so well. Fleming made some important possession catches, also. Backing him up is last season's top draft pick, ex-Michigan All-America Jim Mandich. He has bright promise.

Monte Clark, the ex-Cleveland tackle, made his coaching debut a successful one by coaxing his lightly-regarded charges into superior performances.

Bob DeMarco, a Cardinal reject, is the center. Carl Mauck, who played for Shula at Baltimore, got in quite a bit due to a mid-season injury to DeMarco. Doug Crusan, drafted in the first round three years ago, is a comer at tackle. Playing opposite him is Norman Evans.

The star of the line is Larry Little, the swift 270-pounder who blossomed as a guard under Clark. San Diego had given up on him a year before. Maxie Williams and Bob Kuechenberg are other experienced guards.

Despite the development of the line, Shula was concerned that Griese might go down for the count some day with no adequate backup quarterback available. John Stofa, the muchtraveled Cinderella man, was the only sub at the end of last year.

So Shula made a brilliant draft pick in the fourth round, selecting Notre Dame's great star, Joe Theismann. Most scouts were leery of picking him. He had the major-league arm, the moxie, the mobility, the cool and the ability to win. But he was slight of build and his height was under six feet.

The Dolphins weren't too concerned about those things, since the description could have fit Griese almost perfectly. With Theismann backing up there would be no need to re-tool the Dolphin offense to fit another quarterback.

But the aggresive raiders from Canada, the Toronto Argonauts, stepped in and pirated the Notre Damer.

That caused Miami to sign George Mira, the strong-armed scrambler who bounced from San Francisco to Philadelphia to Baltimore within the last two years. Mira never turned out to be the "next Fran Tarkenton," as predicted, but his greatest moments came in the Orange Bowl, where he played as a University of Miami All-America and a Coral Gables high school star.

Completing the offensive picture is another reject, placekicker Garo Yepremian. The little Cypriot was canned by Detroit because of inconsistencies, but with the Dolphins he plunked field goals through at a 22-for-29 rate. His accuracy from beyond the 40 was startling.

PAUL WARFIELD (left), wide receiver, MERCURY MORRIS, running back, DOUG CRUSAN, tackle, MIKE KOLEN, linebacker, and MAXIE WILLIAMS, guard, present five reasons for high hopes. Morris is Miami Dolphins' bubble gum man.

JIM KIICK has distinction of being among top 10 in rushing and receiving.

The Dolphins started five rookies on defense last year—free safety Jake Scott, corners Curtis Johnson and Tim Foley and linebackers Mike Kolen and Doug Swift. All are expected to be far more effective, although Scott was a find in his first year of U.S. pro ball. He benefitted from a year in the Canadian League.

Lloyd Mumphord might wrest back one of the corner spots, but the strong safety position remains in the strong hands of Dick Anderson.

Nick Buoniconti still has the savvy to help his young colleagues as a middle linebacker, but the Dolphins thought of his retirement day by drafting Dale Farley of West Virginia.

The biggest problem is perfecting a pass rush. Bill Stanfill is a lot better end than he showed last year. Manny Fernandez is developing into a first-class tackle but the Dolphins need more oomph from John Richardson, the other tackle, and end Jim Riley. Ex-Bear Frank Cornish and young Norman McBide are the backups.

BOB GRIESE completed 58 per cent of aerials for 2019 yards, dozen tallies.

BUFFALO BILLS

JOHN RAUCH, Head Coach. Assistants: Marvin Bass, Ralph Hawkins, Chuck Gottfried, Bobby Hunt, Tom Day.

PREDICTION-4th

T hey're starting to refer to the Bills as "sleeping giant" around the AFC. It seems obvious that Buffalo has better personnel than is indicated by its dismal 3-10-1 record of last year.

The team's true capabilities might have been revealed in two victories over the Jets, one of which was accomplished when the New Yorkers had most everyone healthy, and the two games it played against the World champion Baltimore Colts. One was a 17-17 tie and the other a 14-20 loss, in which the lowly Bills made the Colts perspire profusely before they won the game which decided the AFC-Eastern title.

The Cincinnati Bengals and Miami Dolphins were a sampling of negative opinions on the Bills' potential. The Bengals, not exactly a high-powered offensive team, belted Buffalo, 42-14, while Miami closed out the Bills' season by barbecueing them, 45-7.

Buffalo was hexed by a variety of injuries, including a knee problem which kayoed O. J. Simpson for the last seven games. But long before the Red Cross was called the Bills were beating themselves far too often.

Not many clubs were even close to the Bills' turnover total. They fumbled 37 times and lost the ball 26. They were intercepted 26 times and penalized 99 times for 1108 yards.

As if the tangible problems weren't enough, coach John Rauch found himself with a massive morale dilemma. There was almost universal complaining of a lack of communication between the coach and his players.

Owner Ralph Wilson debated with himself for several weeks after the final game before announcing Rauch would be back for the third year on his fouryear contract. The happiest thing that happened to Buffalo was finding a quarterback. Dennis Shaw started the third game of the season and supervised a 34-31 upset of the Jets. He ended up a popular choice for NFL or AFC Rookie-of-the-Year in all but a few polls.

Shaw is a gutsy, poised quarterback with a strong throwing arm. He has a great deal to learn about reading defenses, but his 55 per cent completion percentage and 2507 yards were among the brightest performances ever by a Buffalo quarterback. He takes a hard shot without whimpering, too, which is a definite asset on the Bills. He was dropped 41 times for an aggregate loss of 387 yards.

Shaw was helped by throwing to the leading receiver in the AFC, Marlin Briscoe, who took down 57 passes for an 18.2-yard average and eight touchdowns. Briscoe was Buffalo's sole delegate to the Pro Bowl. The other wide receiver, Haven Moses, has super-star ability but he could be pushed right out of the lineup by the team's first draft choice, blinding-fast J.D. Hill of Arizona State.

Hill was considered the finest non-quarterback available in the draft. He is one of four draftees considered as possible starters.

Another is tight end Jan White, who starred on Ohio State's great teams of the last three years. At 216 pounds, White is a trifle light for the position as a pro, but Rauch wants some speed coming off the line of scrimmage and White has been clocked in :04.6 for the 40-yard dash. His assignment is to beat out incumbent Austin Denny, a yeoman blocker but something of a slew-foot on anything but short pass patterns.

There is another intriguing rookie receiver, clutch artist Bob Chandler of Southern California. He'll have to chase the surviving subs, Glen Alexander, Clyde Glosson and Ike Hill.

Simpson was pronounced medically fit for his third pro season. If the Bills had been in serious contention when O.J. got hurt at mid-season, it's likely he would have been back in the lineup late in the year. The injury was only a capsule tear at the rear of the knee. He was the AFC's second-leading rusher and was averaging 47.6 on kickoff returns when he got decked.

When he was injured the Bills uncovered another fine runner, Greg Jones, but he broke his wrist a few weeks later. O.J.'s original sub, Max Anderson tore up a knee in an exhibition game.

Wayne Patrick is fully healed from his separated shoulder, but he'll have to fight off West Virginia rookie Jim Braxton to keep the No. 1 fullback job. The man who ended the season as the starting fullback, Bill Enyart, was traded to Oakland. Braxton will get another audition as the kickoff man, something the Bills have been lacking.

The No. 1 objective in training camp last year was to re-upholster the offensive line. Progress was made but there still is much work to be done. Right tackle Paul Costa is approaching the All-Star class three years after his switch from tight end. Guard Joe O'Donnell is solid and two sophomores, Jim Reilly and Rick Cheek, had some fine rookie moments splitting the other guard.

But the No. 3 draft pick, 6-7 Washington center Bruce Jarvis, likely will be handed the center job over vet Frank Marchlewski. Vet Howard Kindig, who had some good games before being injured last year, is listed ahead of 300-pounder Art Laster at left tackle.

Ever since Pete Gogolak defected to the New York Giants a half-dozen seasons ago the Bills have searched fruitlessly for a premium kicker. They traded in Bruce Alford (17 for 26) on Grant Guthrie last year. Guthrie was a disappointing 10-for-19.

Unless the Bills pick up another kicker in the interim, Guthrie gets a chance for redemption.

Defensively the Bills have the potential for a first-rate unit, if they could attain some degree of consistency. With key defensive youngsters like middle linebacker Edgar Chandler, defensive end Al Cowlings and cornerback Bobby James more settled into their positions that could happen.

Cowlings was the team's most effective pass rusher as a rookie last season, but he's been switched from the right to left side where he replaces veteran Ron McDole, traded to Washington. Mike McBath, who finished fast in '70, has the right side to himself. Cowlings has to play somewhere for a team which got to the opposing quarterback only 31 times last year.

The incumbent tackles—Jim Dunaway and Bob Tatarek—are in the same mold—very strong, very tough and not very quick. Julian Nunamaker, once a highly-rated youngster, gets a last chance here.

Chandler moved into the starting role for the first time and acquitted himself well. He was an All-America guard at Georgia, so the transition to a new position has been a tough one for him. He has great speed.

If Mike Stratton snaps back from his achilles tendon injury, the Bills will be fortified at line-backer. Stratton was having one of his best seasons as an outside man when the injury hit. The other linebacker, Paul Guidry, is among the NFL's most underrated players. Two other linebackers, Mike McCaffrey and Al Andrews are coming off knee surgery.

James, an intense hard hitter, won a starting corner job last year. He had a peaks-and-valleys season. If he can relax more, the Bills might have found themselves a star. Butch Byrd is a seasoned headhunter on the other side. He comes up with the dramatic interception. The trade which dispatched Enyart to Oakland brings Alvin Wyatt, a promising corner who also doubles as a dangerous kick returner.

Jackie Allen, who filled in competently as a corner, moves to free safety where he challenges Pete Richardson. Big John Pitts sometimes has troubles against the faster tight ends, but he still has plenty of room to develop.

The team is looking for a punter after Paul Maguire, veteran of seven seasons with the team, was amputated from the roster after a rift with Rauch. Jim Sheffield of Texas A&M was drafted with the vacancy in mind.

J.D. Hill and Simpson should form a sensational kick return pair. O.J. was making it a 50yard field before he was hurt.

NEW ENGLAND PATRIOTS

PREDICTION-5th

They used to refer to Billy Sullivan as the "Dreamer" in Boston. The reference was in scorn. The voluble Irishman had the wild idea he could hack through the jungle of Massachusetts politics and get a stadium built. An even wilder notion of his was that pro football would go in the area, even though it twice suffered miscarriages.

It turns out that Billy was a little more realistic than the scoffers thought.

His Patriots, now known as the "New England" Pats, will play in 60,000-seat Schaefer Stadium in nearby Foxboro. By early May, this team which seldom reached the 15,000 mark in season tickets, had sold over 45,000.

The artistic side of the enterprise appeared sunny, too.

The Pats had a quarterback to build their dreams on—Jim Plunkett, the Heisman Trophy winner and No. 1 pick in the professional draft. They had an aggressive and sharp new general manager, Upton Bell, to erase the image of genial bumbling which formerly cursed the operation. And it had an ambitious new coach, John Mazur, who has a mandate to win.

But a mandate to win and an ability to win are two different things. Far different, when you consider the Pats' 2-12 won-lost record.

of their final regular-season game against Cincinnati last December, the Pats trailed, 45-0, and Mazur was apologizing to the players who were putting forth effort for those who weren't.

Starting from that point to the point where those 60,000 customers will be entertained is quite a distance. It won't be done by wholesale trading.

"I'm against that," says Bell.
"I'm a firm believer in the college draft."

But that also means Mazur will have to do a rehabilitation program on some of the talent he has available, including some of those citizens for whom he was apologizing in that Cincinnati game.

Possibly his biggest plus will JOE KAPP is expected to regain his playing form as Patriot with session of camp drills under his belt at start.

JIM PLUNKETT, Heisman Trophy winner and No. 1 in pro draft, hit on 20 of 30 passes as he directed Stanford to 27-17 conquest of Ohio State in Rose Bowl.

be having Joe Kapp from the start of training camp. Kapp came in cold last year after playing out his option in Minnesota and sitting tight until the right offer came along. Kapp was a total flop as a Patriot.

The NFL's outstanding player when he put the Vikings into the Super Bowl in 1969, Kapp slumped miserably in '70. He completed only 44.7 per cent of his passes. The man who threw seven touchdown passes in one game against the Colts in '69 totaled only three in '70. He suffered a horrendous 17 interceptions.

It's inconceivable the big Chicano could have another year even approaching that kind of nightmare. If his pride isn't spur enough, Plunkett breathing down his neck should be added incentive.

Still in the wings, although a forgotten man in the Kapp-Plunkett talk, is former starter Mike Taliaferro. He threw 19 touchdown passes the year before last.

Rehabilitation task No. 2 will be to melt fullback Jim Nance down to manageable size. There are years when Nance looks like the greatest fullback of the last five or six seasons. There are other times when he resembles a Buddha. He says his weight is "irrelevant," but his girth seemed to expand with the size of the contract he signed last year.

He gained 522 yards last season, but he should be flirting with 1000.

Nance's running mate, Carl Garrett, was the rookie surprise of '69 but seemed to lose interest as a pro sophomore. His 272 yards and 3.1 rushing average were on the anemic side. He ranks as rehabilitation project No. 3.

No. 4 is Ron Sellers, who seems destined to become a super receiver if he can develop a higher threshold of pain. He has great concentration on the ball, greater hands and everything else an All-Pro needs. Except that he comes out of the lineup too often for what appear to be minor hurts.

The Pats don't seem to have the reserves to give Nance and Sellers the needed push, but Garrett could be crowded by a rookie sleeper named Josh Ashton from Tulsa. Odell Lawson is highly regarded by the Pat brass, but he averaged only 1.9 yards a carry in his brief appearances last year.

Sellers seems to stand alone among the wide receivers, however. The pencil-shaped pass catcher might have left quite a bit to be desired as a sophomore, but when you consider the competition the Pats should be happy to have him available.

Bake Turner is pencilled in on the opposite side of the line of scrimmage, but his best days were left behind him with the New York Jets. Bake just doesn't have the speed to attract anything more than one-on-one coverage anymore. Charley Frazier, the ex-Houston speedster, also is on the thirty-ish side and his days of usefulness are numbered. Ex-Jet Bill Rademacher is strictly a fill-in.

The sleeper is Gayle Knief, who spent a couple of development seasons on the Viking taxi squad. The Pats signed him on Kapp's recommendation and one late-season game gave them the idea it was a sound investment.

Gino Cappeletti, who lost his place-kicking job to Charley Gogolak, doesn't figure to help any more as a receiver at his advanced age. They're readying a couple of verses of Auld Lang Syne for one of the team's all-time favorites.

Eddie Ray pushes incumbent Barry Brown at tight end.

The offensive line was maligned in song and verse last year. Which is something of a surprise, since several of the Pat offensive linemen are admired individually. They include center Jon Morris, who is considered among the NFL's best men at the position—providing he isn't assigned the task of snapping the ball on punts or place-kicks.

Guard Len St. Jean is always mentioned when underrated players are discussed. Tackle Tom Neville is widely admired by foes. Tackle Mike Montler RON SELLERS, 6-4 wide receiver, led Pats with 38 catches, 550 yards, 4 TDs.

CARL GARRETT was 5th in AFC with 9.9 norm on punt returns last season.

was considered a rookie find in '69. The fifth man, Tommy Funchess, hasn't produced much but he is considered to have great potential. All of which leads us to suspect the line could be a lot better than it has shown.

Mazur will try to develop some depth by switching tight end Tom Beer to guard. Ex-Charger Jim Schmedding and ex-Bill Angelo Loukas also get looks there. Ex-defensive end Dennis Wirgowski is auditioned at tackle and center.

Two young draftees have a better than even chance to break into the starting defensive line. One is the team's No. 1 draft pick in 1970, Phil Olsen. He missed his rookie season due to a knee injury he suffered in the All-Star camp, but this year he's rated a good possibility at right end. He'll have to beat out 6-8 Ron Berger to take the job.

The other touted youngster is tackle Julius Adams, the big boy from Prairie View who was this year's No. 2 pick. He'll challenge aging Jim Hunt at left tackle. The other spots should go to veteran end Ike Lassiter and the longtime star at right tackle, Houston Antwine.

If numbers can improve a situation, the Pats should smooth out their linebacking. There are four candidates at middle linebacker, five serious ones on the outside.

The crowd in the middle includes Jim Cheyunski, who was impressive before a series of injuries kayoed him last year; ex-Bill Marty Schottenheimer; ex-Saint Fred Whittingham; and Bob Olson, whose rookie season was interrupted by a broken elbow.

Mike Ballou and Notre Dame rookie Tim Kelly challenge incumbent John Bramlett on one side. Veterans Ed Philpott and John Williamson fight it out on the other.

The corners, Larry Carwell and Daryle Johnson, are experienced. Johnson had a good year. Veteran Don Webb is a competent free safety. The strong side is cared for by Clarence Scott with backup help from Tommy Janik and ex-Charger Dick Farley.

HOUSTON ANTWINE continues to hold down right tackle spot in 12th season.

CLEVELAND BROWNS

PREDICTION-1st

I t couldn't have been more shocking if Lake Erie suddenly became un-polluted. Or if the Indians started drawing fans to their baseball games. Or if Public Square had been swallowed up in an earthquake.

Here were the mighty Browns, comfortably housed in a weak new division in a supposedly-weaker league where everyone assumed they would be winning through eternity. Instead they get unseated by the rinkiest of the dinks.

What's more, the dinks are coached by the Browns' sworn enemy, Paul Brown!

Could the mighty Browns possibly fall to the likes of the Cincinnati Bengals again?

It says here it won't happen. Nor will they fall to the Pittsburgh Steelers or Houston Oilers, either.

The Browns have a new coach, a new outlook, some new wrinkles on defense and, probably, a new quarterback.

The new coach is Nick Skorich, onetime head man for the Philadelphia Eagles. He served an apprenticeship under the retired Brown coach, Blanton Collier. He knows the territory.

Skorich re-arranged his coaching staff and brought in some new blood. The Cleveland pass defense has been faulty for a couple of seasons. To help remedy that, Skorich brought in Richie McCabe, the ex-Buffalo and Oakland coach who has a bright reputation as a pass-defense whiz.

The possibility of a new quarterback is a strong one. Veteran Bill Nelsen is a fine passer and an even better leader. When he is right. But for the last season and a half his battered knees have prevented him from being right often enough.

When he was injured again last year, his wife even made a public appeal that he quit football. He's back but the Browns are worried that another injury may put him out for good.

They foresaw the possibility a year ago, when they traded their best receiver, the great Paul Warfield, for Miami's first pick in the college draft and then selected Mike Phipps of Purdue. Phipps played little in the first half of last season, but then got his feet drenched at the end.

Mike may not be ready to play regularly, but he might be forced into the job. If Nelsen isn't physically able to go, all that's behind him are Phipps and Don Gault, who is even more inexperienced.

Nelsen played enough last year to gain 2156 yards and throw 16 touchdowns passes. Phipps' meager statistics are 60 passes thrown, 29 completed, one touchdown.

But it's more than stats where Nelsen is concerned. Bill is the inspirational type quarterback who can fire his team to the two or three victories which mean the difference between a divisional championship and second place.

Timing is another element which suffers if Nelsen is out of there. With Warfield gone, it was presumed Gary Collins would have a blizzard of passes aimed at him. Instead Collins caught only 26 for a meager 13.5-yard average and just four touchdowns.

Phipps might accomplish the timing and leadership, as well as the passing knack, but it will take a cram course.

Cleveland doesn't figure that running back Leroy Kelly will have another season like he did last year. Since assuming Jim Brown's role in the Brown offense, Kelly had seasons of 1141 rushing yards, 1205, 1239 and 817.

Then, last year, nothing seemed to go right. The holes which blinked open just in time in previous seasons blinked shut. He finished eighth in the American Conference in rushing. His vardage total was an unimpressive 656, his average 3.2.

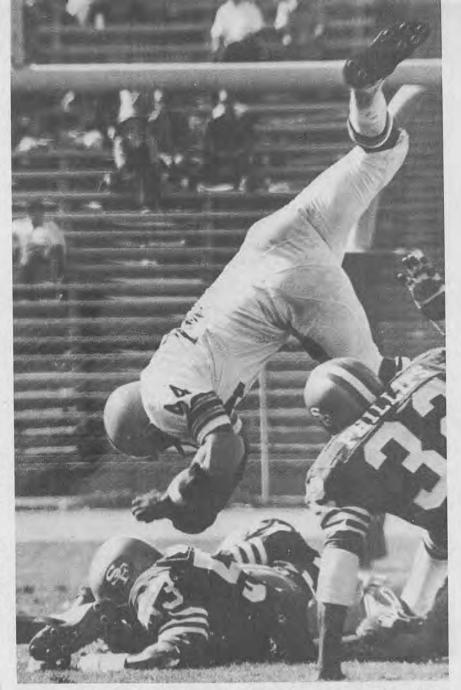

If Cleveland is to overtake Cincinnati or anyone else in the Central Division, Kelly will have to flirt with 1000 yards again.

The rest of the Cleveland offense is sound.

The tight end, Milt Morin, should rank with the NFL's best if his old back miseries are cleared up. He caught 37 passes last year. The big disappointment was Homer Jones, acquired from GENE HICKERSON, 14-year vet is still able to hold his own at 35.

LEROY KELLEY, upended by 49er Mel Phillips after short gain. Kelley looks for better year. In 1970, he gained only 656 yards and a 3.2 average.

the Giants in the Ron Johnson-Jim Kanicki trade. Jones was counted upon to take up the slack of Warfield's departure. Instead Homer failed to win a regular job. His biggest contribution was a 94-yard kickoff return for the touchdown which broke open a close game with Jets in the NFL opener.

With Jones not producing, young Fair Hooker got his shot and caught 28 passes. He'll be challenged this year. The Browns drafted Paul Staroba of Michigan in the third round and little Stan Brown, the marvelous athlete from Purdue, in the fifth.

Lost in the worry over Kelly's bad year, was the fact that ex-Canadian Leaguer Bo Scott gained almost as many yards as Leroy, 625. Reece Morrison and Steve Engel are the backup ballcarriers, but Bo Cornell, the tough runner from Washington

U., was the No. 2 draftee.

The offensive line is in pretty fair shape, even though the two stars, guard Gene Hickerson and tackle Dick Schafrath, are 35 and 34, respectively. Fred Hoaglin ranks among the best centers and he's been a pro just five seasons. John DeMarie is an excellent guard.

Hickerson's successor could be sub Jim Copeland or Bob Pena, the No. 4 draft pick from Massachusetts. Schafrath's successor may be found among sophomores Bob McKay or Al Jenkins. Joe Taffoni currently is Dick's running mate.

Defensively the Browns' greatest improvement last year was in the defensive line. For a team with almost no rush in '69, they developed a great deal of ferocity.

The biggest improvement came from young Jack Gregory, an end with a penchant for pressing the passer. The 6-5, 250-pounder is starting his fifth pro season and should contend for an All-AFC spot.

Joe Jones, a lithe 6-6, had some big moments as a rookie and likely will be Gregory's partner. He'll have to fight off reliable Ron Snidow, an eight-year vet, first.

Water Johnson is a good, solid tackle. Joe Righetti inherited Kanicki's job, but the youngster to watch is Jerry Sherk, the ex-Oklahoma State wrestler. He's a tough nut. Bill Yanchar also broke in as a rookie last year.

The linebacking was in a swirl last year. Almost everyone got a shot at playing the middle. Bob Matheson, who started as a defensive man, was first in line for the job this year. He's a one-time No. 1 draftee who hasn't hit it as predicted yet.

Jim Houston began '70 as the middle man, but later was moved to his familiar post on the outside. Dale Lindsey also got a crack there. John Garlington is developing into a strong outside backer but anyone could be in danger if quick Charlie Hall of Houston' U. draws a bead. Another reliable sub is Bill Andrews.

Erich Barnes led the team in interceptions last year but he's 36 and entering his 14th pro season. There doesn't seem to be much opportunity for that old a corner on a team with rebuilding notions.

The first draft pick was Clarence Scott, the quick corner from Kansas State. He's just about conceded a starting job. Walt Sumner, who lacks speed, is listed as his running mate but the job could fall to someone like Ben Davis or Major Stevenson.

Best of the deep backs is probably Ernie Kellerman. Slight for the position, Kellerman still manages to produce the big plays. Sumner may be switched to this position. Mike Howell, who has been an in-and-outer, is the free safety. Fred Summers backs up both.

Don Cockroft connected on 12 of 22 field goals last year, reminding no one of Lou Groza. If Bob Jacobs of Wyoming looks good in the early games, Cockroft likely would concentrate on punting he averaged 42.6.

CINCINNATI BENGALS

PREDICTION-2nd

A long about the middle of last season the Cincinnati Bengals were stumbling around in their dismal fashion, causing no one much trouble.

They were in the midst of a six-game losing streak when that old sorceror, Paul Brown, cast a spell of sorts over them.

Down went Buffalo. Then the hated Cleveland Browns. And after that the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The Bengals didn't stop until they reached the playoffs and were eliminated by the eventual world champions, the Baltimore Colts.

What price would the Caliente winter book have quoted on the Bengals winning a championship from Paul Brown's old Cleveland team in their first year together in the newly-aligned Central Division of the American Conference?

That in itself was surprising enough. But the astounding part is that the Bengals did it without their Honcho, quarterback Greg Cook. Cook suffered a shoulder injury playing an off-season basketball game and didn't get to throw a ball after that.

In his place came little Virgil Carter, a weak-armed but savvy youngster who had been rejected by the Chicago Bears and Bills before the season started. With Brown calling plays, as usual, and Carter doing the basic execution, the Bengals performed one of the year's minor miracles.

The general feeling among pro football folks was the Cincinnati might have made a shambles of the Central Division race had Cook been the quarterback.

Their reasoning was that Cook's strong arm would have given the Bengals a weapon to open up the bunched-up defenses they faced. Carter's lack of height often kept him from spotting open targets deep in enemy secondaries. When he did spot them, he frequently didn't have the oomph to get the ball there.

Bob Trumpy, the big tight end, was the Bengals' best deep threat when Cook was healthy. But last year his per-catch average dropped a full six yards, from 22.6 to 16.6, and his touchdown production slipped from nine to two.

It was generally conceded that Cook would send Carter to the bench this season, but then the medics discovered excessive "play" in Greg's shoulder late in the winter and dispatched him to the Cleveland Clinic for additional surgery.

Whether he can regain the touch which made him a super rookie in 1968 is the big question for Cincinnati football fans.

Almost as big a question is whether Carter, if called upon again, can maneuver the Bengals ahead of Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Houston two years in a row.

Last year he did it with guile and savvy and scrambling ability —and not a little help from Brown. There are three teams in the AFC-Central who vow he couldn't do it again. Unless Brown can work his sorcery on PAUL BROWN, Head Coach. Assistants: John Donaldson, Bill Johnson, Chuck Studley, Bill Walsh, Vince Costello, Chuck Weber.

another rookie, he may have to

The rookie is a kid out of Augustana named Ken Anderson. He does well what Carter does poorly—throw the long ball and put steam on the medium-depth pass. He was one of the worst-kept secrets of the last draft. Most clubs planned to risk a fifth or sixth choice on him, but the Bengals, undaunted by Augustana's minor-league status, gambled in the third.

The key receiver still is Trumpy, who was bothered by an ankle injury last year. Few tight ends go deep as well and few attract as much sophisticated coverage.

With Trumpy restricted last year, Chip Myers, something of an unknown, led the club in receiving. The 6-5 Myers averaged an impressive 16.9 yards on his 32 catches. Eric Crabtree, Speedy Thomas and Bruce Coslet are other veteran receivers, none of whom ranks among the conference's outstanding players. Brown still is trying to develop ex-Olympic sprinter Tommie Smith.

Running was the Bengals' chief offensive catalyst last year. Jess Phillips had a tremendous start and Paul Robinson a big finish. Phillips finished with 648 yards. For half the season Robinson continued the slump which followed his great rookie year. Then he took off and finished with 622 yards and a better average than Phillips, 4.2 to 4.0.

Carter, if he plays, also is a rushing contributor. He ran 65 times for a 4.2 average.

Best of the reserves are speedy Essex Johnson, promising Doug Dressler and Boston College's Fred Willis, No. 4 draft choice.

The offensive line is a fermenting one, and Brown upholstered it by making offensive linemen his first and second draft picks. Vernon Holland, a young giant from Tennessee State, was No. 1. He'll challenge Howard Fest for one tackle job. The second is Steve Lawson, a 262-guard from Kansas. He'll try to push Rufus Mayes, who was switched from tackle after the Bengals traded with the Chicago Bears for him.

Ernie Wright, a starter throughout his 12-year career at San Diego and Cincinnati, is one tackle. Mike Wilson, a blocky strong man, backs him up. Brown's messenger guards are squat Pat Matson and Guy Dennis.

Possibly the strongest interior position is center. The team's Johnson, enters his fourth pro season.

Cincinnati got a big lift from two rookies in the defensive line last year. Tackle Mike Reid has that All-Pro look and end Ron Carpenter has big possibilities. Reid is considered a combination of Henry Jordan and Tom Keating. He's quick and strong.

The big surprise was Steve Chomyszak, the huge tackle previously best known for his homeric appetite. Chomy started handling guards like he handles roast beef. Royce Berry, the other end, is noted for making big plays. Nick Roman and well-traveled Willie Jones played quite a bit last year.

Brown fingered middle linebacker Bill Bergey as one of the coming stars in pro football when he drafted him three years ago and Bergey hasn't done anything to disappoint him.

Ken Avery, the ex-Giant, had a big year at outside linebacker. Al Beauchamp is an enforcer on the other side. Bill Peterson start ed at one time and Wayne Mc-Clure, sprung from the armed forces, also has experience. Chip Bennett, last year's No. 3 pick, original first draft choice, Bob was injured in 1970.

HORST MUHLMANN was 2nd in AFC, 108 points, 25 field goals, 33 extra points.

Ken Riley starts his third season at the right corner. The other side witnessed one of Brown's finds - Lemar Parrish, who breaks the speed limit. Fletcher Smith, so-so as a corner, was a far better strong safety in his first try at the new position. Ken Dyer, once a San Diego receiver, filled in nicely at free safety. The reserves are thin. Corner John Guillory and safety Al Coleman are the best.

The Bengals, with a lot of holes in a lot of places, can beat you with little things like the special teams.

Their punter, Dave Lewis, had the best punting average in pro football, 46.2. The ex-Canadian Leaguer also doubles as a fill-in quarterback.

Place-kicker Horst Muhlmann soccer-kicked 25 of 37 field goal tries. His output from beyond the 50, 4 for 6, was the best long-distance average in the league.

Parrish scored on punt, kickoff and blocked field goal returns. Robinson teams with him on kickoff returns to make it a double-barreled threat. Essex Johnson backs up on punt and kickoff returns. He'd be working regularly for some other teams.

DAVE LEWIS led all pro punters with 79 for 3651 yards for a 46.2 average.

PITTSBURGH STEELERS

CHUCK NOLL, Head Coach. Assistants: Max Coley, Bob Fry, Walt Hackett, Charley Sumner, Lionel Taylor, Babe Parilli, Lou Riecke.

PREDICTION-3rd

P ittsburghers take for granted the also-run status of the Steelers. It's part of the tradition, like no booze on Sundays.

Yet, for a fleeting stretch in the middle of last Autumn, it looked as if the Steelers might win their first pro football title of any sort.

The interminable losing streak—the one which qualified them to draft Terry Bradshaw the year before—stretched to 16. Then a 23-10 victory over Buffalo broke it. Then there was another victory over Houston and before you knew it the Steelers, of all people, had won four of five and were in command in the AFC-

Tradition, of course, won out. But the Steelers showed enough occasional skill to convince them and their followers that the team is capable of winning the easiest division in the National League. If smoke can be licked in Pittsburgh, why can't the pro football drought?

Central.

The Steelers dropped five of TERRY HANRATTY completed 64 of 163 aerials as he shared quarterback role.

TERRY BRADSHAW gets off pass as he is tackled by Houston's Elvin Bethea. He hit on 83 of 218 aerials for 1410 yards, six touchdowns while sharing qb duties.

their last six, but the one victory was scored over Cleveland, 28-9, which was another morale booster. It was the hurdling of a large psychological barrier to lick an old rival which seemed unbeatable for the rest of its conference foes before the season.

Bradshaw, the "Namath with Knees," discovered the road to immortality is a long one. It seemed that every other pass he launched was intercepted. He finished with 24 interceptions, only 6 touchdown passes.

Almost handed the No. 1 quarterback job at the start of the season, he floundered miserably and lost it to Terry Hanratty a mere pro sophomore. Still considered a fantastic prospect, Bradshaw will have to wrest it away from Hanratty in training camp. They started even.

Terry wasn't very impressive either in '70. Bradshaw completed but 38.1 per cent of his passes. Hanratty connected at a 39.3 pace.

To smooth out their rough edges, the Steelers hired Babe Parilli to coach the quarterbacks. Babe has a way with youngsters. His arrival into the Jets' camp as a backup quarterback co-incided with a maturity of Joe Namath.

Object No. 2 is to acquire some pass-catching talent to smooth the way for Bradshaw and/or Hanratty. Ron Shanklin had his moments as a rookie, but over-all the receiving corps was not something to curdle the blood of an opposing defensive coordinator.

Shanklin caught 30 passes for a 23-yard average. Dave Smith, something of a rookie find, caught 30 for 15.3 average. The third receiver, tight end Dennis Hughes, was also a rookie. He caught 24 and then spent the winter and spring in Bradshaw's hometown so he could work out daily with the quarterback.

Another year of experience could make them far more effective, but to be sure Pittsburgh drafted Grambling's Frank Lewis, a grass-burning pass catcher on the first round.

Lewis has enough speed to terrorize any corner back in shoulder pads, but he was cursed by a constant rash of injuries in college.

The reserves are undistinguished. The best of them are little Jon Staggers, Hubie Bryant and a sleeper rookie, often-injured George Ranager of Alabama.

Coach Chuck Noll did an admirable reclamation job on his running game, using two rejects as starters. Ex-Giant John Fuqua gained 691 yards, scored seven touchdowns and averaged 5 yards a tote. Ex-Colt Preston Pearson got 503 yards.

Noll isn't kidding himself about the condition of that area, however. He traded tight end J.R. Wilburn to San Diego for Brad Hubbert, who had one big year for the Chargers. He also took a stab at Delaware State's Steve Davis, who could be one of the surprises of the college draft.

gerty and John Brown were the starting tackles, but no one would be surprised if they lost their status to Jon Kolb, Rick Sharp or rookie Worthy McClure of Mississippi. The same goes for guards Bruce Van Dyke and Sam Davis, challenged by Ralph Wenzel and rookie Mel Holmes of North Carolina A&T.

There is some hope that guard Larry Gagner, injured in an automobile accident last year, might be able to resume his football career.

Most of what the Steelers accomplished last year was due to their defense. The unit is worthy of a contender.

Best-fortified area is the defensive line. Joe Greene, likely the best defensive left tackle in the AFC, stifles the ground game and provides a superior interior rush. Unfortunately his notoriety overshadows the work of Chuck Hinton, another fine tackle.

Both Lloyd Voss and Ben Mc-Gee do first-rate work at end. McGee, like Hinton, is among VE PICK FOOTBALL WINNERS CHECK AND COMPARE THE OUTSTANDING FEATURES OFFERED BY CAVALIER! POINTWISE PREDICTIONS FOR: ALL LEADING COLLEGE GAMES PLAYED DURING THE TEN BIG WEEKS OF THE SEASON. Each prediction is supported by a short comment that shows the main reason behind our selection. Special attention is given to both Nationally and Regionally televised games. This extra effort resulted in a record of 76% pointwise winners in all TV contests in 1970. Even more outstanding was our record of 5 winners and only 1 loser in games that received National coverage. ALL GAMES DURING THE SAME PERIOD IN THE NFL WITH AN INDICATION OF THE THREE THAT WE CONSIDER TOPS FOR THE WEEK. Our success last year in the all important Monday night encounters is worthy of mention. We correctly predicted the pointwise winner 7 times in 10 attempts. AT LEAST FOUR COLLEGE GAMES THAT WE HAVE DETERMINED TO BE THE BEST OF THE LOT. These selections are made after a careful study of all aspects of each contest. Only twice last year in 11 attempts (Bowl games included) did our top games lose more than they won. the NFL's most underrated players. Noll keeps the troops fresh by substituting—particularly with L. C. Greenwood, who could win a starting job this year.

Andy Russell won a trip to the Pro Bowl last year and was a popular All Conference choice. He's extremely intelligent and especially sound on pass coverage. The big surprise was middle man Chuck Allen. The Steelers gambled by trading Ray May to Baltimore, but Allen protected the investment by having his finest season since his peak years with San Diego. He's a leader, but at age 31 there may be fewer surprises.

Henry Davis, the ex-Giant, beat off Jerry Hillebrand to win the other outside post last year. This time he may be harder pressed. The Steelers' No. 2 draft choice was Jack Ham, a popular All-America choice at Penn State.

Pitt gambled on another rookie linebacker, Mike Anderson of LSU. He was widely admired by pro scouts, but his injured knees made him a big risk on draft day.

LEE CALLAND, cornerback, ranked 4th in AFC with bag of seven interceptions.

In the secondary, where there has been a 100 per cent turnover since Noll arrived two years ago, more changes are possible. Five of the 22 draft picks were defensive backs.

Ex-Packer John Rowser won a starting corner job and ex-Viking Lee Calland filled the post opposite. Mel Blount may challenge either in his sophomore year.

Strong safety might be the best protected spot, with vicious-tackling Chuck Beatty backed up by experienced Kenny Graham, who once starred for the Chargers. Ocie Austin, the ex-Colt, comes back from achilles tendon surgery. Clarence Oliver and rookie Ralph Anderson, a No. 5 pick from West Texas State, are ready to step in if he falters.

Scot Al Watson stepped in at mid-season to take the place-kicking job of departed Gene Mingo. But Watson's 5-for-10 record in field goals and 7-9 in extra points wasn't too inspiring. Paul Rogers, who kicked for National champion Nebraska, heads a field of four rookie challengers.

The Steelers are better protected in other specialties.

Bobby Walden is one of the finest punters in the game. He averaged 45.2 on 75 kicks.

Blount averaged 29.7 on kickoff returns and Pearson was an NFL champion in that category when he played for Baltimore. Staggers is threatening with a punt in his hands.

HOUSTON OILERS

PREDICTION-4th

The Houston Oilers discovered in 1970 that senators and congressmen aren't the only folks hamstrung by lame-duck years.

Wally Lemm, the Oilers' coach, told his front office before last season that the '70 season would be his last as head coach. The news, inevitably, seeped down to the troops, even before Lemm made it official after an embarrassing loss to his old team. the St. Louis Cardinals.

It might have been coincidental but the Oilers seemed to approach the season with alarming disinterest. It was an unfortunate year for such an attitude, since Cleveland sagged violently, Pittsburgh was rebuilding and Cincinnati, the eventual Central Division champion, was bogged down with a six-game losing streak at mid-season.

The Central still seems to be anyone's pie. To try for a much larger slice of it, owner Bud Adams brought in one of pro football's brightest assistant coaches, Ed Hughes, to run the store.

Hughes comes from San Francisco, where he ran the offense, and before that the defense, for his brother-in-law, Dick Nolan.

He knows the terrain, having coached in Denver, Dallas (with the AFL champion Texans of 1962 before they became the Kansas City Chiefs) and then Washington and San Francisco.

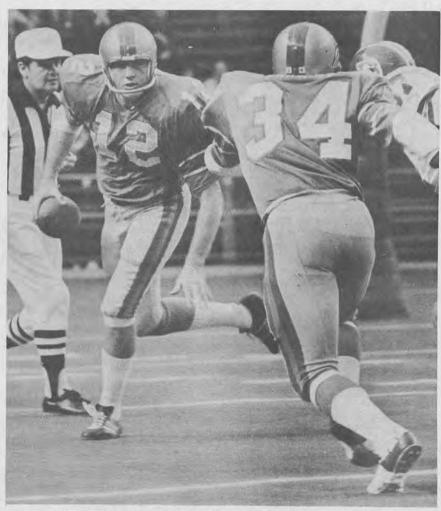

ED HUGHES, Head Coach. Assistants: Walt Schlinkman, Frank Polsfoot, Burnie Miller, George Dickson, Walt Yowarsky, Ernie Zwahlen.

"From what I've seen in films," says Hughes, "The Oilers have better personnel now than the 49ers did when we went to San Francisco in '68."

What the Oilers didn't have a lot of was quarterbacking. The big trade which brought veteran Charley Johnson to Houston sort of fizzled when Johnson suffered a variety of disabling injuries.

His understudies, Jerry Rhome and Bob Naponick, were not the type you build dynasties upon. Understandably, the Oilers went after quarterbacks in the draft.

Their No. 1 pick was the top small-college player of the year, big Dan Pastorini of Santa Clara. The team didn't have a pick in the second round, but when their turn came in Round 3 no one had selected a quarterback since they themselves had picked Pas-torini. So they took another passer, Kansas State's Lynn Dickey.

"Why take a lesser person?" reasoned Hughes. "We checked our list and everyone left at the top of the other positions was a lesser player than Dickey. I was amazed he was left when our turn came.'

Not that Houston will run a nursery school for QBs.

"Charley Johnson is my No. 1 quarterback," emphasizes Hughes.

Presumably it will be a teacher-pupil relationship, with Johnson tutoring Pastorini and Dickey as he finishes out his

When he was healthy, Charley managed to complete 51 per cent of his passes and gain 1652 yards. That standard wasn't maintained when Rhome replaced him.

There will be a better selection of receivers this time. The Oilers made two deals to bring in name receivers. Willie Frazier comes from San Diego in exchange for a young guard, Doug Wilkerson, who was the Oilers' first draft choice a year ago but a flop in his rookie year. Frazier started his pro career with the Houston club and became an All-AFL tight end. He caught 38 passes for 497 yards and five touchdowns with the Chargers last

The rub is that Houston already has a talented tight end, Alvin Reed, who led the team in receiving with 47 catches. But Frazier has enough speed to be played outside. He could be used to take the pressure off little Jerry LeVias.

LeVias is considered one of the great deep threats in football, but his 41 catches averaged just 12.9 yards in 1970. That just doesn't jibe with his potential. Another big outside possibility is swift Charlie Joiner. Ken Burroughs, acquired from New Orleans, will get a shot too.

Burrough was the first receiver taken in the 1969 draft, when the Saints nominated him in the first round. He didn't thrive as a rookie in New Orleans, but the Burrough and Dave Rowe, a defensive tackle, cost the Oilers their best power runner Hoyle Granger. Granger was hurt most of last year, so rookie Joe Dawkins got his chance and did surprisingly well. He gained 517 yards and averaged 4.2 yards a crack. Other seasoned backs include Roy Hopkins, Woody Campbell and Mike Richardson.

The Oilers picked Grambling's Willie Armstrong on the fifth round of the draft. A year ago Armstrong was considered a sure first-rounder, but he had a slumpy senior year. There's a possibility the swift 230-pounder could connect solidly as a pro.

Spain Musgrove moved from defensive end to offensive tackle to replace Glen Ray Hines who was traded to the Saints. He joins old pro Walt Suggs. Bobby Maples is a capable center.

But there is worry at guard.

Tom Regener tore up a knee and missed the last 11 games. Jerry Sturm was picked up from New Orleans, but he's 34. Sonny Bishop, once a top player, comes back after a year's retirement, but he's 32. Ex-tight end Elbert Drungo is projected as a starter.

The only really quality player on the defensive line is Elvin Bethea, who ranks as one of the best in football in just his fourth pro season. He's quick and strong, but needs more help than he's been getting.

The only addition of note is Rowe, considered a journeyman tackle. Willie Parker has had his moments during a four-year career. Mike Tilleman, obtained from New Orleans will help. Tom Domres is a plugger and Leo Brooks still is an unknown quantity in his second pro season. The other end, Pat Holmes, has slipped considerably. He's 31.

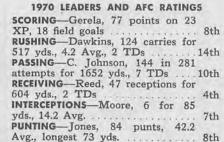

The linebacking is good. It will be excellent if George Webster can lick the after-effects of a knee injury which cost him the last half of the season. At age 26 he has a full career ahead of him and he's already recognized as an All-Pro.

Ron Pritchard won a starting job as a sophomore and should improve steadily. Garland Boyette brings eight years of experience to the middle linebacking assignment. The reserves are thin, with ex-starter Olen Underwood the best.

Zeke Moore, who had a good season, could become one of the better corners in the NFL. With Leroy Mitchell traded to Denver. Benny Johnson gets a chance to win a regular job in his second year. Willie Alexander of Alcorn A&M was the sixth draft pick.

John Charles came to the Oilers from Denver, via Minnesota, in the Mitchell deal. He's played the corner, but might figure more prominently as a safety.

Ken Houston may be the fastest strong safety in captivity. At 6-3 and 196 he can handle big tight ends, too. Johnny Peacock inherited the free safety job when W.K. Hicks went to the Jets. Peacock still has a lot of rough edges to be smoothed out.

Roy Gerela's 18-for-32 field goal performance wasn't great, but Hughes is inclined to stick with him rather than try Pastorini at the specialty. Gerela, a soccer-stylist, is entering his third season.

Spike Jones' punting averaged 42.4 for 84 kicks, but Pastorini likely will get an audition there.

LeVias' punt returning slipped and none of the Houston kickoff returners ranked among the AFC's top 10, so there may be competition there.

TOM DEMRES, vet defensive tackle, is rated as tough man to run against.

ELVIN BETHEA, defensive end, is tops on team at dumping foes trying to pass.

KANSAS CITY CHIEFS

"HANK" STRAM, Head Coach. Assistants: Bill Walsh, Pete Brewster, Tom Pratt, Tom Bettis, Tommy O'Boyle, Alvin Roy and John Beake.

PREDICTION-1st

We must go on the attack . . . we must constantly be on the attack . . . we will be on the attack."

Some of the dialogue from "Patton?"

A quote from Gen. Creighton Abrams on the latest Vietnam plan?

Sen. Muskie's political strategy?

No, just a memo from Hank Stram, coach of the Kansas City Chiefs on his goals for 1971.

Last year the Chiefs lost their World championship through one of the oddest bits of self-restraint in recent football history. This enormously talented team scored just 24 touchdowns by rushing and passing. That's less than two a game. It finished 12th in the 13-team American Conference in offense. In eight of 14 games it scored less than 20 points, suffering through two contests without a touchdown.

Teams like Denver and San Diego beat them.

It seemed impossible for a team which looked so strong in overpowering the Minnesota Vikings in the Super Bowl the January before could slip to a 7-5-2 record. But it happened.

The word this year is firepower. Offensive firepower.

Getting the Chiefs to use it is another thing. Len Dawson seemed to shed his reputation as an over-cautious quarterback in the '70 Super Bowl, but it hung over him again last year with good reason.

At age 36, Dawson should have a season or two of good football remaining. He completed 54 per cent of his passes last year for an unimposing 1876 yards and 13 touchdown passes. But he gets good protection and still unleashes the occasional long ball.

Stram has to get Dawson to open up if the Chiefs are to regain the playoffs, much less the Super Bowl. The bright spot in KC's 1970 record, a 44-24 bombing of the World champion Colts, is an indication it can be done and that Dawson can do it.

The Chiefs are in a position to get off to a fast start. Their first six games are on the cushy side.

ED PODOLAK eludes Oilers' Johnny Peacock on scoring drive. Ed led KC runners with 749 yards on 168 tries. Had 3 TDs.

It isn't until the last half that they see Oakland, the New York Jets, Cleveland, the Detroit Lions and the San Francisco 49ers.

Stram made two off-season moves to inject some new flavor into the offense. One was drafting the University of Houston's flashy pass receiver, Elmo Wright, on the first round. Wright has special skills. The only doubt about him was surgery on his knee after last season.

The other move was a trade with Dallas which sent KC starter Gloster Richardson to the Cowboys for Dennis Homan, once a No. 1 draft choice with the Pokes but little more than a reserve since then. Stram was willing to gamble by swapping Richardson's inconsistency for Homan's potential.

The hope is that either Wright or Homan can attract enough coverage to help spring Otis Taylor on the other side. Taylor is one of the game's great pass catchers when he's right.

Last year Taylor caught 34 passes for an 18.2 average and got into the end zone just three times. That's measly stuff for a receiver with his talents. He just isn't being used enough.

If things break right for the Chiefs, enemy secondaries will have plenty to worry about when they set their traps to contain the KC tight end. Stram hopes fervently things will break right by Morris Stroud developing well enough to play the position regularly.

Morris is 6-10 and fast. He caught only four passes as a rookie last year but if the rough edges can be filed off there isn't a strong-side safety in Christendom who could cover him one-on-one.

If he doesn't arrive this year, Fred Arbanas likely would start again if his knee injury is healed. Otherwise Billy Cannon gets the call. If Arbanas is healthy, Cannon isn't likely to stay in KC long.

The biggest offensive thrust last year was Ed Podolak, who rushed for 749 yards in his second pro year and first as a starting back. He also returned punts at a 13.5-yard average and kick-offs for 20.5, which made him a most valuable fellow.

Wendell Hayes and Robert Holmes should see-saw the full-back battle, but there's a chance Jim Otis, the ex-Ohio State star acquired from New Orleans, could muscle into the act. Podolak is backed up by swift Warren McVea and now squat Mike Adamle brings strong credentials from Northwestern into the fight.

The line is one of the most experienced and biggest in pro football. Tackle Jim Tyrer has been a starter for 10 seasons, tackle David Hill for eight, guard Ed. Budde for eight and guard Mo Moorman for three. None of the quartet is under 6-5 and Moorman is the "lightweight" at 252 pounds.

Jack Rudnay moved ahead of rickety-kneed E.J. Holub at center last year. The reserves, deep in talent, include Holub and two No. 1 draftees, guard George Daney and tackle Sid Smith, plus Remi Prudhomme and a promising rookie tackle from Minnesota, Alvin Hawes.

There should be a lot of competition for the backup job behind Dawson. Young Mike Livingston has held it for three seasons, but Stram is high on much-traveled John Huarte, the one-time Heisman Trophy winner from Notre Dame. He also drafted Chuck Hixson, the SMU star.

Defense put the Chiefs in the Super Bowl two years ago and, with one notable exception, that fine unit still is intact.

The exception is defensive end, where Jerry Mays retired after 10 pro seasons. A spectacular hustler, Mays was voted to the all-time American League team. The heir-apparent is Marvin Upshaw, who flopped at Cleveland after the Browns made him their No. 1 pick a few years ago.

Aaron Brown, who had an upand-down year, is the other end. The tackles are extremely strong, with Buck Buchanan on one side and Curley Culp on the other.

The Chiefs had two secondround draft choices and used both to select defensive linemen. The first is a risk, a 305-pound tackle from obscure William Penn named Wilbur Young. He has been bothered by ankle trouble. The other is Scott Lewis, a 6-6, 260-pounder from Grambling. He has a reputation as a pursuing defensive end.

The linebacking is among the best in football. Middle man Willie Lanier rates with Dick Butkus, Mike Curtis, Tommy Nobis and Mike Lucci in the game's Big. Bobby Bell is an almost automatic All-Pro pick on the outside. Jim Lynch, the other outside man, is outstanding.

The backups are bright, too. They include last year's No. 2 draftee, Clyde Werner, Bob Stein and Chuck Hurston.

In two seasons Jim Marsalis established himself among the best corner backs. Emmitt Thomas, the other corner, is a good one. Rookie Kerry Reardon and sophomore David Hadley are the backups.

Free safety Johnny Robinson, a Chief original, led pro football in interceptions with 10, giving lie to his 32 years. Strong safety Jim Kearney does a competent job. Ex-corner Willie Mitchell understudies Robinson and Goldie Sellers, who missed last season due to a thigh injury, backs up Kearney.

Place-kicker Jan Stenerud is peerless. He banged home 30 field goals last year. His kickoffs are near unreturnable.

JOHNNY ROBINSON, vet Chief, paced pro grid in interceptions with ten.

OAKLAND RAIDERS

onsider the Oakland Raiders' portfolio of assets and you wonder why the doomsayers are prophesizing their decline and fall.

Only three teams ever won four consecutive division championships in the NFL. One was in the sport's medieval period. the Chicago Bears of 1940-43. Another was in the early renaissance, the Cleveland Browns of 1950-55. The only one in "modern times," are the current Raiders, who perched atop one of the strongest of pro teams, the Kansas City Chiefs, for the last four seasons.

No team has a better won-lost record in the regular season for the last four years—46-7-3.

And the stars. The Raiders are loaded with stars. Seven of them were selected to play for the American Conference on the newformat Pro Bowl last January.

But still....

The doomsayers point to some impressive cracks in the team's foundation.

There is evidence that considerable bickering takes place in the inner sanctum.

And all those unhappy endings . . . the Super Bowl loss to Green Bay four years ago . . . The upset loss to the Jets in the AFL final three years ago. . . . The upset loss to runnerup Kansas City in the playoffs of 1969.

And then, last year, the cavein at Baltimore, which allowed a newcomer to participate in the fifth Super Bowl in place of one of the old AFL clubs.

A lot of the disenchantment involves Daryle Lamonica, who had been considered one of the great quarterbacks in football up to last year. Then the opposition started getting deep conscious against Lamonica, conceding short and medium passes to him in order to prevent the demoralizing long score for which he was famous.

But instead of taking what was conceded, Lamonica often threw deep anyways. It was no accident that George Blanda, the venerable backup quarterback, saved so many games. Lamonica was yanked often in favor of the 43-year-old graybeard.

Daryle's statistics still remained respectable-2516 yards gained passing with 22 touchdowns. His interception percentage even sunk to the lowest point of his career, 4.2. But his frequent departure from the lineup prompted whispers that there was a general lack of confidence in him among his coaches.

The Raiders speak glowingly of their young protege, lefthander Ken Stabler. It would not be shocking if Lamonica was lifted even more frequently in 1971with Stabler the relief pitcher more frequently than Blanda.

Still, the possibility exists that Lamonica, if he lowered his passing sights, could approach his 1969 performance when pitched 34 touchdowns.

But it seems improbable that the "Cinderella Man," Blanda, can duplicate the type of magic he performed in '70.

In five successive games he snatched victory from the jaws of defeat.

He relieved the injured Lamonica to throw two touchdown passes in the 31-14 victory over Pittsburgh; the following week he kicked a 48-yard field goal to tie Kansas City 17-17 with three seconds to play; next he beat Cleveland, 23-20, with a 52-yard field goal in the last three seconds; the week after that he engineered a touchdown drive in the last four minutes to beat Denver, 24-19; then he field-goaled San Diego into defeat, 20-17, with four seconds remaining.

"I just keep playing so the fans over 40 have something to cheer about," he kids.

The other big problem for the

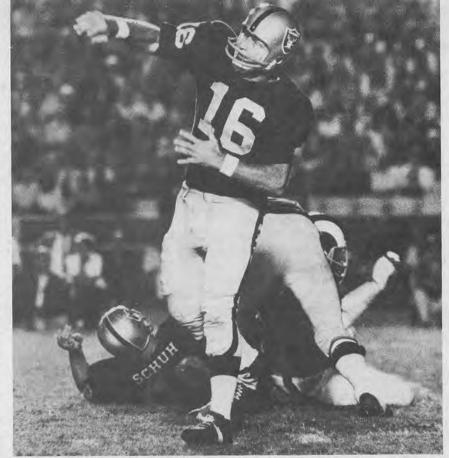

DARRYL LAMONICA, Oakland quarterback, hands off to running back PETE BANASZAK. Darryl topped AFC in passing with 179 completions for 2516 yards.

Raiders is their defense.

Physically the team seems to be lacking down the middle. Dave Grayson, the free safety retired, then signed with San Diego. There was some dissatisfaction with Dan Conners as middle linebacker despite his ability to come up with big plays. The Oakland people even grumbled that Tom Keating, who plays the important position opposite the center in the odd-man defenses, wasn't the tackle he was a few years ago.

Strategically there was a lot of second guessing. Grayson blasted the defensive game plans for their predictability. Richie Mc-Cabe, an assistant coach in charge of the secondary, was even stronger in his criticism. Sid Hall, the linebacker coach, defected to the Rams.

There is some debate whether all the criticism was merited, but the Raider defense did look exceedingly soggy and sadly predictable in the championship game loss at Baltimore.

GEORGE BLANDA, Oakland's 43-year-old quarterback, scored 84 points on 16 field goals and 36 extra points. He also passed for six touchdowns in 1970.

There is nagging doubt about who should succeed Grayson. One school of thought is that George Atkinson, who had his problems at strong safety, should move over. But it's likely the spot will be occupied by the No. 1 draft choice, Ohio State's ferocious monster man, Jack Tatum.

Conners has held off his chief competitor in the middle, Bill Budness, for a half-dozen seasons and there is no reason to believe he can't do it again. A dark horse is Bill Enyart, the big fullback acquired in a trade with Buffalo. Enyart will be converted to middle backer, a position he played with distinction as a sophomore at Oregon State.

Keating likely will keep his job. Even at 80 per cent efficiency he's better than most of the other Raider forwards. Carlton Oats, the other tackle, is a journeyman. Al Dotson and Art Thoms have given no previous indication they can move him out. End Ben Davidson will be 31 and Tony Cline, who gained a fair reputation as pass rusher in his rookie year, still needs more polish.

The Raiders drafted two outside linebackers within the first six rounds. No. 2 was Phil Villapiano of Bowling Green and the sixth-round choice was used to take Southern California's All-America, Greg Slough. They'll press Gus Otto and Bill Laskey. The sleeper is sophomore Gerald Irons.

Corner is well protected with All-Pros Willie Brown, and Bob Brown, from the Rams in a trade for Kent McCloughan. Veterans Nemiah Wilson and Jim Warren are also available.

Warren Wells, who caught 34 touchdown passes in the last three seasons, is a very large question mark. He faces tougher opposition in criminal court than he did on the football field.

The Raiders will have Fred Biletnikoff (45 catches and seven touchdowns) and sophomore tight end Raymond Chester (42 catches, 7 touchdowns). An adequate replacement for Wells may be found between Rod Sherman (18 catches) and speedy mystery man Drew Buie, but still it's almost impossible to completely cover up a 34-touchdown vacancy.

Oakland's ground game, definitely second fiddle to the passing attack, will function smoothly again if much-injured Hewritt Dixon can have another good year. But Hewritt, who gained 861 yards last year, is 31. Charley Smith, much underrated, gained 681 yards.

The reserves include tough Mary Hubbard, who had two 90-yards-plus days in relief of Dixon. Pete Banaszak and Larry Todd are well seasoned subs and sophomore Don Highsmith is a sleeper. In addition the Raiders drafted USC's fine back, Clarence Davis.

The offensive line is among the best around. The one soft spot, left tackle. should be tougher since big Art Shell will have a year of starting experience to his credit.

Center Jim Otto, the perrenial All-Star, shows little sign of deterioration at age 33. Guards Gene Upshaw and Jim Harvey are superior. Tackle Kevin Hardy, acquired from the Packers, is a hard knocker. Best subs are Bob Svihus, an ex-starter, and guard George Buehler.

The draft was a good one. In addition to Tatum, Villapiano, Davis and Slough, the Raiders got Penn State center Warren Koegel (No. 3), Stanford's fine tight end Bob Moore (5) and Yale corner Don Martin.

SAN DIEGO CHARGERS

SID GILLMAN, Head Coach. Assistants: Joe Madro, O.A. Phillips, Jackie Simpson, Jim Phillips, Charlie Waller, Phil Bengtson, Lamar Lundy.

PREDICTION-3rd

On the surface, Sid Gillman would appear to be a glutton for punishment.

Sid has a cranky ulcer and a football team which is making a career out of finishing third in the Western Division of the American Football Conference.

Five straight seasons the Chargers have trailed Kansas City and Oakland when the firing ceased. In 1969 it was enough to drive Gillman from the sidelines for the first time in his coaching career. He stepped out of the head man's role and concentrated on being a general manager after his ulcer blindsided him at mid-season.

After winning his last four games in '69, Charlie Waller, the new coach, discovered the third-place blues last year. Movie mogul Gene Klein, the club president, inspected the 5-6-3 won-lost record and decided a change had to be made.

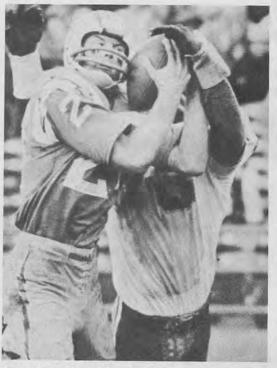

Waller was demoted to assistant coach, Gillman reinstated as head coach and Harland Svare, the ex-Ram coach, imported to serve as general manager.

Whether it makes any difference is a moot question.

The team seems to have an even larger dilemma at quarter-

JOHN HADL, No. 2 passer in the AFC, gained more than 2000 yards (2388) for the 7th successive season. Career total of 21,414 yards is 14 on all-time list.

GARY GARRISON battles Em Thomas of KC for ball. Gary caught 44; 12 TDs.

back. John Hadl often impersonates a superb passer when San Diego plays on the road, but when it's at home the catcalls from the grandstand sometimes transform him into a bumbling loser

Last year at this time, there were those in San Diego who swore young Marty Domres would force Hadl out of a Charger uniform.

The same people now are suggesting Domres will never make it in San Diego, even with Hadl a bit of a question mark after suffering an off-season skull-fracture.

Nevertheless, Hadl remains the big hope for improvement in the standings with Marty still considered by Charger brass as the eventual successor.

They'll have something extra going for them this year—a shored-up running game. The team's No. 1 draft choice was Leon Burns, the amazing Little All-America from Long Beach

The heavily-muscled Burns is a mature 28 and could move right into the lineup as starting fullback.

Then there is a healthy Dick Post. When Post is not suffering from aching legs, he's among the most dangerous runners in pro football. Witness 1969, when he led the old American League in rushing. Top that off with a Mike Garrett, free from ideas about chucking his football career for one in baseball, and you have dimension, speed and pretty good power with which to season your passing game.

Biggest news was the trading of Lance Alworth to Dallas for tight end Pettis Norman, offensive tackle Tony Liscio and defensive lineman Rob East.

The consequences of Alworth's departure remain to be seen. Gary Garrison surpassed Lance as a receiver last year but to think that the graceful "Bambi" won't be missed is whistling in the dark by Charger fans. He might have had financial problems and injuries and thoughts of retirement in the last few years, but when opposing defensive coaches started plotting an antidote for the San Diego offense, Lance occupied a large chunk of their time.

By trading Alworth, Gillman is forcing himself to play Walker Gillette, who was the team's No. 1 draft choice a year ago.

Gary Garrison's average of 22.9 vards for each of his 44 catches was the best in the American Conference. So was his 12 touchdowns. His receptions gained 1006 yards.

Gillette caught only two passes last year, but most of his inactivity was due to the presence of Garrison and Alworth rather than his own shortcomings. The slender hurdler should benefit greatly by increased playing time.

Chuck Dicus, the Arkansas star, has been added and Billy Parks, who quit training camp a year ago, returns for another shot.

The dealing of Frazier to Houston leaves a gaping hole in the passing game. Norman caught only six passes last year. Frazier caught 38. But Pettis is a more enthusiastic blocker and his work could help the ground game function better. Art Strozier, who played briefly last year, should battle J.R. Wilburn, the ex Steeler, for a backup assignment. Wilburn came West in the trade for fullback Brad Hubbert. Another possibility is Mickey McCarty, who fermented for a couple of seasons of the KC taxi squad.

The offensive line, once one of the team's strongest areas, has to be placed in the questionable category. The only established star up front is guard Walter Sweeney, a popular All-Pro.

Russ Washington, a budding super star at tackle, had to be used as a defensive player for a couple of seasons so his progress has been retarded. The other tackle, Terry Owens, will be challenged by Liscio.

Bill Lenkaitis, who failed to beat out Sam Gruneisen in two previous tries, inherited the center job when Sam was cut adrift in the spring. Lenkaitis was considered an AAA prospect when he came out of Penn State but has been something of a disapopintment in the pros. Doug Wilkerson, obtained from Houston in the Willie Frazier trade, is the front runner at the guard opposite Sweeney. Wilkerson was considered a flop with the Oilers, but he has speed and strength and could blossom under the Chargers' veteran line coach, Joe Madro. Ira Gordon and Harris Jones, both inexperienced, press Wilkerson.

There isn't much depth.

Defensively the Chargers have been wanting for the last several seasons. The pass rush is too flabby and the secondary intercepted only five passes last year.

Ironically the team will stick with the status quo in the line. The hope is that end Steve De-Long will give them a year like he did in 1969. The other end, young Joe Owens, led the team in sacking passers with 11. He came in a trade with New Orleans, where he was a linebacker. Huge Ron Billingsley never lived up to his promise as a No. 1 draftee of a few years ago but he's established as a starting tackle. When Washington shifted to offense last year, Gene Ferguson transferred his 6-8 and 300 pounds to defense. He'll have to beat off the well-traveled journeyman, Andy Rice, and Tom Williams for the other tackle job. Williams was last year's second draft choice.

East is an unknown quantity. Possibly the most startling thing about the pass defense is that Jim Hill, the free safety, did not intercept a pass. Free safety is supposed to be the centerfielder's position, where most of the steals are accumulated. That's why ex-Raider Dave Grayson was added to the roster. Corner Bob Howard, entering his fifth pro season, is probably the best deep back. Strong safety Jim Tolbert and corner Joe Beauchamp are journeymen.

Linebacking is the best defensive area. Middle man Bob Babich healed well from the knee injury which delayed his rookie debut in 1969. He could develop into one of the game's better men at the position. Right outside backer Pete Barnes also is a fine player. He led the team in interceptions with three. The other outside man, Jeff Staggs, could be challenged by vets Rick Redman or Bob Bruggers. Jack Protz, who impressed on special teams in his rookie year, backs up Babich in the middle.

Dennis Partee, who set a team record for points and field goals in 1969, was restricted to punting last year because of a leg injury. Much-traveled Mike Mer-

The draft brought three running backs within the first six picks. Besides Burns the Chargers selected Mike Montgomery of Kansas State and Jake Mayes of Tennessee State. To make room for the newcomers Brad Hubbert was dealt to Pittsburgh for Wilburn and Russ Smith was released. The seasoned competition is Jeff Queen, Gene Foster and Dave Smith.

DENVER BRONCOS

LOU SABAN, Head Coach. Assistants: Hunter Enis, Whitey Dovell, Stan Jones, Joel Collier, Jerry Smith.

PREDICTION-4th

They were falling like flies before the Denver Broncos early last season. Suddenly it was close to November and the Broncs had won four of their first five. The Denver fans weren't only talking of the first winning record in the team's history, they were whispering division championship!

And just as suddenly it rained on their parade.

There was a four-game losing streak and some more troubled waters and at the end the record read the usual—5-8-1.

This time it may not be that good. The schedule is tougher and the Broncos' 1970 problem, inconsistent quarterbacking, could be more of a problem.

The fellow who did most of the Denver quarterbacking, Pete Liske, was traded to Philadelphia. Liske came down from the Canadian League two years ago, full of possibilities after honing his skills in Calgary where he was league passing champion. His arm was still found wanting in the U.S., however, and the Broncs saw little future in staying with him.

Coach Lou Saban finished last season with one of his former Maryland players, Al Pastrana, at quarterback. Pastrana's 38 per cent completion average and touchdowns - to - interceptions ratio of 1 to 9 are not the sort of things pleasant dreams are built upon.

So Saban, as he often does, went to market for a trade. He talked Green Bay into parting with Don Horn, once the heirapparent to Bart Starr. Horn has four professional seasons behind him and quarterbacks have been known to blossom right about that stage of their development.

Yet the word on Don was that he had an agonizing amount of trouble reading defenses, that he was no better on the subject in his fourth year than in his first.

DON HORN, quarterback acquired from Green Bay, completed 28 for 428 yards.

You have to wonder why the Packers would let him loose otherwise, especially with Starr's arm in questionable shape and only Zeke Bratkowski, another elderly fellow, in the wings.

Still, Horn closed the 1969 season by piercing the defenserich St. Louis Cardinals for 410 yards and five touchdowns. That memory lingers on.

Despite Horn's prominence in the Denver picture, Saban would love dearly to talk Steve Tensi out of his retirement plans. Tensi, discouraged by the plague of injuries which have cursed his pro career, decided to chuck it all and return to school for his teaching certificate. Saban, who gave up two No. 1 draft choices to San Diego for the rights to Tensi when he became Denver coach five years ago, feels Steve may be approaching the peak of his career and the turning point in his physical misfortunes.

If Tensi decides on the classroom, it will be up to Horn almost entirely, although former Heisman Trophy winner Gary Beban was signed for another pro shot, and young Steve Ramsey came in a trade with New Orleans.

Whoever plays quarterback, his No. 1 offensive asset should be running back Floyd Little, who led the American Conference in ground-gaining with 901 yards. Little is an explosive runner who can negotiate the heavy traffic as well as provide the long gain.

Floyd never has benefitted from a first-rate offensive line, but a couple of new additions could provide more running room for him this year.

Last year's No. 1 draft pick, Bob Anderson, spelled Little capably. Anderson was the team's second-ranked ball carrier with 368 yards and a 4.4-yard average. Willis Crenshaw, still a good blocker, might have seen his best days, though. He averaged just 2.9 yards a trip last year.

The big hope at fullback is Clem Turner, 6-1 and 236, who was acquired from Cincinnati. He's slimmer than he was with the Bengals, which should help.

Finding suitable passing targets might prove thorny. Al Denson made 47 catches but Saban then dealt him to Minnesota.

Mike Haffner and Bill Van Heusen, the remaining veteran wide receivers, are in the journeyman class. Haffner has shaky knees. To upholster the position, Saban made Dwight Harrison of Texas A&I his second draft choice. Harrison can fly. He was voted "Receiver of the Decade" in the Lone Star Conference.

John Embree and Jerry Hendren also are in the fight for pass-catching employment.

Saban made a sound move in acquiring Jim Whalen from Boston to play tight end last year. He made 36 catches. Billy Masters, who has speed and size, came from Buffalo to back him up.

It's not inconceivable that both offensive tackles could be rookies. Mary Montgomery (6-6 and 255) was this year's first draft choice. John Kohler (6-5 and 270) was the No. 3 pick last year, but decided not to report when he couldn't get a 100 per cent report on his physical report card. They would have to beat out veterans Sam Brunelli, Mike Current and Roger Shoals, who came in a trade with Detroit. Montgomery comes from football-savvy Southern California, but Kohler, a product of South Dakota, likely needs more extensive schooling.

RED SHEET MOVES TO THE TOP 21-4-1 Record in 1970

Pointwise's Exclusive late weekservice. The Red Sheet has the sports world buzzing. Last season it proved its worth both in the college and pro ranks. Fifteen college teams were given a rating of 89 or above during the 1970 season. We tabbed 12 WINNERS, 2 LOSERS, and 1 TIE vs. THE SPREAD. Including 12 WIN-NERS and 1 TIE out of our last 13 straight selections.) Of this group six teams were awarded the ultimate high rating of 90 or above ALL SIX BEAT THE SPREAD. Our Pro Selection of the Week beat the spread NINE TIMES OUT OF ELEVEN. Thus our combined record of top College and Pro picks was 21-4-1 vs. the spread. Proof that THE RED SHEET IS THE CLASS OF ITS FIELD of his game in his sixth pro sea-

Another rookie, 6-6 Tom Beard, might cause some trouble for incumbent center Larry Kaminski. Saban likes big guys in the middle of his offensive line and the Michigan Stater is 6-6 and 260.

Second-year man Steve Alexakos is expected to push George Goeddeke at guard. Ex-linebacker Mike Schnitker eased past Bob Young, since traded to Houston, at the other guard.

The best fortified area on the team continues to be the defensive line.

Richard Jackson, a quarterback mauler, was a popular All-

Dave Costa didn't make All-Pro, but any list of the top 10 tackles in pro football which doesn't include him isn't accurate. Paul Smith, who's had experience at end, will start inside, backed up by Jerry Inman. Pete Duranko has the other end spot, but he may be pushed by a tough kid from Yankton State named Lyle Alzado.

The linebacking crew doesn't contain many household words, but there is a lot of experience there and Saban seems satisfied —at least for the moment.

There are big hopes for 6-5 Dave Washington, a diamond-inthe-rough free agent who won a starting job in his rookie year. He has tremendous speed. Carl Cunningham was traded to Detroit for Shoals but Olen Underwood was acquired from the Oilers in exchange for Young. Billy McKoy and Chip Myrtle also have some seasoning.

The team had enough confidence in middle man Fred Forsberg to trade ex-starter John Huard to New Orleans. Ken Criter understudies Forsberg.

Except for corner Bill Thompson, a budding star, it's a mixed bag in the secondary. Thompson was a great punt and kickoff returner as a rookie, but knee surgery cut him down last year. If he comes back healed, he could be an eventual All-Pro.

Ex-Jet Cornell Gordon is the other corner, but he'll be heavily challenged. Randy Montgomery, a flashy rookie who also went down to knee surgery, returns and Saban drafted cornerbacks in the fourth and sixth rounds.

The higher pick was Cleophus Johnson of Alcorn A&M, who did:09.4 in the 100 as a trackman. The other corner is Michigan State's Harold Phillips.

The Broncs traded soccerstyler Bobby Howfield for Jim Turner, who kicked 34 field goals the year the Jets won the World championship. The thin air in Denver won't hurt him.

Bill Van Heusen, scarred by several knee operations, still punted for a 42.9 average on 87 kicks.

RICHARD JACKSON (left), All-Pro defensive end and co-captain DAVE COSTA, are stalwarts on outstanding line that stopped rival quarterbacks 50 times.

Canadian Football Leaque

by Scott Young

Sports Editor of Toronto Telegram, Scott Young has covered CFL for past 36 years and has had 15 books published mostly on sports.

Eastern Conference

- 1. Toronto Argonauts
- 2. Montreal Alouettes
- 3. Hamilton Tiger-Cats
- 4. Ottawa Rough Riders

Western Conference

- 1. Saskatchewan Roughriders
- 2. British Columbia Lions
- 3. Edmonton Eskimos
- 4. Calgary Stampeders
- 5. Winnipeg Blue Bombers

ne major trend in Canadian football was sharply reversed months before the 1971 season even began. The net result will be (a) to upgrade championship chances of the Toronto Argonauts; and (b) to strengthen the rest of the CFL by natural personnel fallout from startling new Argo acquisitions.

But one casualty might be the old Love Thy Neighbor policy that is traditional between the NFL and the CFL. How can you love thy neighbor when you suspect he's picking your pockets? Never before in the Canadian game has a club gone out, as Toronto did, and out-fought various NFL adversaries for the likes of Greg Barton, Joe Theismann and Jim Stillwagon.

In recent years there have been profane mutterings among Canadian GMs when CFL stars played out their options apparently knowing exactly where their next pay checks were coming from—in the NFL.

Joe Kapp went to Minnesota from British Columbia Lions, Bo Scott to Cleveland and Margene Adkins to Dallas from Ottawa Rough Riders. There were many others—Vic Washington, Jake Scott, Peter Liske—as many as five or six, some years. But tampering was always either difficult or impossible to prove. A latenight phone call or a seemingly innocent third-party contact is hard to trace. Also, some of the impetus undoubtedly came from the players themselves: U.S. citizens who tasted stardom in the CFL and then naturally began to wonder how they'd make out in the NFL.

JOE THEISMANN, 6-0 175-lb quarterback from Notre Dame, joined Argos.

LEON McQUAY, 205-lb swifty from U of Tampa, also signed with Argos.

This year's raids in reverse, however, seemed to be on a rising scale of provocation. There wasn't much in the case of Ohio State's great Jim Stillwagon. Even though he was consensus All-America, the coaches' lineman of the year, winner of both the Knute Rockne and Vince Lombardi trophies as top lineman, he was only six feet, 225. Green Bay's plans for him were fairly modest.

But then came Notre Dame's Joe Theismann. Miami Dolphins were so sure they had him that they said he had agreed to terms. There was even a report that he had signed. Theismann did not contradict—until suddenly he signed with Argos for a two-year contract that grossed not much less than $200,000.

This was quite a capture—a quarterback second only to Jim Plunkett for the Heisman trophy, conductor of the second top offense in the U.S., star of Notre Dame's upset against Texas in the Cotton Bowl.

But Argos had one left: they also signed Greg Barton, who had played out his option with Detroit and (before that) had been traded to Philadelphia for three draft choices. He'd been mainly on the taxi squad with Detroit behind Greg Landry and Bill Munson, but Philadelphia apparently was going to give him a chance at the first-string job. The Eagles promptly filed a tampering charge with NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle. This automatically caused an investigation by commissioner Jake Gaudaur of the CFL. But Toronto wound up with two of the best-rated quarterbacks ever to come to Canada.

The immediate effect was to make Argos pre-season favorites

All the offensive stars and substitutes are individually rated on player cards(12 per team). 26 team rosters(one for each team) give specialists and defensive ace player ratings. All players because of BLM's unique, precise ratings perform just as they do in real-life action! You will be amazed at the performances of Gabriel, Dawson, and Namath as they throw to the finest receivers in the game. All the runners will perform realistically, too!

.. Basketball: 'most exciting'

This is the newest of BLM's great line of games. Really the most exciting Basketball game to appear in years. You get 170 player cards, representing 10 players on each of the NBA teams. You will be surprised at the life-like performances of the 'Big O', 'Will the Stilt', Willis Reed, and Jerry West, plus the greatest player since Wilt, Lew Alcindor. These players, plus the lesser but important NBA players will all be accurately rated in shooting, rebounding, dribbling, passing, and defense. With your skill in coaching they will perform just as they do in a 'real game'. When your team wins it will be your victory as Coach.

...Baseball: 'most scientifically realistic' 🚥

This fine game is undoubtedly the best baseball game. We will gladly send you info about it. You owe it to yourself to find out about this game. BLM Baseball is the most realistic and mathematically accurate of all table games. You get more player cards(600), more managing decisions, players are rated in more categories, and play is as it would be if you were in the 'dugout'. You constantly make decisions affecting the outcome of each game. The players will hit, pitch and defend just as they do in real-life action! It's truly the best of the Great games.

for the 1971 Canadian championship Grey Cup. They missed by not much last year. The management apparently felt that quarterbacking was the main problem. So the acquisition of Theismann and Barton put both Toronto quarterbacks of last year on the block Don Jonas went to Winnipeg Blue Bombers, where coach Jim Spavital said he'd probably be first-string. Among the four top quarterbacks in Eastern Canada last year, Jonas's .530 passing percentage was best. His interception rate (25 out of 256 passes) was second best. His Toronto sidekick Tom Wilkinson (Colorado State),-who had a .584 pass-completion percentage, playing fewer games-was traded to BC Lions. There, both coach Eagle Keys (Saskatchewan last year) and GM Jackie Parker (BC coach last year) said they'd always admired Wilkinson with Toronto, and would give him a shot at the first-string job held last year by Paul Brothers.

Lions, fourth in Western Canada last year with spotty quarterbacking, conceivably could win the West this season. If Argos win the East, the confrontation between castoff Wilkinson and new boys Barton and Theismann would be something extra.

Last year's champion Montreal Alouettes undoubtedly will give Argos their hardest run in the East this year, if the poise that quarterback Sonny Wade found at playoff time holds up to go with Alouettes excellent running and catching game.

The big pre-season question Saskatchewan's marks were Roughriders. They finished 14-2 in the West last year but were beaten for the Western championship by third-place Calgary at least partly because Saskatchewan quarterback Lancaster, chosen the nation's most outstanding player and Schenley award winner, playing with a sore arm.

League attendance will be close to 1970's 2,000,000, counting pre-season, regular schedule and playoff games. The championship Grey Cup game had a television audience of nearly 7,000,000, one third of the nation's population.

Rule changes this year are mainly technical: a kicked ball that hits the goalposts and rebounds to the playing field is ruled dead; the quarterback will be hit with an illegal procedure five-yard penalty if the referee decides his actions are designed to draw the opposition offside. The CFL's three downs remain. as well as 12-man teams, and the larger field: 110 by 65, with 25 vard end zones.

EASTERN CONFERENCE

TORONTO-In the city where hope springs eternal (but the last national championship was 1952) fans are used to being No. 1 in May but up the track in November. To beat this dubious tradition, the most successful coach in Toronto's last 20 years, Leo Cahill, went on the hunt last winter as never before. The elastic was off the bankroll for a club that had nothing but sellouts (33,135) last season.

On offense, Greg Barton and Joe Theismann join a backfield considered the best in Canada last year-except at quarterback. Bill Symons led Eastern Canada's rushers with 908 yards, with teammate Dave Raimey right behind with 839. Dave Cranmer was obtained from Calgary to challenge these stars might wind up on defense because just about the surest thing in the Argo camp is Leon Mc-Quay, signed from U. of Tampa where he set records as a runner. Receivers Jim Thorpe and Mel Profit are among Canada's best.

On defense, Jim Stillwagon from Ohio joins such stalwarts as Jim Corrigall, Mary Luster and Jim Tomlin, with some positions open to new acquisitions.

Coach Cahill's raids in the U.S. made him a bad word among other recruiters. His contract runs through 1972. Some of the load has been removed by hiring John Barrow, former Hamilton line star from Florida, as general manager.

MONTREAL-They called Alouettes the dream team of Canada in 1970-up from a feckless last place finish the year before to finish third, only two points out of first, and then go on to beat Calgary for the Canadian championship. Alouettes average only 24 years of age. At the beginning of the 1970 season they had 23 new players. As one of their executives put it: "We're an expansion club, without any expansion having taken place." But with a rookie head coach, Sam Etcheverry, a new owner, Sam Berger, and a new general manager, Red O'Quinn, they brought sellout crowds back to a franchise that many thought had taken the gas-pipe through a succession of losing seasons. As young, eager defending champions they'll be tough to beat.

Among offensive veterans are the Grey Cup game's most valuable player, quarterback Sonny Wade; halfback Moses Denson, who had a sensational 7.1 rushing average; Canadian receivers Terry Evanshen and Peter Dalla Riva; and the Quebec legislative member George Springate, kicking specialist. All-star Ed George will anchor the line.

The defense is young, tough and fast: Steve Smear and Steve Booras at defensive ends; line-backers Mark Kosmos, Ted Collins and Mike Widger. The deep secondary is Al Phaneuf, player-coach Gene Gaines and Bobby Lee Thompson, who joined the club late last season and was a playoff sensation.

Among important new imports are Bill Massey from the University of Hawaii, a potentially great ball-carrier.

HAMILTON—New head coach Al Dorow promised a simplified offense for Hamilton Tiger-Cats when he took over from Joe Restic, who moved to Harvard—and whose dazzling so-called Selecto-matic defense carried Hamilton to a surprising first place in the East last year. But Hamilton's performance this rebuilding year is in good hands on offense, no matter what the playbook says. Joe Zuger and Wally Gabler are experienced CFL quarterbacks.

Despite the first-place finish, rebuilding was necessary because of age. Hamilton traded veteran back Ed Buchanan to Calgary and also put veteran defensive end Billy Ray Lochlin on waivers. With the retirement of John Barrow, a couple of spots opened on the defensive line—with newcomers Rock Perdoni from Georgia and Bob Davenport (Arizona State) deemed most-likely-to-succeed.

Tony Gabriel, a local high school product who was a star at Syracuse under coach Ben Schwartzwalder, is another outstanding acquisition at offensive end. He joins holdover stars Tommy Joe Coffey (Eastern scoring leader with 113 points) and Gord Christian to give Hamilton the core for an excellent passing game. Hamilton's coup, signing Steve Worster from U. of Texas, should make the Hamilton running game one of the country's best. He'll share it with Dave Fleming, also a fine receiver, and Gary Wesolowski.

Angelo Mosca, voted top lineman in the East last year for his work on Hamilton's defensive line, anchors the newcomers in front of one of Canada's most efficient set of veteran linebackers and defensive backs.

OTTAWA-Gary Wood was the quarterback picked up from the New York Giants roster in 1970 to replace Canada's all-time native-born great at that position. Russ Jackson. There was bound to be a readjustment periodbut coach Jack Gotta headed into this season confidently. In 1970 Wood passed more, completed more, gained more yardage in the air per game, and passed for more touchdowns than anybody else in Canada. But the Ottawa running game was nowhere.

That's the big improvement in Ottawa this year: the acquisition of Dennis Duncan. Duncan was Montreal's leading rusher and fifth in the nation, but was suspended for breaking training. He was traded to Winnipeg after the season ended; then to Ottawa before this one began. This gives Wood power running to hook up with Sophomore Terry Wellesley, who as a rookie was top rusher behind Wood last year.

The rest of the club seems solid enough to reverse many of the narrow defeats Ottawa suffered while compiling a 4-10 record in 1970. Ivan MacMillan is back—a sophomore at 19, who had 14 field goals last year. Plus all-star backs Hugh Oldham and Wayne Giardino. Jerry Campbell at linebacker heads a quick defense that includes Al Marcelin and good experience at most positions.

WESTERN CONFERENCE

saskatchewan—The Roughriders, for years the strongest and most consistent club in the West, are in the enviable position of having 35 veterans returning to hammer it out for the 30-player squad. That is the limit a CFL club may dress. But still much depends on the health of Ron Lancaster, their scrambling quarterback who passed for 2781 yards in 16 games last year. A winter operation on his sore throwing arm stood up well.

The return of all-star Wally Dempsey in a trade with B.C. gives extra strength to Saskatchewan's already formidable secondary. Bubba Wyche and Gary Lane provide good depth behind Lancaster at quarterback.

New coach Dave Skrien (who assisted Eagle Keys last year) is giving Dave Simpson from Drake a good shot at a starting job as offensive tackle. One other new import with the likely-to-succeed tag is Dale Nosworthy of Utah, at tight end. But with 18 veteran imports back to try for the 14 positions allowed Americans on Canadian rosters, other new imports who make the grade this year will be mild surprises.

Skrien's assistant coaches are John Payne, formerly an assistant at Winnipeg and Edmonton, and Tom Lovat, who served at Idaho State and the University of Utah. "The prospects of another fine season were never better," said Ken Preston, general manager. Which must mean that he's expecting full recovery from George Reed, perennial all-star at fullback, whose leg was broken last year—holding him to a mere 821 yards rushing.

BRITISH COLUMBIA—The importance of a running quarter back in the Canadian game (wider field) is a simple fact. Every all-time great—Bernie Faloney, Jackie Parker, Russ Jackson, Ron Lancaster, Joe Kapphas been a scrambler for good yardage on option plays. Tom successful Wilkinson's most games in his Toronto years were when he was encouraged to run options. The welcome he got in B.C. was therefore natural: Jackie Parker, general manager, always liked Wilkinson's toughness in running the option; and coach Eagle Keys, after his years at Saskatchewan with Ron Lancaster scrambling for him, felt the same. Wilkinson's arrival took a lot of heat off the sometimes brilliant Paul Brothers.

Jim Evenson and Jim Young are the main ball-carriers, along with the promising recruit Josh Ashton from Tulsa. Ken Phillips is the West's best punter, Ted Gerela a top field goal man. Recruiting added more variety to last year's pass-catching, when Jim Young was the favorite target. The B.C. defense is vastly strengthened—and this was badly needed. B.C. had the worst defense in the nation last year. Once, B.C. led Montreal 27-0, and lost.

EDMONTON—They have started calling head coach Ray Jauch Iron Eyes The Second—after that distinguished Western Conference alumnus, Bud Grant. Jauch was named 1970's Coach of the Year in the CFL, as a rookie.

He has mainly a passing team, with Don Trull and Rusty Clark at quarterback, but is running "not oftener but we hope more effectively," this year.

Fullback Bob Houmard is a proved line-crasher (810 yards rushing with Winnipeg in 1970); speedy Jim (Long Gone) Thomas is in form after sitting out most of last year; and the brilliant Tarry Swarn has matured from his rookie year. Dave Vaughan, a tight end drafted by Miami, helps the offense.

The Edmonton defense is tough. Dwayne Miller from Drake shapes up as a replacement for veteran Joe Hernendez in the backfield to go with all-star John Wydareny. Defensive tackles Greg Pipes and John Lagrone win wide concession as being the best pair in Canada at that position. Ron Forwick and Jerry Griffin are other stars.

WHOLESALE CARDS CO. - Dept. SSP Box 496, Georgetown, Conn. 06829

CALGARY-Coach Jim Duncan is blessed some days, and cursed others with the hot and cold ways of veteran quarterback Jerry Keeling.

But he has the nation's top rusher, Hugh McKinnis (1135 vards in 1970), and top pass receiver, Herman Harrison (70 receptions. 1024 yards, touchdowns). The defense may be best in the nation, too. In 1970 it allowed only 3633 yards gained-with Toronto, the closest contender, 800 yards back. But, because of an in-and-out attack the team only won nine while losing seven in 1970 before knocking off Edmonton in the Western semi-final and Saskatchewan in the final-then losing to Montreal in the Grey Cup.

For Calgary to do as well this year (after losing Dave Cranmer to Toronto) it seems that Mc-Kinnis will need help in the running game-more than he can expect from holdover back Rudy Linterman, Jesse Mims has been recruited from New Mexico State and Thermus Butler picked up after being dropped by Edmonton.

Wayne Harris, chosen Lineman of the Year in Canada for his superlative work at linebacker, is back along with Larry Robinson, deep defender, Frank Andruski, Dick Suderman, Roger Kramer and Granville Liggins.

WINNIPEG-The Blue Bombers, with a 2-14 record last year, aren't daunted: they're talking artificial turf, 5000 new seats for 1972, and a playoff finish (third or better) this season-with Don Jonas the take-charge quarterback they've lacked. This dogged 32-year-old spent most of his pro career with Orlando in the Continental League, where the record book reads like his autobiography. He felt that he didn't get a chance to prove himself with Toronto in 1970.

Until coach Jim Spavital signed Jonas, he had five quarterback prospects, as well as five candidates for field goal kicking. Jonas, an accomplished passer, also tied with Hamilton's Tommy Joe Coffey for most field goals in the East last year; at 15. Bombers also have Walt McKee, from the Canadian Collegiate champion University of Manitoba Bisons, available for kicking duties.

On offense, from all-star split end Rick Shaw, wingback Dick Smith (54 catches last year), and linemen Bill Frank and Chuck Liebrock, Bombers are tougher, with Jonas. Defense is strong: Bombers allowed only 77 points in the final seven games last year. All-star Paul Brule. with Ed Ulmer and Phil Minnick (injured last year) lead the linebackers and defensive backs. Joe Gritchlow and Jim Heighton seem set on the front four. The other two positions could be a problem.

gin in five games and a tie in a sixth. A strange thing about O'Brien, who was a wide receiver in college, is that he almost flunked out of the Colts' camp after being chosen over Michaels.

But in the opener with San Diego, O'Brien reassured assistant coach Bielski and head coach Don McCafferty by kicking three consecutive field goals for a 16-14 victory.

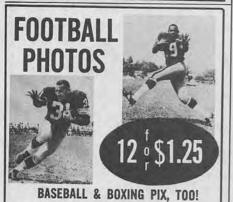

Bakken's beginning was a big bust. Waived by the Rams in August of 1962, he was picked up by the Cardinals. Not only did he punt poorly in an exhibition game, but he suffered a broken nose when a punt was blocked. But the Cardinals couldn't drop him because of his injuries, and he was put on the reserve list. Activated late in the season, he was given two chances to kick field goals. He missed both.

But from hen on, Bakken became the indispensable man with a score sheet of 154 field goals and 295 points after, smashing all Cardinal scoring records.

The specialty bit is of fairly recent vintage for kickers and it is probably accounted for by several factors, not the least of which is the expansion in the size of squads.

In the days of 32-man squads virtually all the place-kickersand punters, too-had other, and far more violent duties to perform. Waterfield was a full-time quarterback. Pat Harder was a bone-crunching fullback for Jimmy Conzelman's Cardinals. Doak Walker was a fleet halfback for the Lions. Summerall played a lot of end for the Cardinals, as did Bobby Walston, one of the best from 35 yards in, for the Eagles.

The pioneer specialists included Paige Cothren, first with the Rams, then with the Eagles; Groza, who played a lot of offensive tackle for the Browns before he was "retired" to the kickers' rocking chair; Don Chandler, a fairly good running back until the Giants put him in the special-

TOM DEMPSEY wearing special built shoe on malformed foot, nears kickoff.

"He ought to pay them for getting the good meals and the fresh air," an Eagle guard said, pointing to Baker, lolling under the training camp goal posts, his sweat shirt dry as the Sahara under the armpits.

"I do the calisthenics, don't I? Baker responded. "What does the guy want me to do? Break my leg in a scrum?"

Deep in his 30's at the time, Baker was a man of many parts, not the least of which was his ability to disparage the soccerstyle lads.

"Most of them," Sambo said, "don't get their kicks up quickly enough. Those that do, need more time than we do."

The maximum mod is estimated at one and one-half seconds. It's conceded, and by Stenerud himself, that the Chiefs' fine forward wall gives him the maximum.

Place-kicking is, of course, the art now, and not drop-kicking as it was perfected by the likes of Thorpe and Brickley. Strong was a drop kicker at New York University, but employed a ball holder when he became a pro. Nobody seems to know—and the records do not show-when the drop kicker did a complete van-

The ball holder, all placekickers agree, can make or break the man upon whom, to break out the cliche, all eyes are riveted. Some of the best holders have been top-flight quarterbacks like Sonny Jurgensen and Fran Tarkenton. Don Burroughs, a 6-4, 180-pound free safety, also was an acknowledged wizard at taking the snap and planting the ball down quickly at the right angle with the laces away from the kick.

The goal of the place-kicker is an average of at least 75 per cent. Stenerud was 30 out of 42 last season; Ypremian 22 of 29; 29; Cox 30 of 46; Gogolak, 29 of 45; and Bakken, 20 of 32.

Dempsey? He was 18 of 34, or under 50 per cent. "He's got to do better between 30 and 39 yards," the Saints' new head coach, J. D. Roberts, opined. At that most common distance, Big Tom hit only one out of five.

ist class; and Sam Baker, who broke in with the Redskins as a running back, and who became so proficient at place-kicking, punting and kicking off, that he was assigned to those three duties by the Cowboys and the Eagles.

It was not, however, until the last several years that the kicking specialis came to be regarded as a prize possession. Some of the place-kickers of yore did not take their single chore too seriously. Cothren, for one, tried to make a deal with the Eagles that would permit him to stay in his Mississippi home for all of the week except Sunday. He was turned down, but only on the grounds his six-day absence might be harmful to morale.

So how much diligence does a place-kicker need, once he has it made? Candidly, I still have to see one of them work up a sweat on a training or a practice field.

"Oh, yes, I practice my kicking," Gogolak conceded, "but not to an extreme. A kicker's leg, you know, can get weary and sore from too much work."

JAN STENERUD, kicking one of 30 FGs last season, led AFC with 119 points.

BEAT THE SPREAD ENDZONE PUBLICATIONS

25 years of Football Forecasting

HERE'S OUR RECORD

Last year EZ Publications forecasted accurately on 84% of our selections. Some of these include:

- A complete sweep of all Bowl Games on New Year's Day.
 Correctly selected Dallas over Detroit, Baltimore over Oakland in Playoffs.
- Tabbed Baltimore as Super Bowl win-
- Our "Hot Line" special won 10 of 12 on Saturday, 9 of 12 on Sunday.

 Plus many other stunning upsets.

HERE'S OUR METHOD

- · We have at our disposal up-to-the-minute information on weather conditions, key injuries, and psychological factors.
- After exhaustive research, we select only those games that have the best chance of BEATING THE SPREAD.
- Before we send out any selections the staff compares notes with our computer
- Our Bulletin will contain these games plus our reasons for selecting them.

HERE'S OUR OFFER

WHAT DO THESE CHAMPIONS HAVE IN COMMON...WITH YOU?

MR. OLYMPIA

MR. UNIVERSE

Larry Scott, Mr. Olympia," was a 136-lb. skinny weakling. He wrote for my free information—just as you should—and now weighs 205 lbs. with 20-inch arms! One of the world's best-built men ever! How about you?

Dave Draper, "Mr. America," once was a fat slob—weighing 255 lbs. Then he wrote for my free information and now weighs 235 lbs., 2012-inch arms, a 55" chest, 32" waist. A real champ! Why wait? Rush!

Reg Lewis, "Mr. Universe," was kicked around because of being skinny. only 138-lbs., and weak. But he sent for free information, now weighs 205 lbs. and is a real champ! Why not you!

THEY ANSWERED A WEIDER AD—GAINED 3 INCHES TO THEIR ARMS —4 INCHES TO THEIR CHEST— IN 7 SHORT WEEKS! YOU TOO?

You, too—just like these champions—can now own a handsome, muscular body—fast! You, too, can now finally follow the exact same instructions these champs did, and in just 15 minutes a day, in the privacy of your own home, you can instantly slap on 4 inches to your chest and 3 inches to each arm, give yourself lifeguard shoulders, musculanize your waist, get speedy legs, and exercise your body. The techniques are simple, there's nothing complicated, just downright enjoyable!

I don't care if, today, you own the scraggiest, flabbiest or funniest body—whether you're tall or short, young or not-so-young. If you send, under no obligation, for my absolutely free 32-pages of muscle building information, I guarantee you that virtually over-night you will experience a muscle-building miracle; before your eyes, you will see handsome muscles bursting out all over you. They will ripple with power, burst with energy—and for the first time in your life men will envy your body, women admire it, because at last you own a body that brings you fame instead of shame. Let me help you as I did these champions—who were also weaklings—to put an end to your weakness and shame. Write now for my free information—you'll be so happy you did! After all, you have nothing to lose but your weakness!

A-C-T-I-O-N is the key to strength—make your first He-Man Decision N-O-W! Fill out the coupon right now, rush it to me, and in hours I will send you absolutely free—at my own expense—the exact same muscle building information I sent to these and numerous champions, and to over 5 million other successful students. I am known as the most successful trainer of champions. I have been turning weaklings into "Mr. America's" and "Mr. Universe's" successfully since 1936. Don't pass up this once-in-a-lifetime proven successful offer to trade in your body for the one you always dreamed of having. Remember, you will be following in the proven, safe, scientific footsteps of the World's Best Built Men. So hurry! Put an end to your weakness now. Send for my sensational free offer—good only to males between 13 and 75 in normal good health. This is the most time-tested, results-producing course of all time!
